DRESSMAKING.

COSTUME ORDER DEPARTMENT.

Our arrangements for this Autumn Season have been made with a view to meet the requirements of our lady patrons, both in the finishing and punctual completion of their commands. Our staff is, as heretofore, a large and experienced one, and leaves us with no fear as to the execution of all orders placed. The highest models to hand are, we are pleased to say, both graceful and practical, and in the copying of such our artistes will be "at home;" indeed it has been observed in the "World of Fashion" that there is no reason why every lady should not be well dressed—meaning thereby that the Gowns be truthfully and beautifully put together. We solicit a continuance of favours so liberally bestowed in the past, and so thoroughly confirmed within the recent rounds of festivities.

Our Fitting Rooms are unequalled in the city for light and ventilation.

FARMER and COMPANY.

MOURNING DEPARTMENT.

For the WINTER TRADE we have imported very extensively, and are introducing some specially-selected and entirely new Fabrics, to which we invite early inspection from all buyers of mourning materials.

A splendid range of Black Cashmeres.
A splendid range of Black Merinoes.
46in. Black Cashmere, 1s 9d to 7s
45in. Black Merino, 1s 9d to 5s 6d
46in. Silk Warp Henriettas, 4s 6d, 5s 6d, 6s 6d, 7s 6d
Moire Striped Serge, a new and beautiful fabric, quite a novelty; can be worn either in or out of mourning, 26in. wide, 4s 9d, 5s 6d yard
26in. Allwool Serge, 1s per yard, will wear well
26in. Nun's Cloth, 1s, 1s 3d, 1s 6d
46in. Strasburg Cloth, soft wool, 3s 6d
46in. Habit Cloth, 3s, 3s 9d
29in. Native Wool Serge, 1s 8d
26in. Estamene Serge, 1s 3d
46in. Allwool Crape Cloths, in stripes and Checks, 3s, 3s 6d, 3s 9d, 4s 6d yard
46in. Diagonals, 3s 6d
26in. Cashmere Serge, 1s, 1s 2d, 1s 4½d, 1s 6d
CREPETINES, in stripes and checks, 3s, 3s 3d, 3s 6d, 3s 9d, 3s 11d yard

The CREPETINE CLOTH is a new introduction, and we predict an extensive sale for it. The warp is specially prepared and spun from the finest silk, giving an elasticity to the texture, and an assurance from creasing not altogether to be avoided in materials made entirely from wool. The Crepetines will be durable, and will wear clean, inasmuch as they do not hold the dust, whilst they retain their shade, owing to the singular care exercised in the dyeing.

Courtauld's Rainproof Crapes, 3s 6d to 16s 6d

100 EMBROIDERED CASHMERE ROBES, containing 9 yards plain cashmere, 2¼ yards embroidered flouncing 46 inches wide, 4½ yards narrow embroidery for bodice trimming, rich designs, extraordinary value, 50s to 105s.

FARMER and COMPANY.

UNDERCLOTHING DEPARTMENT.

Here we are showing some beautiful Goods for the winter. Ladies on the lookout for warm and comfortable Clothing should certainly inspect our new Goods, and then, we feel sure, they will as certainly purchase at the prices now being asked for goods of the highest and most reliable manufacture. JUST OPENED.

Ladies' Dressing Jackets in French Flannel, self-coloured embroidery, in pink, cream, sky, ruby, &c.

Ladies' French Flannel Wrappers and Morning Gowns in all the new colours, cardinal, ruby, grenat, pink, sky, fawn, cream, Gobelin, &c., from 14s 6d to 42s

FARMER AND COMPANY.

COSTUMES, FRENCH MODELS.

Our first consignments are to hand, and for their extreme richness in quality and splendour in taste defeat any attempt at correct description by the pen. We cannot do more than simply note the combinations of a few as indicating the style in the first ranks of fashion for this department. A revival of the real old-fashioned Moiré is a leading idea, and its introduction is received with marked favour. Our Parisian models have, as may therefore be supposed, been treated with this manufacture.

No. 1. Dark Heliotrope, Trimmed, Embossed, and Plain Velvet, with Amber Passementerie
No. 2. Rich Golden Brown, Trimmed Brown and Mastic Check Velvet, with curious Copper Passementerie
No. 3. Brown Moiré, Trimmed Brown Velvet and Brown and Mastic Watered Brocade
No. 4. Gobelin, Trimmed Embossed Velvets, and rich Steel Passementerie
No. 5. Strawberry, Trimmed, singular shade in Salmon Colour, and Corded Passementerie
No. 6. Imperial Blue, Trimmed Striped Velvet and Black Passementerie
No. 7. Black Silk, Trimmed Velvet and Faille, with Passementerie

THE ABOVE GARMENTS are composed of the RICHEST SILKS and VELVETS, whilst the trimmings are simply exquisite.

DRESS FABRICS FOR WINTER.

In our first shipments we have some VERY USEFUL FABRICS, which have been specially made to our order by an eminent Roubaix manufacturer. The materials are fine worsted, ensuring every satisfaction in point of wear, and by their brightness showing up the patterns to every advantage. The patterns are in great variety, including stripes, checks in different sizes, diagonals, and crepetines. They are 44in. wide, always an advantage in making up. Prices range from 3s to 3s 9d per yard. Colours: Navy, Seal Brown, Chestnut, Ruby, Marone, Myrtle, dark Heliotrope, Prune, Mastic and Copper Shades, &c.

NATIVE WOOL SERGES, 28in. wide, 1s 8d per yard

MANTLES FOR THE WINTER.

Scrutinising the first parcels for this department we note the garments are certainly calculated to be as useful as ornamental for the new season. The Jackets, Mantles, and Pelisses are well and shapely cut, many of them fitting to the figure and lending thereby additional beauty to the complete toilette.

Materials are good, and the ornaments in many instances deserve a word of praise beyond this; indeed they appear costly adjuncts, and were it not that to-day metals are so wonderfully manipulated it might be thought they were of paramount importance.

TAILOR-MADE JACKETS.—Fine assortment of Tweeds, most fashionable cut. Prices 12s 6d, 14s 6d, 18s 6d, 21s, 25s, 27s 6d.

Short and stylishly cut CHANTILLY SILK JACKET, trimmed fur, silk ruche, lace and plush, from 45s.

TAILOR-MADE COATS, in Cloth and Tweed, well cut and finished, 14s 6d, 25s, 30s, 35s

PLUSH COATS in seal brown and black, very long. These goods are well worth twice the price asked. Very handsome in appearance, 75s to 5 guineas.

CHANTILLY SILK LONG COATS, trimmed plush, fur, ruche, &c., from 4 guineas.

In higher qualities our Garments have opened out in splendid order, for value never before excelled. Long and short Mantles and Manteletttes in Silk, Velvet, Plush, and Tweed; trimmings Fur, Feather, and Passementerie.

CASHMERE CIRCULARS, lined silk and wadded, trimmed fur, 54s

BROWN CASHMERE, trimmed Astrachan, 35s.

LADIES' ULSTERS.

LADIES' ULSTERS, Sling Sleeves, Dolman and Coat Shapes, commencing from 14s 6d; extraordinary value throughout in this range of garments.

FUR-LINED MANTLES in circular and Dolman shapes. Our home buyers have selected RELIABLE FURS.

JERSEY JACKETS are again much worn. Our parcels to hand comprise all the leading colours. Price, from 10s 6d.

BLACK JERSEY BODICES, grand value, 8s 9d.

LADIES' MACINTOSHES, from 9s 6d.

MARVELLOUS PRODUCTION.

In order to mark the extraordinary success of "In the Ranks," the management have decided to present to every visitor paying for admission at Her Majesty's Theatre to-night with a souvenir ranging in value from £10 to 1s.

No presentation will be of less value than 1s, and every person will have an equal chance of obtaining the £10 SOUVENIR,
which is a GOLD KEYLESS HUNTING ¾-PLATE WALTHAM LEVER WATCH, and is now on view in the window of Messrs. FLAVELLE and ROBERTS, 340, George-street.

The Watch is engraved on the inside case "Her Majesty's Theatre, March 24: souvenir of the 78th representation of 'In the Ranks,'" and in proof of its value, the Acting Manager will be happy to purchase the same from the fortunate possessor at the sum of TEN GUINEAS.

The presentation will be made personally by Mr. George Rignold at the conclusion of the Marriage Scene.

SCENERY by Mr. J. LITTLE.
Prices of Admission—4s, 3s, 2s, 1s.
BOX PLAN OPEN DAILY IN THE GRAND VESTIBULE OF THE THEATRE FROM 10 to 5, WHERE SEATS MAY BE BOOKED.

MANAGERIAL NOTICE.

The Management have the honour to announce that on the above date they will produce a new version of Goethe's immortal poem "Faust," from the pen of Mr. Gilbert Parker. The poem has been dramatised upon the lines of the Original Play as adapted from the French by Mr. Dion Boucicault for the late Charles Kean, as produced at the Princess's Theatre, London. The beauty and strength of Goethe's thought and all the dramatic incidents have been preserved; and the Management have every confidence in placing before the public a powerful dramatic work.

Box plan open on Monday, in the Grand Vestibule of the Theatre.

KENNEDY CONGRATULATORY CRITICISMS.
KENNEDY
KENNEDY HERALD:
KENNEDY "The performance given was of such a genuine
KENNEDY and thoroughly amusing character that there is KENNEDY little doubt of his being able to fill the house for KENNEDY many nights to come."
KENNEDY
KENNEDY TELEGRAPH:
KENNEDY "A thousand years ago a man of Professor KENNEDY Kennedy's mysterious powers would have been KENNEDY either burned as a wizard, or worshipped as a
KENNEDY divinity." "The audience were kept more con-
KENNEDY tinuously in a state of hysterical laughter than by KENNEDY any farce yet witnessed on the Australian or any KENNEDY other stage."
KENNEDY
KENNEDY ECHO:
KENNEDY "An artist of the first water." "Created roars KENNEDY of laughter."
KENNEDY
KENNEDY NEWS:
KENNEDY "The power Professor K. possesses is almost KENNEDY demoniacal. Sure of a substantial run of busi-
KENNEDY ness.
KENNEDY
KENNEDY STAR:
KENNEDY "There has been no funnier entertainment ever
KENNEDY given in Sydney."
KENNEDY
KENNEDY SUNDAY TIMES:
KENNEDY "A more amusing entertainment has never KENNEDY been seen on the stage, one continuous roar of KENNEDY laughter."

PROSPECTUS
CALDWELL'S AUSTRALIAN WINE COMPANY, Limited.

To be Incorporated Under the Companies Statute, 1864.

CAPITAL, £125,000, in 100,000 SHARES of £1 5s each.

First Issue, 25,000, payable 5s on application, 5s on allotment, 5s in three months, 5s in six months.

This will be sufficient to carry on the business now established, but, as it is considered that a good trade can eventually be opened up in England and elsewhere abroad, it is necessary to provide adequate capital.

Provisional Directors:
R. MURRAY SMITH, Esq., C.M.G.

The executors of the late Mr. Robert Caldwell, having decided to dispose of his business in Victoria and New South Wales, feel that while getting a fair price for a well-established and paying concern by converting it into a Company, they offer the public an exceptionally safe investment.

The sum to be paid to Messrs. Caldwell and Co. for their business in both colonies will amount to about £20,000, of which only £3000 is for goodwill and the balance for stock, vineyard, plant, &c., all of which will be taken at a valuation, and any stock or plant not approved of by the directors may be rejected.

To show their confidence in the business continuing to be a success, Mr. Caldwell's executors will guarantee a dividend of 10 per cent. on the paid-up capital for three years, and in part payment will take 5000 shares paid up to 20s, which they will leave in the hands of the directors as security for the fulfilment of this pledge.

The books of the Melbourne firm have been thoroughly examined by Messrs. Davey, Flack, and Co., whose report shows that the profits have been over 21 per cent. on the capital employed. After providing for the extra expenses in connection with the management of the Company, this will still leave a handsome return for investors. The New South Wales business is even more profitable than this.

Messrs. Caldwell and Co. have in their cellars a large stock of fine old wines, second to none in the colonies, and the plant, machinery, &c., is all in the best order, and of the most improved kind.

The head-quarters of the New South Wales business are at the vineyard, within three miles of Wagga Wagga, situated on the borders of Lake Albert; the position, being sheltered on all sides by the surrounding hills, is specially adapted for viticulture. The yield last year was over 300 gallons per acre. The land not now actually under vines could be sold at a higher price than that asked for it, but as it has been proved so suitable for wine growing, it is considered advisable to retain it for the purpose of extending the vineyard, for which object a large portion has been specially cleared.

As evidence of Messrs. Caldwell and Co.'s extensive connection, it may be mentioned that their active open ledger accounts number over 2300, among which are the names of nearly all the principal hotel and storekeepers in Victoria and New South Wales, besides a large private family trade. In addition to this they are now doing a very large and important business with India, where their wines are being gradually introduced among the principal clubs and regiments. Messrs. Caldwell and Co. have spared no expense or trouble to establish a business in this desirable market.

In connection with the business already established the Company would, with the aid of the extra capital, be enabled to assist and encourage the establishment of first-class wine shops, by making advances to desirable clients in the same way as brewers now do with hotels. This will materially aid the development of the wine industry, while creating a profitable increase in the Company's business.

In addition to the present Australian and Indian business of Messrs. Caldwell and Co., it is proved beyond doubt that a profitable export trade could immediately be entered upon with England. The following report will show the importance of this trade:—"The consumption in the United Kingdom for the last three years was as follows:—1885, 60,000gal.; 1886, 110,000gal.; 1887, 200,000gal." The latest advices from agents in London recommend the shipment of any quantity of good sound wine to arrive about the beginning of summer. With proper management this business would yield a very good profit.

The book debts of the firm guaranteed by them, will be taken over by the Company.

Mr. Robert H. Caldwell, who has been a partner in the Melbourne business for over two years, will continue as Managing Director for a period, and at a salary to be fixed by the directors.

The certificate of Messrs. Davey, Flack, and Co., can be seen at the brokers' office.

Early application is necessary, as over half the shares for allotment have been applied for.

This Company is being formed for the purpose of acquiring three blocks of 40 acres each, of which the lease for the most valuable has been issued, and the applications for the other two have been approved of.

The mine is situated about 50 miles west of Nyngan Railway Station, 30 miles from Cobar, and seven miles from Budd's Gap Hotel, upon the Nyngan-Cobar-road, being measured portions 10, 8, and 3, parish of Geweroo, county of Flinders.

The mine is in the same belt of country, and not far distant from, the Nymagee and Cobar mines, both of which have proved enormously rich, the latter having paid nearly half a million in dividends, and are still being worked vigorously. Mr. H. H. Cooke, who has had a large mining experience extending over 30 years, assures the Directors that the New Burra Burra Mine promises to be richer than either of these mines.

The work done confirms Mr. Cooke's estimate, as there has been exposed an enormous body of ore, which can be worked at a small cost.

The abundance of fuel and proximity to the railway will enable copper to be put on the market at a very reasonable cost.

Mr. John Hutchens, mining manager, reports that the output from the mine should enable returns to be made in about four months.

Sydney, 20th March, 1888.

REPORT OF MR. HENRY H. COOKE, Mining Expert.

The Proprietors of the New Burra Burra Copper Mine.

Gentlemen,—

I have now the pleasure of submitting to you my report on your "New Burra Burra" Mine, which I visited and inspected at your request on the 7th of March instant.

The property consists of three forty (40) acre blocks, in all one hundred and twenty (120) acres, held under lease from the Crown, and is situated about 50 miles west of Nyngan Railway Station, 30 miles from Cobar, about 7 miles from Budd's Gap Hotel, Nyngan-Cobar road, on the resumed area of pastoral holding, Hermitage Plains, block M; and are measured portions 10, 8, and 3, parish of Geweroo, county Flinders.

The country is undulating, low hills of porphyritic and slate rock rising here and there out of the red soil, covered with open forest of box and pine timber.

The lode is situated on a gentle acclivity, about perhaps, 30ft. above the ordinary level of the country, between porphyry rock on the western side and slate on the eastern side.

The course of the lode is about nor'-west and sou'-east, with an underlay slightly eastward, and about 5 chains from the western boundary of the leases.

There is but little outcrop visible.

The main shaft is down about 40ft. Just under the surface the lode is 5ft. wide, and continues from 5 to 6 ft. in width to a depth of 15ft., chiefly through blue and green carbonates, where it widens out to an unknown width to the bottom of the shaft, which is 8ft. by 7ft., in one solid mass of ore without break or seam.

I brought with me samples of ore from various depths in the shaft, and the assay returns, made by Mr. CHARLES A. SMITH, F.I.C., F.C.S., are as follows:—

SAMPLES:

No. 1.—Carbonates from surface and near it
Assay—Metallic Copper, 14·8 per cent.
No. 2.—Carbonates from 10ft. level
Assay—Metallic Copper, 34·7 per cent.
No. 3.—Grey and brown ore from 30 to 35ft. deep
Assay—Metallic Copper, 19·0 per cent.
No. 4.—Mixed rotten-ripe ore from west side of shaft at 40ft. level.
Assay—Metallic copper, 23·4 per cent.

Sample No. 4 seems to be cutting out the harder ore, and is, I believe, in close proximity to the black oxides.

I estimate the cost of breaking and raising the ore, once the stopes are opened out, at from 6s. to 7s. per ton.

On the surface, the lode has been traced by cross-cuts for a distance of 150ft. north of shaft, and 60ft. to south, showing a strong lode of blue and green carbonates of the same character as that obtained from the shaft. The rest of the ground is covered with alluvium, except on the rise to the south, where there is a heavy outcrop of ironstone, which may be the capping of the copper lode, but more probably a parallel lode of some other metal, as there are no copper stains visible in it.

Immediately to the east, 30ft. from shaft, in an open cutting 2ft. deep, there is another small lode of blue and green carbonates 18in. thick. This lode has not yet been sunk on, and may converge to or run parallel with the main lode. The shaft and principal cross-cut workings are on portion No. 10; on the other leases, little or no work has yet been done.

All the samples taken by me are of fair average quality. I compared them with various ores in the heap of about 100 tons at grass, which in my opinion will give a yield approximating the assay returns of Mr. C. A. Smith.

The geological formations, slate and porphyry, are most favourable, the lode occurring as it does alongside the line of these formations, and the undisturbed nature of the country, indicates a permanency of character not often met with.

I believe the New Burra Burra will, with a moderate outlay of capital, develop into a highly remunerative mine.

AUXILIARY.

In all such undertakings as starting and working a mine, there are many outside considerations which must be taken into account, such as timber, water, water, cost of carriage, distance from railway, &c., &c. These I find most favourable.

Timber for smelting is in abundance on the ground and for miles around, of white and red box and pine. This timber, besides being the most suitable kind for smelting purposes, is in such manageable sizes that it can be supplied at lowest price per cord.

The contour of the surface of the country offers excellent facilities for the excavation of tanks and dams for storing water, which the soil holds well.

Adjacent to the mine on a freehold belonging to Mr. Wm. Frost, lessee of the run, is a good supply of water in a tank, from which the men now at work on the mine obtain their needful supply. On the adjoining run, half a mile from the mine is another large dam of water, owned by a Mr. Clements, Geweroo Run. These go to prove the water-holding qualities of the soil.

On one of your leases there is a splendid site for a Reservoir, with a position commanding many miles of watershed.

Lime can be obtained in abundance seven miles to the north, and also 10 miles south of your mine.

The present rate of carriage from Nyngan Railway Station to the mine is about £3 per ton, but the convenience of carriage will be enhanced, and the cost considerably lessened by the construction of the proposed line to Cobar from Nyngan. This could be connected with your mine by an inexpensive tramline, seven miles, and would enable you to take the product of the mine direct from there to Sydney. Thus all circumstances point to the "New Burra Burra" as a safe and profitable investment for many years to come.

I am,
Gentlemen,
Faithfully yours,
HENRY H. COOKE, M.E.

10th March, 1888.

REPORT BY MR. JOHN HUTCHENS.

Sydney, March 14, 1888.

To the Management of the New Burra Burra Copper Mine.

Gentlemen,

With the resources of your property, I have no hesitation in saying that, with the expenditure of £4000, it can be made into a highly payable concern.

I consider the prospects of your mine sufficient to justify the erection of two or more furnaces (as the management may direct) straightaway, and I believe that two furnaces could be erected for the sum of £1400, and that in the short space of four months from the time of starting operations you could be making copper.

I remain, yours faithfully,
JOHN HUTCHENS,
Mining Manager.

WE desire to call attention to the following notice of Messrs. MARSHALL BROTHERS, the well-known Sydney Dentists, authors of that popular treatise "The Teeth and their Preservation." We might also add that they are the only large firm in Australia who are practising high-class dentistry at reform prices. See following notice:—"Artificial teeth set on pure gold, silver, platinum, vulcanite, celluloid, &c., at from £5 the complete set (upper and lower). In charging these low prices Marshall Brothers simply depend upon their extensive practice to make the difference in profit, as they have now the largest dental practice in New South Wales, which is the outcome of the best work with the best materials at a moderate price. Consultation free. Teeth extracted painlessly under Marshall's pure nitrous oxide gas every morning. Owing to the extent of the practice, no consultations are held anywhere but at the head office. Therefore, note the only address—Marshall Brothers, dentists, 133, Elizabeth-st., Hyde Park, Sydney. Through the perfected state of modern appliances used, country patients need only stay in Sydney a few hours.

NOTICE is hereby given that the Borough Council of West Maitland has decided to BORROW a sum not exceeding £20,000, for or towards, or incidental to the making, carrying on, or completing Permanent Improvements within the Municipality, and having in accordance with Section 190 of the Municipalities Act of 1867, obtained the sanction in writing of His Excellency the Governor of the Colony to borrow the hereinbefore mentioned sum of money, hereby invite Tenders for the amount so required.

The amount of the said loan is to be secured by Debentures on the credit of the annual revenue of the said Council.

The said Debentures will be for £100 each, and shall have a currency of twenty years, and shall bear interest at and after the rate of Five Pounds per centum per annum, payable half yearly.

The said principal and interest will be payable on the days and times hereby appointed for the payment thereof at the Borough Council Chambers at West Maitland.

The nature and estimated amount of the proposed security for said loan will be the annual revenue of the said Borough Council, amounting to £4200 per annum.

TENDERS for the hereinbefore mentioned Loan, endorsed "Tender for Debentures for Loan for West Maitland Council," and addressed to the Council Clerk, will be received at the Borough Council Chambers, West Maitland, up to noon of WEDNESDAY, APRIL 4 NEXT. The Council does not bind itself to accept any tender offered.

By order of the Council,
THOS. HUGHES,
Council Clerk.

Department of Lands, Sydney,
20th March, 1888.

IT is hereby notified for public information that under the provisions of the "Animals Infectious Diseases Act of 1888" it is unlawful for any person not holding a license from the Minister for Lands to introduce into New South Wales, or to receive when introduced, or to keep or distribute, any micro-organism, mite, or parasite, or other minute form of life capable of producing any disease or pestilence in man, or in any wild or domestic animal, or any substance or medium impregnated therewith, or to rear and propagate the same. It is further provided by the said Act that it shall be unlawful for any person not holding a license from such Minister to inoculate or otherwise infect any wild or domestic animal with any micro-organism, mite, or parasite, or other minute form of life capable of producing any disease or pestilence in man or any wild or domestic animal, or to let loose, send, or remove in any way any animals so inoculated or otherwise infected, or to dispose of the same otherwise than by boiling or burning. Any offence against the said Act is thereby declared to be a misdemeanour, and the person or persons offending will be liable to a term of imprisonment not exceeding two years, or to a fine not exceeding one hundred pounds.

Nothing in this notice or in the Act referred to shall be held to apply to the introduction, receiving, keeping, propagating, or use of any lymph or other substance heretofore ordinarily used for the prevention of disease in man or in any domestic animal, or of the like kind therewith, or to any micro-organism, mite, or parasite, or other minute form of life existing otherwise than in a state of artificial cultivation or method for preserving the vitality thereof.

It is further notified that any person desiring to obtain a license under the "Animals Infectious Diseases Act of 1888" should apply to the Minister for Lands for the same, stating definitely the scope of the license sought to be obtained, and the place or district to which it is to apply.

A SUFFICIENT NUMBER of SHARES having been subscribed, this Society commenced operations on 15th February last, and the share list will shortly close.

The success of the Society is assured by the possession of a large body of shareholders of good standing and influence in the city, and in many of the leading country towns. The attention of CAPITALISTS and INVESTORS, either on a LARGE or SMALL SCALE, is drawn to the fact that investors in this Society will secure a rate of interest considerably over that returned by BANK STOCK, MORTGAGES, or ANY OTHER ORDINARY OUTLET for capital, with at LEAST EQUAL, if not GREATER, SAFETY.

Many societies on similar lines in MELBOURNE have been worked out with a return of SEVEN and A-HALF PER CENT. COMPOUND INTEREST to INVESTORS, and in that city they are as popular with the LARGEST CAPITALISTS as with INVESTORS for single shares.

The liberal arrangements with respect to WITHDRAWALS and BORROWING renders the money invested as convertible as SAVINGS BANK DEPOSITS, while the interest derivable is nearly double the rate obtained in the latter, this Society thus being a very attractive means of providing ENDOWMENTS FOR CHILDREN.

This Society is a strictly MUTUAL one, and there is no PROMOTION MONEY or PREFERENCE in any shape or form. BORROWERS are therefore placed on the best possible footing. Prospectuses and all information may be obtained on application at the Society's offices, and intending Shareholders are respectfully reminded that (as has been the case with similar societies) there is every probability of the ENTRANCE FEE BEING INCREASED with the progress of the Society, and it is advisable, therefore, at once to send in their applications for shares.

MEMORANDUM OF ASSOCIATION of the AUSTRALIAN MERCANTILE, LOAN, and GUARANTEE COMPANY, Limited, Sydney.

Incorporated under the Companies Act, 1874.

The name of the Company is the AUSTRALIAN MERCANTILE, LOAN, AND GUARANTEE COMPANY, Limited.

The registered head office of the company will be situate in the city of Sydney.

The objects for which the company is established are:—

1. To lend money at interest upon, and to purchase all or any of the securities hereinafter enumerated: that is to say, freehold or leasehold property, or any part, share, or interest in any such property; any public stock, funds, debentures, or securities of any of the Australasian colonies, any public stock, funds, or securities of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, or of any colony, possession, or dependency thereof, or of any foreign State, the debentures or other securities of any municipal body in any of the Australasian Colonies, including New Zealand, or in the colonies of Fiji or New Caledonia; the shares, debentures, stock, or securities of any company incorporated in any of the Australasian Colonies.
   - The shares of the company.
   - British ships, or any share thereof, and the freight of any such ship.
   - Bills of lading and certificates of goods deposited or warehoused in either bond or free stores, and other documents of a like nature.
   - The estate, share, or interest of any person in the estate of any deceased person, whether derived under the will of such deceased person or under the administration of his or her estate and effects.
   - Any legacy, annuity, rent charge, or other moneys bequeathed by or under the will of any deceased person.
   - The sub-mortgage of any of the foregoing properties or securities.
   - The mortgage of any chattels.
   - To execute bonds, endorse bills, guarantee payments of money, due completion of contracts, or work of any kind; also the due fulfilment of any bailment, stipulation, or undertaking whatsoever, together with the undertaking of fidelity guarantees to Governments, public companies, firms, and private persons, with or without security for the same, and all business of a like character, either with or without security.
   - To promote and form companies with or without limited liability, if decided upon to do so.
   - To purchase insolvent estates, goods, chattels, land, and effects thereof, or to purchase goods, chattels, and effects at auction or otherwise, as may be deemed expedient.
   - To carry on the business of banking in all its branches, and, in particular, to advance money upon property and securities of all kinds, to discount bills, notes, and other securities, to deal in exchanges and specie, and to receive money on deposit at interest or otherwise.
   - To carry on the business of bill discounters, bill brokers, and money lenders.
   - To purchase, take, or lease, or in exchange, hire, or otherwise acquire any real or personal property, and any rights or privileges, either on account of the company or otherwise.
   - To construct, maintain, or alter any buildings or works necessary or convenient for the purposes of the company.
   - To sell, improve, manage, develop, lease, mortgage, dispose of, or otherwise deal with all or any part of the property of the company.
   - To borrow or raise money by the issue of or upon bonds, debentures, bills of exchange, promissory notes, or other obligations of securities of the company, or by mortgage or charge of all or any part of the property of the company, or of its uncalled capital, or in such other manner as the company shall think fit.
   - To make, accept, endorse, and execute promissory notes, bills of exchange, and other negotiable instruments.
   - To receive on deposit, trust, or otherwise, or take charge of money, property, and securities of every description and on any terms or conditions.
   - To buy up or absorb any other business similar to that of the company, or which the company is authorised to undertake, either in its own name or in the names of trustees.
   - To invest the moneys of the company not immediately required upon such securities as may from time to time be determined.
   - To do all or any of the above things either alone or in conjunction with others, and either as principal or agent, and either by itself or by agents, attorneys, or otherwise, in the colony of New South Wales or elsewhere.
   - To do all such things as the Company may from time to time deem incidental or conducive to the carrying out of the above objects.
   - To vest any of the property of the Company in trustees upon trust to carry out any of the foregoing objects for the benefit of the Company.
   - To conduct and carry on the business of the Company herein mentioned in the city of Sydney, or such other capital city in the Australian colonies as may from time to time be determined.

The liability of the shareholders is limited.

The capital of the Company is £500,000, divided into five thousand (5000) shares of one hundred pounds each (£100) together with a reserve uncalled liability of twenty-five pounds per share, with power to increase such capital, pursuant to statutes provided therefor.

The capital of the Company is now being increased by £100,000 by the issue of 1000 additional shares of £100 each.

A large number of shares have already been subscribed for, and 1000 are now offered to the public at par.

Forms of applications for shares will be supplied upon application at the Company's offices, corner of Market and York streets, Sydney.

This Company is formed to acquire, and work for gold, silver and lead, about 280 acres of mineral lands, situated at Captain's Flat, on the Molonglo Goldfields, New South Wales, adjoining the Vanderbilt Mine. Of the above acreage 172 are held as mineral conditional purchases, which it is proposed to immediately convert into freeholds, and the balance under mineral leases.

Water rights have been secured, and a large dam and races constructed, which insure a permanent supply of water above the furnace and battery.

There are several large gossan lodes on the property, one of which has been opened by adit levels, and proved to carry payable quantities of gold, silver, and lead. This lode is being worked further north on the line by the Koh-i-Noor Silver-mining Company with profit to the shareholders.

Part of the property adjoins the Vanderbilt proper, immediately on the south and on the line of lode.

The Plant consists of a 20-head stamper battery and Pacific water jacket smelting furnace, both well housed; a new 16 horse power portable engine, by Clayton and Shuttleworth; tramways, trucks, assay offices, cottages, &c.

The above is published for public information only, as all the Shares are allotted.

These BLOCKS adjoin the WELL-KNOWN CLAIMS of the PICTON EXTENDED COSGROVES, and ROUND HILL; and it is considered that the BROKEN HILL LODE traverses the PROPERTY.

REPORT of CAPTAIN LANE, Manager of NEW NORTH BROKEN HILL SILVER-MINING COMPANY, Limited.

Broken Hill,
March 16.

To the DIRECTORS, of the BROKEN HILL FLAT S. M. COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN,—

I have gone carefully over your LEASES Nos. 71 and 72, Parish of BOLAIRO.

I am of opinion that where the MAIN LODE comes through COSGROVE'S BLOCKS, and turns towards the ROUND HILL, a BREACH OCCURS, and that ONE BRANCH traverses YOUR PROPERTY.

I doubt if your PRESENT SHAFT is deep enough, but as it is at WATER LEVEL, I would advise the running out of LONG CROSSCUTS both ways, with a view to intersecting any veins passing through.

It would also BE ADVISABLE to SINK A SHAFT at the Eastern side of YOUR PROPERTY, at a Point where a COPPER-STAINED VEIN has been OPENED OUT ON.

THIS SHOULD have SOME CONNECTION with the LODE COMING THROUGH the PICTON MINE, and MAY AT a DEPTH develop into GOOD ORE, for it now has all THE CHARACTERISTICS and INDICATIONS of a GALENIFEROUS Deposit, CARRYING COPPER-STAINED GNEISS on ITS CAP.

I would be willing at any time to point out this particular place to your MANAGER, and confer with him on the GROUND as to the BEST SPOT on which to START OPERATIONS on this end of your property.

I am,
Yours faithfully,
Z. LANE,
Mining Engineer.

TURNBULL and WOOD'S "GLEN" WHISKY, FOR CONNOISSEURS.

Guaranteed 8-10 years old. In bulk and case. The "GLEN" obtained the highest award, the ONLY GOLD MEDAL, at London International Exhibition, 1884; also, GOLD MEDAL and FIRST-CLASS CERTIFICATE at Calcutta Exhibition, 1884, and ONLY GOLD MEDAL, Edinburgh, 1886.

From the London Morning Advertiser, Oct. 26th, 1887:—"Messrs. TURNBULL and WOOD, Perth and Newcastle-on-Tyne, re-appear in this exhibition (the Brewers') at stand 323, with a splendid display of their much esteemed "GLEN" Whisky, which, like the best articles of its kind known to Southern consumers, is a blend of Highland malt whiskies of great age, high character, and absolute purity. The exhibitors claim for the "GLEN" that it is absolutely pure, and their averment is certainly sustained on trial, for no whisky could well be softer or of more pleasing and delicate flavour."

N.B.—The "GLEN" has been selected as the Whisky for the Refreshment room in the House of Lords.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN.

The strictest examiner may try every test of touch and sight without discovering that these are other than the Genoa Velvets, which they so closely resemble, while the peculiar arrangements resulting in the fast woven pile enable them to stand interminable and rough wear, which would ruin real velvets at four times the price.

LUSTROUS SILK FINISH, equal to VELVET, in

ORIENTAL BLUE BLACK and 50 lovely Shades

UNRIVALLED FOR RICHNESS OF COLOUR AND DRAPERY.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH.
CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which in OUTWARD APPEARANCE so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE'S.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

Sold in packets by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sold in Sydney by ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

THE LADY CARRINGTON (a delicious beverage). The Daisy (the maiden's choice), with Strawberry, Raspberry, Pineapple, and other Fruit Extracts, are now being drawn from WASHINGTON H. DERMATOLOGY.
JAMES H. ADGER, Dermatologist.
Office, 131, Elizabeth-street, Sydney, treats successfully all diseases of the skin and scalp, loss of hair, premature blanching, and general cultivation and growth of the hair; and, as a result of this experience, he may point to his flattering success during several years' practice in this city, without reference to the many special cures he has effected, as the best proof of the general efficiency of his system of treatment.

Mr. Adger may be consulted at his office, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. It will be obvious that no person could have obtained such names as an endorsement of his professional ability without substantial proof of merit. Advice and remedy, 10s 6d.

DR. J. COLLIS BROWNE'S CHLORODYNE.—Vice-Chancellor Sir W. Page Wood stated publicly in court that Dr. J. Collis Browne was undoubtedly the inventor of Chlorodyne, that the whole story of the defendant Freeman was deliberately untrue, and he regretted to say it had been sworn to.—Times, July 13, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—The Right Hon. Earl Russell communicated to the College of Physicians and J. T. Davenport that he had received information to the effect that the only remedy of any service in cholera was chlorodyne.—See Lancet, December 31, 1864.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne "is prescribed by scores of orthodox practitioners. Of course it would not be thus singularly popular did it not 'supply a want and fill a place.'"—Medical Times, January 13, 1886.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is the best and most certain remedy in coughs, colds, asthma, consumption, neuralgia, rheumatism, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne is a certain cure for cholera, dysentery, diarrhœa, colic, &c.

Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne.—Caution: None genuine without the words "Dr. J. Collis Browne's Chlorodyne" on the Government stamp. Overwhelming medical testimony accompanies each bottle. Sole manufacturer, J. T. Davenport, 33, Great Russell-street, London. Sold in bottles at 1s 1½d, 2s 9d, 4s 6d, and 11s. Agents, Sydney: ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

"Among the many furnishing novelties there is a special form of bleached-caned furniture, lately introduced by Messrs. Newton and Lamb, which besides being peculiarly adapted to this climate has several most attractive features, from an artistic point of view. The designs of the chairs, tables, settees, ottomans, foot stools, and other articles made in this material, are very graceful and elegant, and, with the careful finish of the canework, which is a striking point, would entitle this furniture to a place in the best drawing-rooms. Some of it is partly upholstered, and it lends itself to the addition of plush or embossed leather with admirable effect."—S. M. Herald, 17th January.

THE EUROPEAN SITUATION.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

FEB. 3, 1888.

"Peace or war" is the question which still occupies all minds on this side of the world, and seems to be permanently on the order of the day. Will it be on the paper when this letter reaches you, or will someone have found an answer which shall be intelligible and authoritative? Probably—one may say most probably—that definite answer will not have been found, and that the middle and end of March will still be a period of suspense, just as the past months have been. That opinion is in accordance with the best political and financial judgment, now so keenly exercised upon this grave and obscure problem, and I hold it firmly. Perhaps not until the end of April or the beginning of May will trustworthy signs or facts, one way or the other, become visible to the general eye. Although, at this moment, the signs of a crisis are more pronounced, I do not think that the special anxiety caused by uncertainty, which now weighs upon and perplexes the political and mercantile world, will have been assuaged by the third week in March. At bottom the situation is the same, yet in superficial and substantial texture it is altered somewhat, but not for the better; for, if the political relations of the Powers have improved, the warlike aspects have become worse, and the tension grows every day; so that even Coloman Tisza, the Hungarian Prime Minister, can talk in an official speech, uttered with forethought, of "the many elements which are driving on to discord and war," elements he still "hopes"—they all hope—to overcome and subdue. We live in a period which has to endure as best it may this terrible uncertainty. Looking to the mighty influences striving to maintain the peace, and themselves surrounded by treacherous and unknown adversaries, we may say, in the words of Tennyson, written at some other dubious epoch, that—

> "Round them sea and air are dark
> With great contrivances of Power."

A sentence attributed to Prince Bismarck, which, if not authentic, is a capital imitation of his style, is to the point. War, he said, according to appearances, is scarcely to be dreaded for two or three years—at least for the present year. "I think this may be pretty certainly assumed; but then I was of just the same opinion in 1870, and war came upon us all the same." So that the Hamburgh merchant who is said to have called forth this speech, did not get much comfort. We may couple the words imputed to the hardy and outspoken Chancellor with the expressive phrase actually used by M. Tisza, and set both in a showy framework of "hopes," expressed by the rulers or heads of Germany, Russia, Austria, and France, and we have a lowering image of the time, "his form and pressure." Europe, sombre and expectant, may be likened to Thea in "Hyperion." For there is

> "A listening fear in her regard,
> As if calamity had but begun;
> As if the vanward clouds of evil days
> Had spent their malice, and the sullen rear
> Was, with its stored thunder, labouring up."

The winds of spring and the heat of summer may blow away and disperse the rack, but it now spreads thick and lurid over the political sky.

Take one grim fact, of which you will have heard by telegraph. Germany asks the Imperial Parliament to sanction a loan of £14,000,000, the initial cost of the new Army Roll, which will add 700,000 men to the already huge army. That is just £20 per man—not much put in that form, but reaching a total which sends a thrill through the political nerves of Europe. In the city here the words applied by competent judges to describe the effect of the unlooked-for and unwelcome stroke of statecraft are "dazed" and "dumbfoundered." They think it a most ominous sign of much meaning. And so it is, for the organisation and equipment of nearly three-quarters of a million of men will set free an almost equal number for actual campaigning. The Landsturm will be used within the realm, to garrison the fortresses and do all that part of the work which the active army would have done, so that the actual fighting power of the Reich, its movable hundreds of thousands, will be available for operations wherever they may be needed in the hurly-burly which even the most hopeful foresee must come sooner or later. And it must be remembered that these 700,000 men will be not a force on paper, but real soldiers, for the characteristic of the German War Office is to do nothing by halves, so that when summoned the whole mass will duly appear, and will be equipped and armed and ready just as if they were reserves fresh from training. Now, does not so thorough a step suggest irresistibly the idea that there is more ground for taking it than appears on the surface. Twelve months have not gone by since the army on a peace footing was increased by 40,000 men; and now we have the sudden apparition of a huge mass called up to set free the whole valid and trained population under 35 years of age. If war is not coming, evidently the great general staff and the great statesman who advises the Emperor William think that there is a likelihood of its advent. At the same time Germany, official Germany, is collecting and hoarding gold, another sign impressive to the City, which has long noted with wonder the accumulations visible to keen eyes in Paris and St. Petersburg. These new accretions of gold by the Reich are independent of the six millions sterling which, as a sacred, untouched deposit for war uses, are kept in the vaults of Spandau. War articles in semi-official and inspired newspapers are facts to be observed; but they are light and vaporous beside the hoarding of gold, and the continuous and vast expansion of armed forces, which are always enormous. So far, therefore, the peril of the situation has been strongly accentuated by the action of Germany. In like manner, but on a lesser scale, although she too is clothing, arming, and drilling her Landsturm, Austria abates not the work of preparation, being, as her statesmen say, determined to take such measures, in view of contingencies, as the security of her frontiers and "the effective use" of her army may demand; that is to set free the largest possible number of men for service in the field. I am told by good judges that the Austrian army is greatly superior to the Russian in quality, and especially that the Austro-Hungarian cavalry will prove to be the better men should they have a chance. They are fewer in number, but they are real cavalry, which the Russian horse is not, and their hearts are in the business to be done.

Another change for the worse in the situation is indicated by M. Tisza's open declaration, made with full responsibility, that "Russia is carrying out a marked displacement and transfer of her troops towards the west," that is, the heavy columns look into both East Prussia and Galicia upon two fronts. At first the Russian troops were not so alarmingly strong; they were only the garrisons on a peace-footing. Now, more divisions and brigades of all arms have been pushed westward, until there are far more than three hundred thousand, including nearly one-third or one-fourth cavalry. Russia naively alleges that she means nothing, but that she cannot mobolise as rapidly as her neighbours, and seeks to recover the advantage by taking time by the forelock. That is, perhaps, not the weakest argument in favour of peace during the present year. For Russia, notoriously, though ready to "bluff," is not ready to fight at once, being backward in her preparations and clumsy in her machinery. Still it should be remarked that her troops are now bodily there, having been stealthily moved up by degrees, and still on the road; so that the bellicose General Gourko can congratulate his officers on the measures taken and in progress to bring up Russian armaments to a proper pitch. What a situation it is! Germany augmenting her great strength, Russia slowly but stedfastly moving up division after division, and corps after corps, or at least the strong framework which can be easily filled; France quietly increasing her big army; and Austria, alive with anxiety, making the most of her resources, which are also great, though less than those of France. Side by side with these principals in the drama there is Bulgaria, suffering from Russo-Montenegrin inroads; Servia, looking for an anti-Russian Government; Roumania, eagerly seeking guarantees of neutrality for herself, or sure support should she be attacked because she will not open her territory to the legions of the Czar; and Turkey armed, but temporising all round with great assiduity, and solicitous to keep out of the fray, or enter it only if her integrity is secured. Never, at any moment, has there been more grim, yet anxious preparation; no time when men's minds were more strained in the effort to make out what will befall, or more oppressed with forebodings of coming calamities. Even from the lips of statesmen, eager for peace, and angry at the prospect of war, there drops no word stronger than "hope."

The political situation, fundamentally, has not undergone an atom of change. There are eddies on the surface, whirling here and there, which betray the unrest beneath, but the facts round which and over which they flow are the same. Russia will do nothing towards facilitating a settlement. She has no more rights under the Treaty of Berlin than any other of the signatory Powers. There is not a word giving her the predominance she claims, nor to dictate the method of proceeding. She sits aloof and sings one song, "Dismiss everybody in office, and begin anew under my control." It may be a question some day whether a treaty, made for the general good, is to be virtually set aside because one of the parties will not agree to any course which does not enable her to secure her own domination. The other Powers, except France, who aids Russian intrigues in Abyssinia, for example, as well as in Bulgaria, entrench themselves within the letter and the spirit of the treaty; three of them certainly—Austria, England, and Italy, if not the fourth, Germany—mean to stand fast for the independence of the Balkan peninsular. Russia goes for its dependence on her, because it is the road to Stamboul; and France helps her, because she wants a fine chance for a blow at Alsace and Lorraine. The Germans have an idea that Russia is eager to fight them, in order to regain prestige; but they work for solid results in St. Petersburg—the full command of the land routes to the Bosphorus; so that, after all, the pending Bulgarian question is the real "box of lucifer matches" now, as it was last September. Russia will never recede, and sooner or later she will fight, or be forced to fight.

But, if the political problem has not altered, there is a great change, as you will have observed, in the military situation. It may be put in this way Russian mobilisation is an affair of months, perhaps a year. She is, and has been, since August, hard at work upon it. The mass of material is enormous, but clumsy and cumbrous, and worm-eaten by corruption. That is why the troops are edged slowly forward, even in winter. It is, in fact, mobilisation by slow degrees which we see—and the Austrians and Germans more keenly—now going on under our eyes. If Russia gains the time, she will have her force in order, and then she will act. But, Germany, Austria, and Italy can put their fighting men in trim and in motion within a month from the issue of the decisive order. At the same time the two greater Powers cannot stir a finger until the moment comes, because partial efforts throw the whole great scheme of mobilisation into disarray. All they can do is to prepare, oil the machinery, and keep it bright and fit by incessant labour. Now, the real question is how long will they be able to bear the increasing stress of this heavily-charged mass upon their frontiers and their finances? It is cheaper to endure than fight, but human nature is so made that prudent endurance has limits, especially when the patient knows that the adversary is only waiting until he believes himself ready to strike at an advantage. Therein lies the change—Russia is slowly but plainly arming and creeping up to the front; the Czar has forgiven M. Floquet—insignificant fact. France considers that she is ready to bound forth at a signal. It is a question of the breaking strain applied to the Triple Allies. The French—their fools even minimise the Floquet-Mohrenheim incident—are doing all they know to hoodwink public opinion as to their intentions and those of Russia; but they deceive none save fools. By the time this letter reaches Sydney, or soon after, decisive signs may have appeared to show whether the storm-cloud will burst, pass away, or remain a menace to the States and a grievous injury to the whole community.

HORSE TRACTION IN LONDON (CONTINUED).

In the war of conflicting interests, inseparable from closely allied systems of mechanical traction, it is almost impossible to extract exact data for calculations of relative expense. The Mekarski system of compressed air motors, to which reference has been made, was tried in 1876 on the Courbevoie line of the Tramway Nord in Paris, but there are no details accessible as to the results attained by that experiment. The Beaumont system, which was tried by the North Metropolitan Tramway Company in London in 1881, had its results committed to oblivion with seemingly willing but none the less surprising celerity. The only approach to a statement of working expenses is made by Mr. Scott Moncrieff, who worked his system in 1875 and 1877 on the Vale of Clyde Tramway, and estimated the cost price of working—including drivers' wages, lighting, and cleaning—was between 3d. and 4d. per mile run. But, then, Mr. Scott Moncrieff's car weighed 6¾ tons, or with its load of 40 passengers 10¼ tons, a weight scarcely adapted to lines made to bear from 4½ to 5½ tons only. For this reason, then, the pending trial of the Mekarski patent, if systematically recorded, will be of much value in supplying some missing factors which will assign the system a more or less exact place in the coming conflict of motors. It should be stated, however, that the weight of the Mekarski car, when last experimented on, was 4¾ tons, or, with its load of 30 passengers, 7 tons in all, and this will have to be improved upon to render it practically adaptable for street traffic in London.

THE LONDON TRAMWAYS.

In dealing with the last of the dividend-paying series of tramway companies, one is brought face to face with a slightly altered complexion of affairs. In connection with this company and to supply gaps in the system, an omnibus service is employed. The tramway lines, moreover, are divided into sections, over which a uniform fare of 1d. is charged. In one instance, indeed, the company's one-horse omnibuses plying over Blackfriars Bridge from the tramway terminus, on the Surrey side, to the bottom of Fleet-street, on the Middlesex shore, charge only ½d. fare. This company, like its neighbours, is managed by a body of six directors, supplemented by the usual body of executive officers. It has about 19½ miles of tramway open, and debits itself with £610,000 capital created and called, besides £12,500 "scrip certificates," which receive half the surplus revenue, after debenture and preference interests have been paid, and the ordinary shares of the company have received a dividend of 6 per cent. per annum. This arrangement, as well as a charge of £96,000 which the company brings forward from year to year at the debit of its revenue account, arises from some of the vicissitudes through which the company has passed, and represents the otherwise forgotten interests of companies amalgamated with the London Tramway, whose very names nowadays seem strange when repeated. During the year this company carried over its shorter service of line 52,180,082 passengers, a total equalling, it will be remembered, that of the North Metropolitan and London street trams combined. It carried these passengers 6,080,746 miles at an expense of 8·04d. per mile, and received for the same service 10·32d. per mile. When this is contrasted with the 12·24d. received per mile run on the North Metropolitan, and the 13·41d. on the London streets tramways, one wonders where the economy steps in which enables such handsome dividends to be declared. Despite the large number of miles run by the London tramways, its stud is slightly less than that of its larger transpontine neighbour, and, singular to say, these animals are fed at a cost fractionally exceeding 8s. 7d. a week, as compared with 9s., which at the least is paid by either of the other two companies previously reviewed. Perhaps one reason for this is the fact that in the London tramway stud of 2599 animals is comprised a number of mules, who are contented with a hardier and plainer diet than English or Belgian horses. While the North Metropolitan Tramway Co. buy largely of oats, the London Tramways do not. Taking the winter half-year ending 31st December, 1885, for an instance, the North Metropolitan Tram Company purchased 6035½qr. of oats at 18s. 8½d., costing in all £5643 1s. 1d., against the London tramways 300qr. at 21s. 3d., costing £318 19s. Of course, where the last-mentioned company paid £661 16s. 6d. for 2998cwt. of bran at 4s. 5d., the former only used 853cwt. at 4s. 6½d., amounting in all to £193 16s. 3d. In the hay and clover the London tramway purchased 2891 loads, as against the others 1997; but here the fodder seems to have been bought at about 3s. 11d. per load less than the North Metropolitan could obtain it. Of course one would imagine that bran at 4s. 5d. a cwt. was a rather inefficient substitute for oats at 18s. 2d. a quarter, but the proof of the pudding, as well as of the fodder, is in the eating of it, and the certificates of the respective companies' veterinary surgeons—all men of the very highest standing in their profession—in regard to the stocks at 30th June last, are very instructive. Here is what Dr. Fleming, of the War Office, and Dr. Gregory say in regard to the North-Metropolitan Tramway:—"We certify that on 30th June last the company possessed 2681 horses. On that date there were 2 sick and 45 lame." Here is what Dr. D. M'Gill says in regard to the London tramways:—"The stud at present is in a very satisfactory condition. We have 2599 animals. The number unfit for work is 25!" In the balance-sheets of the respective companies the North Metropolitan stud of 2681 horses is valued at £101,431, against £88,366, set down as the worth of the London tramway's 2599. The value of these facts, which are only set against each other, because the studs happen to be nearly on a par as far as number and mileage is concerned, lies in the seeming inference that more work can be done in a given time by a less valuable animal, fed on a more economical dietary scale, and, more surprising still, show superior health results. The question of how it is done is too eminently a practical one to be discussed here; but it ought to be said that in both companies the very best men that can be obtained are at the head of their respective departments, and that, however the result is attained, it is choice, and not a suspicion of inferior management that brings it about.

Of course, it is manifest that with penny fares a larger number of passengers must be carried than with fares at a higher rate, and the figures quoted justify the action of this company in pioneering the way for penny fares in London. Bearing well in mind that this is only over about 19½ miles of street tramway, rather more than half of that of the North Metropolitan, and about twice as much as the London street tramways, it should be noted that the gross receipts of the London tramways for the past year amount to £258,373 against £311,206 in the one case and £84,749, in the other. Doubtless, the expenditure is higher, but it compares favourably with either of the other two companies, being 8·04d. per mile against 8·95d. in the case of the North Metropolitan, and 10·2d. in the case of the London Street Tramway. For the year it amounted to £205,723 17s. 2d. The same general rules as to traffic management apply here as in the case of the other two companies already discussed. The drivers and conductors are classified, and their wages run from 4s. 9d. to 6s. per day. In general terms, a recapitulation of the internal arrangements for traffic management read like a copy of either of the other two. The way-bills are arranged on the same general principle and fixed at the same general rate, and as may be imagined on a line so short but so actively occupied, delays are exceedingly brief. Tickets punched by the bell-punch in front of the passengers denote the differing rates of fares by their different colours—generally white and blue and red. The conductors hand in their bags at the end of each journey, and the trams which stop on call show their destination in the usual way. Two horses are used on all the tramway lines, but some of the connecting omnibuses have only one horse. In these cases the omnibus which has no outside seats and is capable of holding 12 inside only, are fitted with a glass till or money-box, into which passengers as they enter drop their halfpence. The money-box holds the amount in view until the driver is satisfied that everyone has paid his fare, when the moving of a lever drops the money out of sight. These drivers are also supplied with change up to half a crown, which can be passed through a hole in the roof to any passenger requiring it. There are about 27 omnibuses in daily use, and about 228 cars, which are of the usual construction. This company lays aside 50 per cent. per annum for depreciation of harness and equipments; and although more fortunate in regard to horseflesh than some of their neighbours, their estimate as to the average life of a tram horse, viz., five years, acquiesces in the current view.

This tramway, as originally indicated, has undergone a good many vicissitudes since it first started as the Metropolitan Tramway Company with a line running from Western Bridge to Brixton Hill, and in no instance has this been shown more than in regard to its permanent way. As a contrast to the mode in which these lines are constructed now, a few particulars concerning the early London Tramway may not be uninteresting. The rail was little else than a flat bar having a narrow and shallow groove in its upper surface, with a fillet on the under side and bedded on a longitudinal sleeper. The rail was 4in. wide and 1⅞in. in thickness. The groove was formed with sloping sides ⅞in. deep, with a width of ⅝in. at the bottom and double this width at the surface of the rail. The tread or rolling surface for the wheels had a width of about 2in., when, of course, the inner edge of the tread was at the half width of the rail; whilst the ledge on the other side of the groove was about ⅞in. wide at the surface. The rails were bedded on timber sleepers 4in. wide and 6in. in depth, and were fished with ⅞in. wrought-iron plates 12in. long and 4in. wide applied below the joint. The joint was fixed with four vertical spikes, two to each rail, driven through the rails at the bottom of the groove, and the fishplates into the sleeper. In this line were first employed the transverse sleepers, which was to ameliorate certain difficulties connected with the vertical fastening and to supply an iron tie of a substantial character. The ground was excavated 12in. to 14in. to receive these sleepers, and after the longitudinal sleepers were laid and fixed with the rails complete they were brought up to the required level by concrete packing below the cross sleepers, then the whole space was filled in with lime concrete to the height necessary for receiving the pavement of stone or asphalt, when, of course, the concrete had to be brought up higher. The cost of the line thus made was £15,010 per double mile, and it lasted for six years. The reconstruction of the way was commenced in 1877, and continued until 1880. In all about 15 miles were reconstructed, and on a large proportion of this length, nearly seven miles, new rails of steel have been laid down, and the way generally has been lifted and relaid. The cost of this reconstruction and renewal averaged about £2000 per mile of single way—the same as has been expended on the North Metropolitan Tramway. During the last two years the permanent way has absorbed about 11 per cent. per annum of the total working expenses.

This closes the list of the dividend-paying companies, and after a brief review of the four minor corporations which are not quoted on the Stock Exchange, a short review of some very evident factors in this important element of difference will enable us to discuss and dismiss the steam motor viewed in the light of its London experience.

OBSERVANCE OF GOOD FRIDAY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. H. Tennent Donaldson's letter in to-day's issue is very opportune. I would like in addition to call attention to an occurrence on last Good Friday, and which I see is announced to be repeated this next Friday.

Pedestrian sports were carried out last Good Friday evening at the Carrington Running Grounds. There were between 2500 and 3000 persons present, including a few females. About 100 of the number were "bookmakers" and their assistants, vociferously shouting the odds about the respective runners. This must have been annoying to the residents in the immediate vicinity, some of whom perhaps wished to spend a quiet evening.

Sir, I would submit that under our existing laws and regulations such proceedings should not be allowed on that day. I think I am correct in saying that by statute the theatres are not permitted to be open for any dramatic representation, nor the public houses, even for one hour on that day. But, surely, if pedestrian professional contests, with the not-elevating influences connected therewith, are recognised as legal, and in consequence treated as desirable, there can, or ought, to be no legal bar to the theatres being opened for the representation of any piece the management would choose to put on. Also, the public-houses should be allowed to open in all fairness. Further, although Mr. H. Austin objects to horse racing on the Saturday following Good Friday, he is quite out of court—the principal day should be Good Friday. Then, again, why should not the shopkeeper be allowed to transact business, if he please, on that day.

With your permission, I have said enough to call public attention to this matter, and I trust the proper authorities will, in the interest of the public law and order, take steps to prevent the contests taking place. I am, &c.,

EPPS'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.—"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well-fortified with pure blood, and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette. Made simply with boiling water or milk. AT THE NEW MINING EXCHANGE.

BY VAURIEN.

Life has pains; but it has pleasures as well. It must be pleasant, for instance, for well-dressed women to notice (if they ever do) that their less fortunate sisters pass by with an air of forced hauteur. When one thinks how intolerably dreary existence would be if people never trod on each others' corns or, in colloquial language, "pegged each other back," the reflection that the sun himself shall die before man's desire to make his brother "sit up" ceases, is more than dulcet—it is captivating. But of all human pleasures the greatest, perhaps, is in sitting in a cane-bottomed chair and observing people clamourously bidding 5s. for mining shares of which you hold many thousands—which cost you 6d. Compared with this enjoyment, all others are really tame. There is in it a conviction that everything is ordered for the best, and that those who question this axiomatic truth should be closely watched. They are no fit companions for you or yours. It is during what is called a "mining boom" that some delightful human characteristics come to the front. More true wisdom can be secured in an hour by observing the way a digger is treated the evening before he sends his pick into the reef, and the morning after, than by reading everything from the cuneiform tablets of Assyria to Swinbourne's latest erotic. The "Bill Smith" of Tuesday, for whose opinion no one cared a fig, is the "Mr. William Smith" of Thursday, whose views on all matters, whether of public wealth or weal, are received with deference. This train of thought was suggested by a visit paid yesterday to the new Sydney Mining Exchange, where men who woo, and often win, the coy goddess Fortune meet daily to tempt again their capricious mistress. The new Exchange has its raison d'être partly in the fact that the old ones had become too haughty and exclusive. Institutions, like men, have a tendency to become dignified as age and prosperity creep upon them. Again, the impetus given to speculation by the vast wealth of Broken Hill, and by the daily discovery of the precious metals over a wide extent of country, necessitated the opening of a place where men could meet face to face and settle their differences without the intervention of a third party. Man is essentially a trading animal. No other living creature has the most rudimentary knowledge of barter. There is little doubt that the inferior animals have many pleasures of a purely physical kind. But from two sources of enjoyment they appear to be quite cut off. They have no idea of dress—seem to derive no satisfaction from a glossy coat while their neighbour's is ragged—and they have never evinced a desire to trade. When one creature has something which another desires, the latter, if weak, conceals his longings, and if strong, helps himself without a thought of apologising. It is probable that in the infancy of society man himself did much the same. Indeed, evidence is not wanting that he does so still when the opportunity offers. Unnumbered ages of experience and progress, however, have taught him that in most cases, the custom of taking something while giving nothing is apt to be attended with inconvenience. Men as a rule have a droll prejudice in favour of retaining what they consider theirs until an equivalent is offered. This is the origin of barter. Now that force, at least between individuals of the same community or nation, has ceased to be recognised as a legitimate method of securing what you desire, some other plan had to be adopted for reaching the same ends by gentler means. The cardinal rule in barter, as in most other human occupations, is to give as little as you conveniently can, and take as much as you can honestly carry. It is in mining that this golden rule is brought to a degree of perfection seldom reached in other pursuits. The necessity for a mining exchange thus becomes obvious.

The new Sydney Exchange is centrally situated in George-street, not far from the General Post Office, but on the opposite side. It consists of a large hall on the ground floor, the anterior portion being open to the public while the central space is reserved for members. Along the left wall, at a convenient distance from the ground, runs a single row of wooden letter boxes, the names of the persons entitled to open them being painted legibly on the outside. These names are highly suggestive. They point to the fact that their possessors saw the light under every meridian from the one passing through Cork to that infringing on Canton. A goodly number of them, too, indicate that the question regarding the ultimate destination of the lost tribes is in a fair way to be settled. Wherever men assemble to buy, bet, or barter, there will be found patronymics which carry the mind back to the waters of Babylon, if not to the building of the Pyramids. One elderly representative of this enterprising people stands just inside the rails, and interpolates sardonically humorous remarks during the auctioneer's occasional flashes of silence. His thumbs are aggressively insinuated in the armpits of his resplendent waistcoat, and his white hat, tilted rakishly, appears as if ready to fall back with suppressed laughter at the pungent mirth scintillating beneath it. The whole pose is indicative of a person with whom it would be simple imbecility to "try it on"—whether with mining scrip or doubtful jewellery. Meanwhile, the auctioneer calls out the names of the various companies on the list, and after a pause, asks, with a plaintive earnestness through which a thread of pathos runs, "any sellers?" This question is always answered affirmatively. The price, however, is so far beyond the reach of ordinarily prosperous citizens that the gentleman in the white vest suggests with frank good-nature the injudiciousness of sacrificing valuable property when there was no pressing need. "Any buyer?" the auctioneer continues with a sort of desperate resignation, as if determined to see the matter out although the prospect is gloomy. The pause becomes oppressive. At last a diffident bid, ranging from one-third to one-half the figure demanded, is heard from one of the central chairs. For a moment the auctioneer looks deprecatingly at the ceiling. Put into words, his thoughts would probably assume this shape:—"Gent'emen, my time is valuable. This sort of thing is, no doubt, extremely entertaining to you, but I'm sure you'll pardon me if I cannot fix upon the precise point where my laugh comes in. This refined language of yours may be adapted for opera bouffe, but it is a little out of place in a busy mining exchange. When you have worked off some of the superabundant animal spirits which do you so much credit, perhaps we may come to business. For a while it appears as if no bridge could span the gulf between buyer and seller. By degrees, however, they come closer, the former creeping bashfully up, while the latter slips uneasily down. At last they entrench themselves within sight of each other, and neither seems disposed to budge. This is the transaction's culminating point of interest. In such circumstances it would be well for the vendor to remember the advice given so long ago to the disdainful shepherdess in the forest of Ardennes—"Sell when you can."

The railing in front divides the assembly into members and non-members, or, roughly speaking, into sheep and goats. It would be ungenerous to venture an opinion as to the side on which each species is to be found. It is entertaining and instructive withal to sit on this railing and observe the people. It is not to be supposed that all, or even the bulk of those present, have shares to sell, or are desirous of buying any. In large cities there is a human flatsam that finds its way into police courts, auction rooms, mining exchanges, and other places of public resort. The persons composing this class are of the most heterogeneous kind—some well to do, and only anxious to kill time; others out at elbows, and thrown back on the mild excitement of witnessing transactions in which they have no share. Here are doctors without patients, barristers innocent of briefs, and merchants whose rich argosies have not yet come into port—probably because they never put to sea. On the opening of the new Exchange the business was much brisker than now. During the present week the languid way in which the bidding proceeded was depressing. But even at the busiest time the excitement was not to be compared with that of Ballarat or Sandhurst during "flush times." For some reason or another, whether because of the sensuous climate alone or of the climate combined with other and more obscure causes, the Sydney people are in many ways much less demonstrative than their southern neighbours. They go about their business as decorously as Knickerbocker's New Yorkers before the swearing, carousing, cock-fighting British scandalised the quiet Dutchmen with their ungodly mirth. Although it is to New South Wales the territory belongs which has given such a fillip to the search for minerals, yet Sydney itself has only been reached by the very outskirts of the mining cyclone whose foci were in Adelaide and Melbourne. It is just as well that such has been the case, for it is only necessary to take down a map, say of the Broken Hill district, in order to see that there are scores of leases which, unless Australian lodes run in a peculiarly erratic style, might just as well be at Bondi or Botany. A visit to the Exchange shows how this silver Cinderella has put all her sisters—the Demoiselles Gold, Tin, Copper, and Mercury—in the shade. She, in fact, occupies the whole stage, back and front, while they stand neglected at the wings. Even the blackboard on which the fluctuations in her charms appear, is a much more pretentious article than that on which her sisters' attractions are huddled away. The only rival that appears to make any headway at all against this imperious young M'selle Argentum is one Miss Coal. In a prominent part of the Exchange is a huge sample of the latter, recently obtained from some place in the colony. It is one solid lump and is wedged into a great box which, standing as it does on end, is not unlike those uncanny cases seen ranged along the wall by the terrified O'Shanter. Men come and go, look at this massive specimen of anthracite, read the label telling where it was found, and then wander listlessly on with the air of people who, introduced by an officious friend without desire, separate without regret.

A good deal has been said and written lately in connection with gambling, particularly when it assumes the form of backing horses. There are worthy persons who would remove every temptation, not from the path of youth alone, but from that of mature manhood as well. It never occurs to these estimable people that the man who is good because he has not the chance of being bad is not nearly as good as he looks. The risk of loss, or to put it differently, the spirit of gambling enters into every transaction into which man enters for purposes of gain. The industrious person who purchases a fish or a head of cabbage for a penny on the chance of being able to sell it for twopence before it had too long crossed the border in the direction of decomposition is not after all so very superior to him who thinks himself a fair whist-player, or believes a certain horse to be swifter than another, and backs his opinion with a wager. Lean over the Exchange rails yonder and say what difference there is between the respectable-looking man buying for an anticipated rise and the affable, pronounce-nosed person in the Randwick paddock offering the odds on a fall. In one particular, at least, mining, or rather scrip dealing, which is quite a different thing, is singularly like horse dealing. There it an inexpugnable body of evidence in existence to show that since the age of stone no man who dealt in horses ever felt the least reluctance to supply his best friend with a "roarer" at a high figure. A similar body of testimony is on hand to prove that since the Phœnicians traded with the Ancient Briton for tin, no person who held shares in a mine and expected a fall would hesitate to recommend them to his next door neighbours. It is only when you once get a firm grasp of this fundamental truth that you can understand the kindly feeling which prompts the sharp-featured old gentleman in front of the auctioneer then to whisper his candid opinion as to the certainty of a big rise in say, Block 14. The old sinner is unleading, and the quiet, unobtrusive-looking stranger at the far end is one of his principal "trotters-out." They are quite unknown to each other in public, but long after the Exchange has closed for the day these two lambs, their appetites whetted by the consciousness of having done their duty to their neighbours and themselves, will be seen in pleasant converse over a cosy dinner in the suburbs.

GOVERNMENT GAZETTE.

The following official notifications were published in yesterday's Government Gazette:—

APPOINTMENTS.—Mr. George Read, L.R.C.S., Irel., to be Government medical officer and vaccinator for the district of St. George; Mr. Andrew Semple, M.B. and mast. surg., Univ. Glas., to be Government medical officer and vaccinator for the district of Quirindi; Mr. Herbert Alexander Lowe, to be an additional district trustee of the Mudgee branch of the Savings Bank of New South Wales; Mr. William Blakemore, J.P., to be the licensing magistrate and official member of the licensing court for the licensing district of Nymagee, vice O'Neill, relieved; Mr. Henry E. A. Miller, J.P., to be an appointed member of the licensing court for the licensing district of Nymagee, vice Jaques, resigned.

POLICE APPOINTMENTS.—The following members of the police force to be district inspectors for the licensing districts preceding their respective names, to take effect from the 1st instant:—Gundagai: Acting Sub-Inspector James Cornett, vice Carroll, retired. Walgett: Sub-Inspector William Wright, vice Cameron, retired.

PROMOTION OF TEACHERS.—The following teachers have gained promotion by examination:—2 B: George E. Lyell, Brown Mountain; Ellen Scott, Morungulan; Henry Tonkin, Swamp Oak. Provisionally 3 A: Charlotte Abbott, Curlewis; Alfred E. Crane, Mumbil; William G. Davies, Galathera-road (provisional); Mary Hill, Brightling Park. Provisionally, 3 B: Annie L. Hamilton, Yathella; George E. Jones, Wooloban; Joseph M. Kelly, Dinga Dingi; Helena M'Laren, Bulga Hut (provisional). Provisionally 3 C: Michael Grogan, Nurung; Georgiana J. Hunt, Kingvale. Provisional classifications confirmed: George C. Gillespie, Tamworth, 2 B; William Wiseman, Beaufort, 3 B.

NEW PUBLIC SCHOOL.—It is proposed to establish a Public school at St. Ives, near Gordon.

RETIRED FROM THE CIVIL SERVICE.—Mr. James Thomson, chief inspector of public revenue collectors' accounts and consulting accountant to the Treasury; Mr. Michael J. Doyle, teacher, Public school, Manilla; Mr. Obadiah Willans, clerk of petty sessions at Queanbeyan; and Mr. John T. Morrison, instrument fitter, Electric Department.

LEGALLY QUALIFIED MEDICAL PRACTITIONERS.—The following persons have submitted to the New South Wales Medical Board the necessary testimonials and qualifications:—Hayden, James Augustus, Mem. Lic. Midwif, 1866; R. Coll. Surg. Eng., Lic. Soc. Apoth. Lon., 1866. Long, Sinclair Andrew, Lic. R. Coll. Surg. Ire., 1886; Lic. K. and Q. Coll. Phys. Ire., 1886. Huxtable, Louis Ralston, M.B. Mast. Surg., 1881, Univ. Edin. Drinkwater, Charles, Mem. R. Coll. Surg. Eng., 1886; Lic. R. Coll. Phys. Lond., 1887; Lic. Soc. Apoth. Lond., 1886. Rutledge, David Dunlop, M.B. Univ. Sydney, 1888.

TENDERS ACCEPTED.—The following tenders have been accepted:—Department of Public Instruction: Albury, repairs and improvements, E. Scanlan; Araluen, repairs, &c., H. and J. Hinchcliffe; Bathurst, painting and repairs, G. Donald; Bexley, residence, J. R. Smith; Balmain, alterations and improvements, &c., L. le Breton and Son; Cook's Hill, improvements and repairs, J. J. Fry; Canowindra, class-room, Geo. T. Collins; Coraki, lavatory and hatroom, Flynn and Eustace; Dural, weathershed, Geo. Hudson; Goulburn, girls' department, C. Goode and Son; Killawarra, residence, W. G. K. Smith; Kempsey East, kitchen, J. Healey; Liverpool, closets and drainage, A. F. Carter; Maitland West, water-closets, fencing, &c., T. H. Blick; Moree, new buildings and alterations, Jas. Cornell; Round Hill, residence, W. Sara; St. Albans, addition to residence, J. W. Laughton; Windeyer, repairs, &c., W. Mulholland; Wombat, repairs, W. G. Wood; Wellington, painting and repairs, Jas. Halliday; Wickham, additions to residence, Thos. Southon; Belmore River, fencing, David Black; Eden, additions and repairs, Henry Puxley; Tyndale, teacher's residence and improvements, W. Kinnear. General Post Office: Mr. George Parkin, of No. 10, Bond-street, Sydney, for the supply of brass labels for mail bags, as required from time to time during the current year.

PARLIAMENTARY DEGRADATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—The question as to what will prove the most effective measure towards raising the moral tone of the Legislative Assembly is gradually being forced upon the public mind by the habitual tendency to degrade the highest institution in the land; and one which must of necessity be taken as a criterion by the outside world, of the moral tone pervading the minds of the people, since it is of their own forming.

The disgraceful scenes that have for some time past characterised the proceedings of Parliament are, no doubt, attributable in a great measure to the abuse of that which should be held sacred by every true member of Parliament—I mean Parliamentary privilege.

The recent disgraceful scene that has just occurred shows clearly enough how this privilege can be abused. Men imbued with little or no self-respect—fortunately few in number,

> "Drag down the mystic banner of our rights,
> And trail it in the mire of sordid gain."

There is also another cause, which seems to me to be intimately connected with an immoral Parliament, and it is party government. Party government is the cause of a great many of the disorderly scenes transacted in our Assembly. No sooner does one set of men attain the ascendancy, and attempt the government of the country, than the opposing parties set to work in good earnest to invent the best means of displacing them. The fact that they have been placed in power by the substantial vote of the electors does not deter the bulldog tendencies of the Opposition in its endeavour to obtain place and power. Naturally this has the effect of forcing a government to buy votes, and to bolster up its forces by means far from unquestionable. This was instanced the other day by the Premier descending from his high estate to take part in a by-election, and denouncing in unmeasured terms one who, if elected, might prove a formidable opponent of the Government.

If a system could be introduced by which those placed in power by the voice of the people could remain so for a fixed period, after the manner of the United States, party spirit would in a great measure close with the close of the election, and the legislative ability of the members would be directed more effectually in the interests and for the benefit of the country.

I am, &c.,

Sydney, March 23. RICHARD MORSE.

OUR DISEASED DOGS OUR DISGRACE AND DANGER.

BY PROFESSOR A. STUART, M.D.

The reader probably thinks I am going to speak on hydrophobia, but the sequel will show that there are other conditions, the consideration of which is more pressing than that of hydrophobia. I believe no instance of this terrible malady has yet occurred in these lands, though cases have been talked of. As to the chance of its ever manifesting itself amongst us, opinion is divided. I have often heard the question discussed, and for myself I see no reason why it should not one day make its appearance here. The public prints have lately been full of Pasteur and his remedy for the disease, but is it not better to prevent it. What follows will show how in Bavaria this has been practically accomplished, and what has been done there to mitigate and, maybe, stamp out the disease ought certainly to be done here more or less completely in order to prevent it ever taking root in our soil. The Bavarian methods (see further on) of dealing with rabies and hydrophobia are applicable to other diseases, such as hydatids. This is the form in which the tapeworm of the dog makes its appearance in man, and the condition is a peculiar curse of Australia. It comes to high and low, rich and poor, not only to dwellers in the country, but to those even that have never been away from the city. The presence of these unbidden guests constitutes a visitation, terrible in its presence, but so slow and insidious in its development that the patient discovers its presence and realises its importance often only when it is too late. Largely owing to the slow insidious growth of the tumour—often causing comparatively little inconvenience, although it may reach an enormous size—the public, to my mind, has never rightly grasped the magnitude of the evil. Yet it is already a great plague, and, as I am assured by competent authorities, it is on the increase. Let us, therefore, bestir ourselves and destroy the enemy, for of all diseases, the methods for its prevention are easily comprehensible and readily applicable. We know its mode of origin; it is no mysterious subtle miasm, not even a bacillus; but a comparatively large particle—an egg. The eggs of the tapeworm escape from the dog, and are scattered broadcast. We know not when and where we may swallow them, for a single worm goes on producing eggs by the thousand, and these, owing to their great vitality and small actual size, may be carried long distances by wind and water and so may poison more or less of a whole neighbourhood. Now, the only way to get rid of the egg is to get rid of the tapeworm that produces it, and the only way to get rid of the tapeworm is to get rid of the dog that harbours it—mainly ownerless dogs, as we shall see later on.

I now turn to another loathsome disease, namely, mange. Who has not been daily disgusted in Sydney by the loathsome simulacra of dogs scratching their very skins off till their bodies are raw and bleeding, peering out between eyelids clogged with matter, dragging their emaciated forms wearily along, aimlessly wandering from nowhere to nowhere, vainly seeking relief from the burning heat and ceaseless itching that torment them day and night. Spurned by the once kindly hand, cared for by no one, they pick up a living anywhere and anyhow, till one day death mercifully delivers them. During a five years' residence in Sydney few sights in our streets have so often and so painfully moved me as these dogs. In European countries I never saw them in anything approaching such a number. "Mange" is a term rather loosely used by the public for many skin diseases of animals. Some of them are due to the presence of animal parasites, some to vegetable parasites, and some are not parasites at all. In the "Book of the Dog" (Cassell, Petter, and Co., 1881), we read that mange proper is caused by two parasites—the Sarcoptes canis, that burrows into the skin, and the Dermatodectes canis, that holds on to the skin. These are "highly contagious, for hardly can a healthy dog lie on the spot where a mangy dog has recently reclined without being affected with the loathsome disease." "The parasites that may drop or crawl from a dog on to the floor, where he lies, may live there for several days; it is well known that on man they will live for weeks, and, although they are not supposed to breed on man, still they excite an irritable disease, which for a time is nearly as intolerable as itch itself." A third animal mange-parasite is the Demodex or Acarus folliculorum. Again, Flemming, in his well-known "Manual of Veterinary Sanitary Sciences and Police" (Chapman and Hall, 1875), writes:—"The sarcoptic scabies of the dog is transmissible to the human species, and numerous cases are recorded in proof of this, as well as in evidence of the similarity of the diseases produced in both."

Another variety of mange is that due to a vegetable parasite. It is more properly called a "ringworm," and affects cattle, domesticated animals, and man very frequently in Australia.

Here then we have abundant evidence to show that mange in dogs is by no means innocuous to man.

Now, the people of Sydney with their comparatively abundant leisure time and means, are just the persons to have dogs, and to throw away waste food on which dogs can feed. Then the genial climate and many vacant pieces of land render more easy the nomadic life of dogs. Thus, dogs in Sydney are very apt to stray. Now, the Bavarian experience spoken of hereafter, shows that the neglected, uncared-for, stray dogs are the dangerous dogs. It is this class that we should get rid of by the means hereafter suggested.

In the Nineteenth Century for August, 1887, is an interesting article by Guggenberger, describing the extremely complete dog regulations of Bavaria in particular, and of Germany in general. It is futile to hope for anything so complete in this country, but the results are such as should be noted. The regulation came in force in 1876 in Bavaria. Before this time the number of dogs reported as rabid or suspected, was over 800 per annum. Now it is about 10 per annum. Before the regulations the number of cases of hydrophobia averaged 26 per annum; now it is only ½ per annum, i.e., one in every two years. At the same time the number of dogs still remains at ⅔ of what it used to be. Thus, the hydrophobia cases are only 2 per cent. of what they used to be, while the dogs are still 66 per cent.; or the hydrophobia decrease has been 33 times as great as the dogs' decrease. So that it is clear that the ⅓ of the dogs that has disappeared owing to the tax regulations included nearly all the dangerous dogs. Danger to human life in Bavaria from this cause is thus seen to be now infinitesimal. Laws have succeeded in preventing what science, through Pasteur, has so largely been seeking to cure. And is not prevention better than cure? And what is said of rabies and hydrophobia may also be said of other canine diseases—mutatis mutandis—not to speak of the æsthetic element in the matter, and this is not inconsiderable. Guggenberger winds up by saying:—"In short, in a country where the conditions of human life are yet very far from being either felicitous or ideal, canine misery can hardly be said to exist; and among the dumb races of the earth that have come under human jurisdiction, no class of creatures probably has a better time of it from first to last than the nineteenth century German dog."

The results of the inquiries of the recent English Commission completely support the German regulations, and their first two recommendations are—1. The destruction of all stray dogs, whether in town or country; and 2. The keeping down of superfluous dogs by a tax or other means. The second we do, but in an extremely perfunctory way; the first we do only in a spasmodic and bungling fashion, when centennial visitors are coming to see us, and we want to be clean and decent, while they are here.

In December last men were appointed to capture and destroy the stray dogs in Sydney, and 1500 disappeared. 1500 in one month! Of course mistakes may have been made. Valuable dogs may have been destroyed along with the valueless, sound dogs with the diseased, owing simply to the hurry and want of system with which the deed was done. A cry uprose at the slaughter of the innocents. Then came retrenchment, and now the dog-catching having ceased we are back into our dark days of dog disease. What is to be done?

This at least should be done—there should be a dog-catcher constantly employed under the Inspector of Nuisances to capture all collarless dogs, keep them for a certain time, at the end of which, if unclaimed, he should destroy them by a quick and painless death, as is done elsewhere. Policemen, for obvious reasons, cannot do it; and should not be asked to do it. To men this officer would soon be a manifest blessing; to dogs he would come as a blessing in disguise. No one could be so great a benefactor, at one stroke, to the human and to a subject race as could—the dog-catcher.

MR. DIBBS'S ANTI-CHRISTIAN UTTERANCES IN PARLIAMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As your columns are always open to the suppression of everything that is low and base, and the elevation of the morals of the community, I kindly ask your permission to offer a few remarks relative to the language Mr. Dibbs has made use of in the Assembly. Now, Sir, it is the first time during a long experience I have either read or heard of such language being used in a public or private assemblage.

The calling our blessed Saviour an "unfortunate wretch" I consider an insult to the whole Christian community, and especially to the "Church of England," to which body I presume Mr. Dibbs professes to belong. How, Sir, I ask, can we expect our young men to be aspirants to everything that is noble and good in the religious or political arena, when we see men holding high positions mocking at religion, and trampling under foot the good qualities that should belong to an assembly of gentlemen? I hope the day of political reckoning is not far distant, when Mr. Dibbs and others will be weighed in the balance and be found wanting.

I am, &c.,

March 23. MORALITY.

OFFICE-HOLDERS.—The office held by the kidneys is one of importance. They act as nature's sluice-way to carry off the extra liquids from the system, and with them the impurities, both those that are taken into the stomach and those that are formed in the blood. Any clogging or inaction of these organs is therefore important. Dr. Bell's Bitters are nature's efficient assistant in keeping the kidneys in good working order, strengthening them and inducing healthy action. If you would get well and keep well, take Dr. Bell's Bitters.—[ADVT.]

ROUGH ON ITCH.—"Rough on Itch" cures skin humours, eruptions, ringworm, tetter, salt rheum, frosted feet, chilblains, itch, ivy poison, barber's itch.—[ADVT.]

AS YOU LIKE IT.

"Ay, marry, now unmuzzle your wisdom."—ROSALIND.

It is quite right that we should be indignant—enraged if you like—at this sudden change of venue for the settlement of Parliamentary grievances and legislative differences of opinion from the smoking-room to the Sacred Palaver Arena, the Holy of Holies inside the brass rods. But where great provocation is given, there outraged human nature will naturally retaliate. To fight out a grievance or a difference in the smoking-room, or in any place within the precincts of, but outside, the "House," implies in the combatants a sort of malice prepense to which a certain amount of deliberation is necessary. To smite the provoker in flagrante delicto on the spot where he has sped the winged words which wound worse than a cat o' nine tails, or a horsewhip, may be more "unparliamentary" in a technical sense, but is more natural in a human sense. Therefore, however humiliated some of us may feel by the assault committed on Mr. Haynes, others will balance the provocation against the offence, and take note of some facts which, so far, have not had due weight given to them. Parliamentary prudery is hardly a suitable luxury for this age, at least for this country, for we must take our representatives as the voters choose to give them to us. They are a poor lot—a very poor lot, taking them as a whole; and have been so ever since their intellectual and political poverty was made more manifest by their increased numbers. It is the hollowest hypocrisy to judge them by standards that are altogether inapplicable. Mr. Fletcher, under provocation seems to have made a violent effort to drag that person out of the Chamber to some place where he would probably have thrashed or strangled him past "parliamentary" recognition. But in carrying out his purpose Mr. Fletcher, unfortunately, committed an assault in the very place where an assault ought not to have been committed—the aforesaid Holy of Holies.

• • • • • •

The worst of it is, that there has been so bad a record put up by this present Parliament that each successive outrage has for some time ceased to produce the normal effect which it would have once produced, for we are becoming inured to our disgraces, and tolerant of their authors. Mr. Fletcher's offence is the natural sequel of a series of antecedent outrages; and perhaps hardly the sequel. Some deadly thrust of a knife or ping of a revolver (with the usual inquest to follow) will be the true sequel. In this aspect of the probable developments of Parliamentary institutions it was perhaps right for Dr. Renwick in the Council on Thursday night to stick up for the necessity of completing the Macquarie-street Hospital. I don't altogether agree with the gentleman whom Sir Henry Parkes (our nomenclator-general) once described as a "curious little philosopher" to the extent of spending from £60,000 to £150,000 over the present buildings in order that Parliamentary cases from next door should be attended to by specialists at the country's expense; but until the new Parliament House is ready for occupation, with its own shooting-gallery, hospital, and morgue, perhaps it would be in favorem vitæ if the appliances of the existing hospital in Macquarie-street were made available for Parliamentary cases. We can't go wrong in looking a little ahead in this matter.

• • • • • •

If, however, there were any reasonable hope of our new Parliament Houses being completed in the lifetime of the present generation, and being independent of outside assistance for the treatment of urgent surgical cases provided by the Assembly, I should have to admit that Sir Alfred Stephen's resolution affirming the inexpediency of finishing the present "pretentious ruin" at a cost of from £60,000 to £150,000, and the expediency of erecting in its vicinity brick buildings to supersede the present structure of very inflammable wood, would seem absolutely satisfactory, as it seemed to 20 out of 26 of the Conscript Fathers on Thursday night. But if we could put the Assembly out of the question, can any sane man say that a site in Macquarie-street is the proper site for a city hospital, near the northern boundaries of the city, or that one huge hospital intended to eclipse the Prince Alfred Hospital at the other end of the city' and to immortalise some fussy persons (one or more), is as useful in the interests of humanity as two or three less pretentious, but far more accessible and more suitable, buildings? Of course the doctors must be considered (for they don't consider themselves) as well as the "poor people" commiserated by Dr. Renwick. And the doctors, as a matter of fact, at least those who live in Macquarie-street, seem inclined to waive all sentimental objections, and to go for an hospital "agin their own places." For my part, always supposing that new Parliament House built and properly equipped with hospital appliances, the resolution of the Council seems to me to dispose very sensibly of the whole trouble. Dr. Renwick's threat of tremendous compensation to the trustees, who have no beneficial interest whatever in the site, or the "ruin" they have so foolishly erected thereon, reads like nonsense. But Sir Henry Parkes, it is said, is in favour of the present site, and as, by virtue of his dictatorship, he knows more about hospitals than the amateur majority of the Council, and perhaps more than the doctors themselves, and as he has a solid, and stolid, majority in the Assembly to say "ditto," the resolution of the Council certainly possesses rather a Debating Society sort of importance after all.

• • • • • •

Nothing of any value has been contributed to the Land Bill debate since Mr. Hawken moved the adjournment of it. The talk has been the disjointed talk of legislators who felt that they must—not that they ought to talk. None of them has attempted to put a finger on the really vicious principles embodied in the measure, or to show how absolutely unpalatable some of its supposed "benefits" will prove to be; the juggling provisions that would palter with us in a double sense by making us believe that we were to be endowed with tenant rights, and to be munificently subsidised in our struggles to overcome the rabbit pest, when in fact we were only being inveigled into the huge Mortgage Labyrinth of the Minister, from which what Mortgagee will ever escape, unless he has a Parliamentary vote worth squaring at some critical moment. Still it is satisfactory to note that some of the speakers have declared their intention to vote against the third reading, unless——. There may be much virtue in that "unless," and there may be much that is not virtue. What is quite certain is that No. 2 bill will not, without enormous "concessions," become law in this suffering country. What makes me venture on this prediction with some confidence, is that many people who blessed Mr. Garrett and his Land Bill a few weeks ago, now talk as if they had discovered the snares and pitfalls so cunningly covered up by masses of verbiage that nobody would suspect of harbouring mischief.

If Mr. George Knox had died at home, instead of at Cairo, the last sad tribute of respect and affection which the living can pay to the dead would have been his best obituary notice. But as we are debarred from paying that tribute, a few words in this column may not be out of season. One characteristic feature of Mr. Knox, as a lawyer, was an almost imperturbable serenity, which seemed to be a sort of halo to an intellect of a remarkably high order. Another characteristic was an ever-present sense of duty, and this was developed in him almost to a point of threatening to become a weakness. It is not often that one has to note these evidences of deep-set convictions in lawyers. The colonial practitioner not infrequently carries his convictions on his sleeve, and daws may peck at them without in any way hurting his feelings or injuring or benefiting themselves. But to Mr. Knox, his profession was a mission, and no man that I can remember acted up to an ideal more thoroughly than he did. If his health had been that of a robust man, I think he would have gone into Parliament. Had he done so, Parliament would have soon felt his influence, and respected him as he deserved to be respected. He was an accomplished scholar, a learned lawyer, and a sterling gentleman, and that is not by any means a common combination.

More letters upon the "white slave" question; and, as might be expected, mostly upon one side. The originator of the correspondence disagrees with the views expressed by me on Wednesday, but I cannot help it. I have confessed that I should be glad to think myself wrong in this matter, but I cannot; and now that the said originator threatens us with immediate legislative interference, I may be allowed to say a word or two more. For this question, after all, is not one which affects the drapers' assistants, or the drapers only. It touches every class; it introduces a principle, just as the Eight Hours Bill does. If you introduce an Act which forbids shopkeepers to keep their shops open after a certain hour, you do two things—not one only. You forbid the shopkeeper to keep his shop open, and we all clap our hands and cry out about the beneficence of the law—but. There is always a "but" in these cases; and this is a fact upon which I, humbly, have always endeavoured to lay stress. You take up a stone and throw it—let us say, at a dog, or, if you prefer it, a cat. The dog has been barking, or the cat howling, and you have been kept awake; you throw the stone; there is silence, we will suppose; you have gained your object, and you go to sleep; but you have altered the centre of gravity of the earth. The illustration of course proves nothing beyond the fact that there are consequences which follow from everything that we do that perhaps we never think of. In some cases they are important; in others unimportant. The throwing of the stone, except as regards the dog or the cat, belongs to the former class; a new law generally to the latter.

In this case it is apt to be forgotten that when we forbid shopkeepers to keep open their shops after 6 o'clock we also forbid shop-assistants to accept employment after 6. With many of them a readiness to work after 6 is the only condition of their employment, and consequently we invite them to give up their situations altogether. Again, we must remember that shop-assistants undertake their duties voluntarily, and with some knowledge of the disadvantages attending their calling. They are not driven in gangs out of Central Africa and sold to their employers. They can even leave them, I suppose, if they will, and—well, I have said what they can do. I admit, again, that this sort of talk sounds very hard-hearted because men will persist in expecting conditions other than those by which our lives are limited. And yet we cannot alter those by which we are surrounded. We can all feel profoundly for the man who says, "It is all very well to talk to me about adopting some other method of life; but what are my wife and family to do in the meantime?" We do feel for him; and we feel, too, for the young men and young women whose constitutions are gradually broken down by long hours of overwork; their joyless lives haunt us, and unsympathetic as we may seem, press upon our hearts with a sense of actual pain, whenever we think of them—and that more frequently than some of them imagine. But those of us who have seen several sides of life know that there may be something worse even than that which exists now. I wonder if the over-worked shop-assistants ever think of the over-worked girl who makes her living by sewing at home; with whom she will have to compete out of hours if her present work—and with it her pay—should be cut down?

• • • • • •

And then there is something worse possible even than this white slavery, which after all is to some extent voluntary. There is the slavery which is involuntary. There is the slavery of law. For centuries we have been striving towards the one goal of individual liberty. All the patriots of our race that ever lived and died, lived and died in reality for that. And now, in order to benefit a class, we are asked to introduce a law which shall forbid the individual to do what he pleases with his own time upon his own terms. Such a prohibition, it seems to me, is the true slavery. For let us never forget that every law which we pass becomes a precedent for another and often a stronger law.

MUNICIPAL COUNCILS.

NORTH WILLOUGHBY.

The finance committee met at 7 p.m. on Monday, and considered and passed the Finance Report. The meeting of the council was held at 7.30 p.m. Present—The Mayor (Alderman Alexander Simpson) and Aldermen Forsyth, Fuller, Muston, and Landers. The minutes of previous meeting were read and confirmed. The plan and sections of proposed alterations on Flat Rock-road, next Donnelly's-road and Chandos-street, were examined and approved, and the council clerk was instructed to take them and explain to the St. Leonards Council, and ask their co-operation, by contribution, in aid of the work, it being considered a great improvement, being at the junction of the boundaries of the two boroughs. The bylaws proposed by the bylaws committee for carrying out the provisions of the Nuisances Prevention Act, were read and adopted, and the Mayor and council-clerk were authorised to sign and seal the same with the corporate seal of the borough, and to forward same to be gazetted. The finance report, showing sums due for works and services to 17th instant, amounting to £208 12s. 3d., was adopted. Correspondence: From Council of St. Leonards, asking the council's co-operation in endeavouring to obtain the exclusion of the municipalities on the North Shore from the operations of the Fire Brigades Act. Received, and agreed that this council will be glad to co-operate as required. The Mayor's minutes, re inspection of works in progress in each ward, was read and received, and the works committee agreed to meet at 9 o'clock next morning to consider certain suggestions as per minutes. From Mrs. Barnes, re drainage next to her property. Received, and referred to the works committee. From Mr. W. Mastman, for the committee, asking for the use of the School of Arts for meetings of the Mutual Improvement Society. Received, and granted free. From Mr. S. B. Levick, asking that pipe culvert be laid at his property, and that Northwood-road be repaired next to Mr. Neave's property. Received, and referred to Aldermen Fuller and Landers to inspect and report. From the inspector of nuisances and ranger for the borough re his salary. Received. Considered after in committee, and salary doubled. From F. L. Finch, asking that a pipe drain be laid from his property to sewer in St. Leonards-street. Received. Work to be done. From T. Graham, re Long Bay-road. Received. Tenders to be invited for fence at retaining wall to prevent accidents. From F. Coffee, for pipes at gate, and offering to raise path at his property if the clerk of works gave the levels. Received, and agreed to. Motions: By Alderman Landers,—"That the clerk of works take the permanent levels of the leading roads in the river ward, the works committee to decide which shall be done." Carried. By Alderman Forsyth,—"That tenders be invited for fencing at bridge, High-street." Referred to the works committee. By Alderman Forsyth,—"That the works committee meet at Elizabeth-street to consider and determine what work shall be done there." Carried. In answer to questions by Alderman Landers, the Mayor reported that the contractor had signed agreement to form Northwood-road extension, and would commence work to-morrow; that the council clerk had been directed to write to Works Department to request that the trial shafts on abandoned line of railway survey be enclosed or filled in to prevent accidents. That the informality of special audit was that the authority forwarded to the council was not in accordance with the provisions of the Municipalities Act of 1867. Revision of 'bus time tables was adjourned untill next meeting. Fresh tenders to be invited for blue metal for Nichols' Bay-road, and for valuing.

GRANVILLE.

A special meeting of the Granville Borough Council was held in the Council-chambers on Thursday evening last. Present—His Worship the Mayor (Mr. J. Nobbs, J.P.), Aldermen Howieson, Ritchie, Fewster, Forsyth, Ross, Marshall, Unwin, and Grimwood. The finance committee reported examining various accounts amounting to £322 13s. 11d., which were passed for payment. The council clerk furnished the following statement of lighting rates received in the borough from March, 1886, to 1888:—East Ward, £217 6s. 9d.; West Ward, £169 2s. 1d.; North Ward, £154 0s. 9d. Following correspondence was read:—From the Department of Works, fixing the 13th proximo as the time for a deputation to interview the Minister for Works in respect to dedication of site in Granville for gas-works. From the Department of Justice asking that the local option vote taken at last elections be forwarded as soon as possible. It was resolved, that the resolution passed by the council on the 30th March; 1887, viz., that any ratepayer requiring kerbing and guttering in front of his or her property, must pay into the hands of the council clerk one-third of the cost of the same before the work is commenced, the council to pay the other two-thirds, be rescinded. The works committee's report, recommending that the inspector of nuisances should receive one month's notice that his services would no longer be required, was received and adopted.

KOGARAH.

A special meeting of the Kogarah Municipal Council was held in the local Council-chambers last evening, when there were present—Alderman J. Carroll in the chair, also Aldermen P. Herrmann, H. Wiss, J. Hatfield, P. English, W. Chaffelow, and the council clerk. The report of the valuators was read, and it was agreed that a general rate of 1s. in the £, and a lighting rate of 3d. in the £1 be struck on the assessable property within the municipal boundary.

STRATHFIELD.

The Strathfield Municipal Council met on Thursday evening. Present—The Mayor (Alderman W. Von der Heyde), Aldermen Allen and Perkins. Correspondence: Mr. A. Arndill wrote, suggesting to the council the necessity of taking steps to have erected several letter pillars. The letter was received, and the works committee were requested to inspect the borough, and suggest suitable sites, prior to communicating with the postal authorities. The secretary of the Australian Gaslight Company notified the laying of mains in certain streets. The acting clerk was directed to write to the works department, and ask if that department would lay stone kerb, along the Liverpool-road, if the council formed and kept the footway in good order. It was decided to publicly invite applications for the position of council clerk, vice Bennett. The finance report, recommending that accounts amounting to £110 be paid, was adopted. After dealing with other matters, which were of minor importance, the council rose.

WOMAN'S COLUMN.

"A WOMAN'S TALK TO WOMEN."

I cut the following extract from the Queen, and, after reading the paragraph thoughtfully more than once, it seemed to me an unfair way of putting the case to "the good and clever girls" at home:—"There has been a wave of depression over all the colonies, as we have felt at home, and very high salaries are not to be got by governesses as formerly; but there are numerous happy homes offered to good, useful women of the mother's-help class, who will be content with £30 and £40 a year, a bright life, a saddle horse for exercise, and a beautiful climate to live in; and, when I hear of good, clever girls here drudging from early morn till late at night, teaching and sewing for five or six pupils for £12 a year, I wonder we do not have more candidates for Australian service than we have." In wishing to emphasise the superior inducements offered in Australia to the lady-help and mother's-help class over those offered in England, the writer has slightly overstrained her point, and allowing free play to an elastic imagination, has weakened the force that the contrast might otherwise present. Granted the mother's-help might obtain out here the salary of £30 or £40 a year, yet there is every chance that she might at the same time find (as the writer implies she would certainly do in England), "that she had to drudge from early morn till late at night, teaching and sewing for five or six pupils;" and if she made her start in colonial experience in Sydney during one of the summer months, as it is just as well to hint to the "good and clever girls" they might have to do, where would be "the beautiful climate and the saddle horse for exercise?" I don't think the families here are smaller than those at home, or that the duties demanded of a help are less numerous; and her moments of leisure for horse exercise, either in the town or country, I am convinced would be few. I wonder how the writer heard of the lady at home who drudged from early morning till late at night for five or six pupils for £12 a year; and what a pity she did not suggest to the lady to go out as head nurse when she could have been certain of getting £25 or £30 a year, and have had an under-nurse to do the drudgery.

• • • • • •

We have heard even out here of the case of a certain "worm" in the shape of a nursery governess, turning and suggesting to her employer, a lady with a quiver full of very undisciplined blessings, that £25 a year hardly, to her mind, met the exigencies of the case; when she was promptly told that the aforementioned lady "could fill her house with nursery governesses at £25 a year," as it was a rate of remuneration eagerly sought after by persons of her class. The luckless nursery governess, having had several weeks' experience in a cheap boarding house in the capital of New South Wales, whilst waiting to get the coveted situation, elected to pocket monthly the £2 and odd shillings, together with her feelings, which, under the circumstances, as the doggerel bard remarks, "I would have done with joy." Let us hope that, having been perhaps tempted to the antipodes by an alluring paragraph in the Queen like the one quoted above, she did not at that moment

"Feel sore perplexed,
And ducked very hard at a very small boy,
Which I often do when vexed."

We must face the facts, and tell them at home what is the truth out here, that we ourselves are manufacturing and turning out "lady helps" at an alarming rate. The raw material consists of the daughters of our working classes, the manufactories (is it heresy to say so?) are our Public schools. By all means let every boy and girl be taught to read and write; but three years is a very fair average to allow for the instilling of that useful knowledge into the precocious Australian brain. We will further allow that the precocious Australian brain does not begin to learn much before the age of seven; at ten, therefore, it ought to be in the power of mothers of the working classes to take their daughters away from school and make them useful in their own homes; or if they must be kept longer at school, let them be taught sewing, scrubbing, cooking, and some simple rule of hygiene and sanitation, so that they may be in some degree fitted for domestic duties. What we want in New South Wales—Hearken oh! correspondents of the Queen and other home papers please copy—are cooks, housemaids, laundresses, and nurses!

• • • • • •

Summer is on the wane, and Sydney fashionable and unfashionable life will soon come flocking back from its cool choice spots on the Southern and Western lines to inhabit its temporarily deserted (by all but mosquitoes) homes in town. Every year a larger number of people realise the necessity of two or three months' escape from social duties, and, at the same time, of leading an easy-going country life when the thermometer ranges over 80°. There are also numerous families of young children, whom it is imperative to remove for a time from the relaxing atmosphere of the coast to a keener, drier climate; so, as soon as Christmas comes round, the exodus begins; just as in August juvenile London turns out en masse laden with spades and buckets for the seaside. The principal difficulty to those who do not possess country-houses of their own in the way of this agreeable arrangement seems to be the want of suitable houses or lodgings at the different places known in advertisements as "health resorts." When we are contemplating a trip into the country our imagination conjures up at first visions of a comfortable, airy house with (shall we be ambitious enough to say?) a tennis court and garden, and of being able to obtain in the neighbourhood unlimited supplies of milk, fruit, and vegetables, not to mention that almost unknown quantity to dwellers in Sydney—cream. And when we first set out in quest of this ideal abode our hopes are high, the possibilities of failure seem nil; but as days go by, and we answer advertisements and inspect properties, our hopes fall in proportion as the thermometer rises, and we begin to doubt if it is worth while after all leaving our comfortably built and furnished homes, even though in them the north-easter and mosquitoes reign supreme—to inhabit those ill-built wooden boxes, divided into minute partitions, called rooms, and roofed with galvanised iron, which are usually situated on some shabby plot of land in the straggling suburb of a country town. At last, in a moment of despair, urged on by the knowledge that every day the choice amongst these galvanised country retreats is getting smaller, we "take" the next one offered, having been assured by the agent that it was inhabited last year by a family about double the size of our own; and, the human heart being always prone to hope in the direction in which lie its wishes, we hope there will be plenty of room. But alas! "pokiness" is the only word that we find can be applied to the whole establishment. Our modest-sized family fills and overflows the tiny compartments dignified by the name of rooms, and when we begin housekeeping we discover with regret that even under the shadow of the eucalyptus the cow with the iron tail is not an extinct species, and that country hens have the deplorable habit of laying eggs of doubtful freshness.

• • • • • •

We are, not like our American cousins, dwellers in large hotels, probably because our hotels are so indifferently managed that dwelling in them is not unmixed bliss. Besides, it is the children even more than the "grown ups" who want the pure country air and good country living, and for them hotel life is never suitable. But then what a tempting climate is that of the high tableland on the Southern line, or of the mountains on the Great Western. Where else can we get such crisp mornings, such bracing evenings? And with a little care in the construction of the houses midday might be equally pleasant and fresh. How I should like to try an experiment! "When money goes before, all ways do lie open;" but we women are not often blessed with a superfluity of that commodity. I should buy a small orchard property of, say, a hundred acres; 72 of those acres I should divide into six-acre lots, and on each lot should build a brick or stone bungalow, with high rooms, wide verandahs, and shingle roof. The bungalows, of course, would be of different sizes, and when finished would be fitted and furnished in the coolest and simplest style, as are those in the tropics, and would be let, if wished, with the use of a cow, which would run in the six-acre compound. The rest of the property would be utilised for orchard and kitchen gardens, the products of which could be sold to the tenants, and two tennis courts would also be at their disposal on payment of a subscription. A caretaker or manager would live on the property to cultivate the orchard and garden, and look after the bungalows when not occupied. Of course the idea could be much further elaborated, and many details worked in to add to the ease and comfort of the tenants, and we venture to predict there would be a good demand for those houses during the six months of summer, and they could be very probably let at a smaller rent during the cooler months of the year.

LECTURES.

SANITARY SCIENCE—THE BEST KINDS OF GROUND TO LIVE ON.

"Sanitary Science—the best kinds of ground to live on" was the subject of a lecture delivered by Mr. John L. Bruce, I.A., in the Technical Hall, Pitt-street, on Tuesday evening. In his preliminary remarks Mr. Bruce said: Why should the very name "Sanitary" raise a smile or contemptuous sneer on the lips of so many otherwise clear-seeing men. Individuals who in ordinary cases can clearly see sufficient and discount the after effects to be anticipated from particular actions, and the inevitable results of the neglect of certain necessary precautions in their business transactions, yet scoff at the very word or idea of sanitary precautions, and associated in their minds another word of similar sound, and mentally questioned the sanity of the man who troubled himself about his sanitary surroundings. He contended that it was only very recently that the important bearing that sanitation had on health had been considered at all. At the present time, although it was more the fashion to prate about the great importance of sanitary science, how many of those who would cordially agree as to the necessity for precautions paid the least personal attention to what for the sake of appearing learned in the knowledge of the times they pretended to believe in. When the law stepped in and for the protection of the community enacted even the most elementary legal protections, there were none so bitter about interference with the liberty of the subject as those fashionable philosophers of sanitary science. The spring which dropped the mask of pseudo science was pressed when their pockets were touched and revealed the reality beneath. The question had been taken up in many quarters by well-meaning people without the requisite practical experience of actual work necessary to guide them in remedying obvious defects, and in this way it has naturally, but unfortunately for the best interests of the public, been made into a fad which could not but render it absurd and disgusting to all thinking men who were not blinded by the very dazzling and delusive glare of firmly held preconceived personal notions. Thus it was not to be wondered at that in many quarters this so-called sanitary science was held in sad disrepute as a practical belief. The question of sanitary science was really yet to a great extent in its infancy, and even those who from training and experience were competent to form an opinion were as yet to some extent groping in the dark. Sanitary questions, like medical questions, were decided very largely by the judgment and previous experience of the expert. The lecturer then went on to point out the popular indifference to what was under the surface of the soil on which a house was built. It was a very important matter to determine the healthiness or otherwise of a site, and should certainly in every case be held largely in view in the erection or choice of any structure intended for human habitation. The health conditions influenced by soil and site might conveniently be classed under four heads—1. The nature of the soil and the relative positions of the various strata as bearing on its temperature, its ground water level, its comparative permeability to water and air, and the consequent formation of dust. 2. Its chemical composition as indicating its condition as to organic or putrefactive matter, and its consequent influence on water supply and on the ground or contained air, which in turn influences that over the surface. 3. The nature of the surface as to outline as bearing on its aspect and drainage and its height relatively to the sea level. 4. The kind of vegetation covering and surrounding the site, which is to a certain extent an indication of the other conditions. Mr. Bruce then proceeded to enlarge upon each of these divisions of his subject. He pointed out that the actual reduction in the temperature of a soil was very largely dependent on the amount of evaporation which took place. Besides the question of heat, absorption, however, what constituted a marked difference between the clay and the hard rocks was the fact that from their usual conformation of surface the rain ran readily off from the latter because of their slope. Thus it was that some of the so-called impermeable soils might quite readily be dry, and when such was the case they possessed certain advantages not to be found in porous soils. In the concluding portion of his lecture Mr. Bruce dealt with the causes of damp soils.

In connection with the Board of Technical Education, the second lecture on the above subject was delivered at the Technical Hall, last Thursday evening, by Mr. Walter E. Roth, B.A. (Oxon). After a short resumé of the matter discussed the previous Thursday, the lecturer proceeded to enunciate the two hypotheses concerning the signification of the "intermediate host," of which illustrations had been detailed in the life-histories of the liver fluke and of the taenia. The origin of internal parasites can be answered only in two ways by spontaneous generation, or that they have reached the interior of their host from the external world. The former view was held up till the beginning of the 18th century, and does not appear so extravagant as might at first sight be supposed, considering that it was not until 1712 that Redi discovered maggots to be the larvæ of flies, and only 40 years later that Swammerdam showed lice to be developed from eggs. Even at the present day there are believers in the doctrine of archebiosis, first enunciated by Dr. Charlton Bastian, which propounds the possibility of bacteria, the commonest of the vegetable parasites, arising de novo in certain fluids containing organic matter, independently of pre-existing living things. The great Linnæus found a small tapeworm living in fresh water (really that of the sticklebat, which passes a pre-existence before being swallowed by the suitable water fowl), and believed it to be the young condition of the one found in the human digestive tract. In the same way he thought to have discovered the young free condition of several other forms, and so enunciated a view that internal parasites lived sometimes a free and at other times a parasitic existence. The theory of Pallas was more ingenious, in that he belived ento-parasites to agree with other animals in originating from eggs, which can be carried from one animal to another. Of course, by this means eggs could only reach the alimentary canal, but got into other places by means of the blood vessels, which could thus convey them to the unborn young, and hence the possibility of one host inheriting from the other—the "Theory of Inheritance." Still later, many champions were found fighting in the cause of the "Theory of Vitality," according to which teaching that of Rudolfi), the vital force, acting in various ways within the body of the host could produce either a bladder-worm, a hydatid, &c. With the perfection of the microscope in 1831, and the definite knowledge thus acquired, together with the experimental feeding of the various hosts with the particular parasites, one after another of the various life-histories have since been worked out, and the true genesis of several parasites determined. With regard to the second class into which parasites are divided, the mutualists, the examples drawn attention to were the histriobdella, insects sheltering in the fur of mammals or the down of birds, and certain crustaceans, parasitic upon fish. As was notified in last lecture, the histriobdella, a parasitic leech, eats the lobsters' eggs and embryos, which die; and thus, in return for the home and shelter provided, prevents the decomposition which would be fatal to the host and its progeny. Similarly, the ticks on mammals and birds just spoken of, in return for shelter and protection remove the pellicle and epidermal debris, and thus minister to the hygienic welfare and outward appearance of their landlords or hosts: fish often harbour crustaceans for a similar purpose. The commensalists, the third class of parasites, it will be remembered, constitute those forms which do not live at the expense of their host, all that they are desirous of being a home, a conveyance, or their landlord's superfluities. They are either free or fixed, the former often breaking their alliance, and from birth to death are subject to no other changes than those belonging to their class, the latter being very often extremely degenerate. Of the free varieties many examples were adduced, and short notices given of the following:—Fish among the tentacles of Medusæ, or in the digestive cavity of Holothurians, the pilot fish and Remora with the shark, certain crustaceans (Pinnotheres) in mussels, &c. The fixed forms do not furnish as many illustrations as the free ones, the most important however being the cirrhipedes (animals allied to the barnacles) on whales, each of these sea monsters having its particular species. After some remarks on parasitic disease in general, from a historical point of view, the lecture was brought to a conclusion.

A lecture was delivered before the members of the William-street Mutual Improvement Association on Thursday evening, by Mr. C. N. Frecker, on "How to live a hundred years." There was a very good attendance, and considerable interest was manifested in the proceedings. Mr. Frecker dealt with some of the causes which, in his opinion, tended to shorten life, and then laid a basis on which he constitution could be built up, and which would result in longevity, other things being equal, to those who followed it. He considered cheerfulness and temperance as prime factors. At the close of the lecture a discussion ensued as to whether the means proposed would prove adequate.

ALLEGED INCOMPETENCY OF RAILWAY ENGINEERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In Mr. Secretary Sutherland's minute, published in this morning's paper, I notice the following statement with reference to Mr. Townsend's competency as an engineer and surveyor: "That he possesses constructive ability is evidenced by the fact that he is the designer of girders for bridges which are admitted by competent authority—Professor Kernot, of the Melbourne University, and Professor Warren, of our own University—to be in every sense admirable for lightness and strength, economy and cost." With regard to myself, I wish to say that I am in no way responsible for this statement. I have no reason whatever to doubt Mr. Townsend's constructive ability, and the girders may be all that is claimed for them, but I have not gone sufficiently into the matter to express an opinion.

I am, &c.,

OUR PUBLIC CHARITIES.

I.

Sir Henry Parkes, in answer to an enquiry in the Legislative Assembly a few days ago, said: "As I have at other times announced, the charitable institutions of the colony require to be placed under a different system altogether. This would take some considerable time." Exactly. The statements are unchallengeable. But just such sage and satisfying remarks were made by Sir Henry 15 years ago, and have been repeated by him, and by other Colonial Secretaries, any number of times in the interval. A commission, signed "Henry Parkes," was issued to seven competent and "trusty" citizens on April 8th, 1873, "to inquire into and report upon the working and management of public charities." The commissioners worked with such zeal that a first report, dealing with the Infirmary and City Hospital questions generally was ready for presentation to Parliament on the 10th of September following, and the second and final report on the other State-aided charitable institutions followed on the 27th May, 1874. The reports were couched in the strongest terms; they made astounding revelations, and what is more they were amply sustained by voluminous evidence from competent witnesses. The impression produced in the community was as profound as it was painful. Only for the absolute need for caution because of the radical nature of the changes recommended, great things would have speedily followed; but caution degenerated into indifference, and to this day only one of the recommendations of the commission has been carried out—the substitution of the boarding-out system for the old barrack life of the State children, and for that the colony has largely to thank the philanthropic zeal of certain ladies, whose action almost forced the hands of the Government. As for all the rest, they have already waited 15 years, and to all appearance may have to wait 15 more.

Amongst other radical changes, the commissioners recommended that the Sydney Infirmary site should be put to other uses, and that only a small emergency hospital should be built in the city; that the system of basing hospital patronage or privileges on a £2 subscription should be abolished, and that absolute necessity should constitute the sole claim to either indoor or outdoor treatment; that stringent precautions should be adopted against the abuse of outdoor relief, since "the evidence showed that the dispensary, especially the Redfern branch, was systematically imposed upon by persons of ample means, obtaining there the relief which was intended only for the destitute;" that intercolonial legislation should be sought, to prevent persons throwing their wives and children on the country by deserting them, and escaping to a neighbouring colony; and that a Comptroller of Public Charities should be appointed, not simply to exercise such functions as had been entrusted to the Inspector of Charities by the legislation of 1866, but to wield powers of management so that more matters of administration might not have to be delayed, and perhaps stultified, by reference to the Minister. "Were such an office in existence," the commissioners remarked, "we should not find a baby in arms at Biloela, juvenile prostitutes fresh from a Chinese den in our orphanages, and sturdy vagrants discharged from our asylums for the infirm and destitute, where they are manufactured at a cost of £13 a year, immediately coming to the Sydney Infirmary and there obtaining admittance to be nursed at an annual expense to the country of £12." Such an office has yet to be created, as the yearly reminders of the Inspector of Charities make it impossible for us to forget, though those reminders appear to have grown less and less forceful as the hopelessness of making them has come painfully home. In pressing the particular recommendation which has since been carried out the commissioners drew attention to a serious feature in the administration of the Randwick Institution—a feature which would not call for renewed criticism, only that it is now openly avowed by the directors. After characterising the barrack system as "bad in its influence on boys" and "more disastrous still in the case of girls," the report went on to say:—"So far, in fact, from the institution being now carried on for the benefit of deserted and destitute children, it has become apparently a place into which parents can get their children by simply making out a case for charitable relief. This we have no hesitation in saying was never the intention of the Legislature." At the 36th annual meeting of this institution, held a few weeks ago, this very feature was put forward as an important part of its raison d'être, so that even in the solitary case in which the commissioners' recommendations have been honoured, the results are only partially successful, inasmuch as side by side with the highly efficient and salutary system of boarding out, the endowments of the Randwick Institution are still devoted to boarding-in a yearly crop of fresh recruits to the army of the barracks! As the treatment of juvenile destitution must lie at the basis of all questions of public charity, it will be necessary to deal more particularly with the provision made for

THE STATE CHILDREN.

The commissioners found in 1873 three great barracks in which were mewed up no fewer than 1351 children. Randwick, founded by philanthropic citizens in 1852, entrusted by Government with 100 acres of land and lavish money grants, constituted a body politic and corporate in 1857, "for the protection, support, and moral and religious instruction of children deserted or left destitute by dissolute and abandoned parents or from other causes neglected or in a state of great privavation, and without adequate means of support," held 816 of these boys and girls. In the Protestant Orphanage, founded in 1814, and furnished by Government with 106 acres of land, all necessary buildings, and full maintenance, were 239 children, costing £15 each annually; and in the Roman Catholic Orphanage, similarly founded in 1836, with a farm and buildings also, and full maintenance, were 296 children, costing £13 17s. 9d. each per annum. As regards the subsequent history of the orphanages it is only necessary to say that their functions were gradually superseded by the State Children's Relief Board; that the properties were turned to other purposes by the Government in 1886; and that the annual value of these two properties thus saved would represent no inconsiderable part of the vote required for all State children under the new system. In the matter of Randwick institution, certain statements embodied by the president of the State Children's Board in his last two reports, which were duly laid before Parliament, make it imperative that its relations to the newer phases of the State children's question should receive public attention. Further reference to this matter will more properly follow a resumé of

THE BOARDING OUT SYSTEM.

On the strength of the unqualified recommendation of the commission, based as it was on evidence from practical experiments in England, Ireland, and Scotland, and perhaps encouraged by the example of Victoria and South Australia, a commencement was made by a committee of ladies in 1879 with the boarding-out of a limited number of children; and the Government aided the experiment to the extent of £200. The movement grew steadily in favour, and the grant was doubled the following year. By the beginning of 1881 success was so far assured that the Government took over the scheme, as from April 5, when the children under care numbered 59, and entrusted its management to a board of six ladies and three gentlemen, with a boarding-out officer, and later on a secretary. The following table shows its subsequent progress:—

Year, ending April 5.	Number of children Boarded Out.	Cost per Head.	Total Number under Control.	Total cost.	Cost per head at Randwick (year ending December 31).
1882 ...	100	...	103		18 15 9½
1883 ...	292	18 0 0	307	4,230	20 0 3¾
1884 ...	510	16 7 0	552	7,800	23 0 6¼
1885 ...	886	16 4 0	1026	12,340	24 3 10½
1886 ...	1025	15 4 6	1366	17,801	23 3 2¾
1887 ...	1214	15 6 0	1802	19,969	21 16 4¾

Of the total number under control last year 100 sickly children were treated in cottage homes, at a cost of £23 15s. per head; 447 were under indentures, costing the State only £1 9s. 9d. per head for their quota of general expenses; 14 were classed as "unofficial," and cost about the same rate as the apprentices; 123 were adopted children, and cost comparatively nothing; whilst the central receiving house, where fresh recruits are kept till they can be boarded-out or otherwise provided for, was so well managed, that it had only a daily average of 11½ inmates, costing £9 9s. per head.

In view of such results it is natural enough that the president of the board should draw public attention to the undesirability of allowing the beneficial working of this system to be counteracted by the application of public funds to an opposing system, as in the case of the Randwick Institution. The position may thus be summed up: The boarding-out system has released for other purposes some 275 acres of valuable suburban land, three piles of buildings, with all their appliances, and about £50,000 of invested money — resources whose capital value would at the moderate interest of 5 per cent. represent say half the present rate of the board's expenditure upon all the State children. The board has further effected a cash saving estimated at seven or eight thousand pounds, as a glance at the rates in the above table will explain; and has actually reduced the number of State children, notwitstanding the rapid increase of population. As mentioned above the orphanages and Randwick institution had an aggregate of 1351 inmates in 1873, whereas on the 5th of April last the system, which has superseded these three institutions, had only 1214 children boarded at the expense of the State. When it is remembered that in the interval the population of the colony advanced from 553,833 to 1,001,966 the significance of this diminution can be appreciated. If it be said that at the latter date Randwick had still some 250 inmates, the answer is simple:—Very few, if any of those inmates would have been surrendered or accepted as State children had Randwick not been open to them. (It may be remarked that this striking result in the diminution of the number of children cast upon the State has been abundantly exemplified elsewhere. For instance, a return prepared by the secretary of the Victorian Board shows that in 1872, when the boarding out commenced in that colony, there were on the hands of the department 2384 children "committed" or "neglected," and costing £46,669 per annum. At the end of 1886 the number had fallen to 1999, and their annual cost to £37,279, irrespective of the further saving by the setting free of enormous and costly buildings, and in the face of an increase of population from 758,984 to 1,003,043). Over against this, the account between the Randwick property and the public stands as follows:—During the third of a century of the institution's direct connection with the Government, there was expended upon it about £206,000 of Government money, of which over £26,000 went into the buildings. Legacies for permanent investment were bestowed upon it to the value of about £50,000, whilst from all other sources, interest, subscriptions, &c., some £75,000 was realised. From beginning to end Government aid seems to have been had for the asking, and the scale of expenditure correspondingly lavish. Towards the end of 1885 the directors, perceiving that the boarding-out system would shortly empty the institution, suddenly closed their doors against the operations of the board by intimating that they would no longer require the annual grant from Government; and forthwith they proceeded to apply the resources at their disposal, together with such public contributions as special appeals and energetic canvassing might bring in, to the carrying on of a semi-charitable boarding-school, with the avowed object of affording relief to "widowers" and "respectable tradesmen" with large families. The daily average of inmates last year was 272. With regard to such a course the president of the State Children's Relief Board says:—"It is apparent that since the withdrawal of the State children, and of aid from the consolidated revenue, the asylum has assumed the character of a private boarding school, and is giving barrack training to many children who ought either to be at service or else with their parents. . . The legal status of the asylum has been so clearly defined that there can be no doubt of the power of Parliament to reclaim it. . . I may fitly point out that the State is concerned in the institution to the extent of over £40,000, irrespective of a valuable estate dedicated solely for the purpose which is now superseded by the State Children's Relief Act." The good intent of the Randwick directors is simply beyond all question. As to whether it is a wise thing for them to perpetuate the almost universally condemned barrack system at the risk of pauperising "respectable widower's and tradesmen's" children, their own judgment, and that of the widowers and tradesmen, must largely decide. But as to whether they shall do this with a valuable estate entrusted to them solely for the relief of deserted and destitute children, is essentially a public question, and one which urgently demands attention.

DAYS OF FASTING OR ABSTINENCE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Mr. H. Tennent Donaldson has fallen into a mistake, which is, unfortunately, too common, in supposing that the Church of England appoints certain days on which fasting or abstinence is obligatory. There was an Act of Parliament in force when the list was put into the general national almanac or calendar commanding the people to eat fish on certain days, not for religious edification, but for the encouragement of the fisheries, and so keeping up a supply of seamen to man the navy. The almanac merely mentioned these days, and they remain an obsolete page of an old almanac since the Act of Edward VI. died. Calendars record facts; they do not order anything

The "Homily on Fasting" explains the matter perfectly—"But first an answer shall be made to a question that some may make demanding what judgment we ought to have of such abstinences as are appointed by public order and laws made by princes and by the authority of magistrates upon policy, not respecting religion at all in the same. As when any realm, in consideration of maintaining the fisher-towns bordering upon the seas, and for the increase of fishermen, of whom do spring mariners to go upon the sea, to the furnishing of the navy of the realm: whereby not only the commodities of other countries may be transported; but also may be a necessary defence to resist the invasion of the adversary.

"For the better understanding of this question it is necessary that we make a difference between the policies of princes made for the ordering of their commonwealths in provision of things serving to the more sure defence of their subjects and countries, and between ecclesiastical policies in prescribing such works, &c. Positive laws made by princes for conservation of their policy, not repugnant to God's law, ought of all Christian subjects with reverence to the magistrate to be obeyed, not only for fear of punishment, but also for conscience sake. Conscience, I say, not of the things, which is of its own nature indifferent, but of our obedience, which by the law of God we owe unto the magistrate as unto God's minister. By which positive laws, though we subjects, for certain times and days appointed, be restrained from some kinds of meats and drink, which God by His Holy Word has left free to be taken and used of all men with thanksgiving, in all places and at all times; yet for that such laws of princes and other magistrates are not made to put holiness in one kind of meat and drink more than another, to make one day more holy than another, but are grounded merely upon policy. All subjects are bound in conscience, to keep them by God's commandment, who, by the Apostle, willeth all, without exception, to submit themselves unto the authority of the higher powers.

"And in this point concerning our duties which be here dwelling in England, environed with the sea, as we be, we have great occasion in reason to take the commodities of the water which Almighty God of his divine providence hath laid so nigh unto us, whereby the increase of victuals upon the land may be the better spared and cherished, to the sooner reducing of victuals to a more moderate price to the better sustenance of the poor. And, doubtless, he seemeth to be too dainty an Englishman who, considering the great commodities which may ensue, will not forbear some piece of his licentious appetite upon the ordinance of his prince with the consent of the wise of the realm," &c. (Sermon on fasting, part 2.)

Thus the authoritative homily on this very point repudiates the idea of any Church order for fasting days, and refers the order to the prince's secular law, now long obsolete. So there are positively no fasting days whatever appointed by the Church of England. I am, &c.,

THE CHINESE QUESTION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A scheme for the peaceful and amicable solution of the Chinese difficulty has been propounded in New Zealand, by the adoption of which it would appear possible to attain that end without abrogation or contravention of existing treaties with China. The plan is briefly this:—That each year a census should be made of the total number of British subjects who may have entered the Chinese Empire during such year; this number, then, to be fixed absolutely as the limit of the number of Chinese subjects who are to be allowed to enter British territory during the succeeding year. Such an interpretation of existing treaties could not justly cause feelings of enmity, as it would be perfectly fair, while it would, I venture to think, avert the danger which threatens these colonies in a manner not only just and peaceable, but at the same time thoroughly effectual.

REVIEWS.

William I. and the German Empire: A Biographical and Historical Sketch. By G. Barnett Smith. London: Sampson Low, Marston, and Co., 1887.

Mr. Barnett Smith is a well-known writer of popular biographies, among them being lives of the Queen and Mr. Gladstone. There is a certain talent about this kind of work, consisting in the art of arranging the matter of such a book in the clearest and most popular way, with more regard to facts than philosophy, and aiming rather at reproducing the history of a man's life than an analysis of his character. The facts are chronicled with a journalist's fidelity, concerning itself rather with what a man has done than with the motives that led to his action, or with its effects. In the present volume Mr. Smith proposes to go a little beyond this limit, however. He says, in his preface—written, by-the-way, before the death of the late monarch—"That the Emperor William is not only in himself a vigorous and striking personality, but he is the embodiment of that great German Power which is now the first factor in European politics." He is thus invested with a double interest, individual and national.

"In tracing his singularly fortunate and dramatic career in the following pages," says the writer, "I have therefore sought to combine with the personal narrative some account, first, of the Prussian kingdom and people, and secondly, of the foundation and consolidation of the new German Empire. * * * I have thus endeavoured to give a triple aspect to this sketch—the biographical, the social and progressive, and the historical; and I shall be glad if in consequence it be found to possess a more than ephemeral value."

A chapter on the Emperor's birth and ancestry is introduced by a rapid historical glance at the events of the century, beginning with the death of Frederick the Great, Carlyle's hero, in 1786. Having succeeded in building up one of the most powerful States in Europe, he left a splendid legacy to his nephew, Frederick William II. That Prince spent the surplus of seventy million thalers he received, and contracted a deficit of twenty-two millions on his own account.

"Not content with running down the prestige of the kingdom without, this King incurred great unpopularity at home by muzzling the press, introducing oppressive legislative enactments, and in imitating our own Charles II. by lavishing his resources on mistresses and favourites. Yet at the same time the domains of Prussia received an accession of 40,000 square miles of territory during his reign by purchase and inheritance, and by that renewed infamy the second partition of Poland."

He was gathered to his fathers in 1797, and, says this writer, it would have been better if he had been gathered long before. Better hopes were entertained of his son, Frederick William III., the father of the late Emperor. He dismissed his father's idle and vicious favourites, and for a time laboured to improve his subjects' condition. But the Napoleonic wars soon embroiled him, and his early attitude of neutrality invited the distrust of the other German princes. He made an alliance with France, and acquired Hildesheim, Paderborn, and Münster; then he allied himself with Russia, and then again with France, this time acquiring Hanover. Then he declared war against France, and, as this writer puts it, "the result was that by Napoleon's victories at Jena, Eylau, and Friedland, the Kingdom of Prussia was completely crumpled up." The French held Berlin for three years. Then came Leipsic, Waterloo, and the Treaty of Paris. Peace brought opportunities for social reforms, and among them this King's best work, the Zollverein, which organised German customs and duties on one uniform basis. But he was always a despot to his people, and dying in 1840, he left his son a document containing these words:—

"Beware of the love of innovation, now so general; beware of impracticable theories, so many of which are now in vogue; but at the same time beware of an almost equally fatal, obstinate predilection for what is old. . . . Do not neglect to provide for concord among all European powers; but, above all, may Prussia, Russia, and Austria never separate from each other. Their union is to be regarded as the keystone of the great European alliance."

So the new King commenced his reign, which was practically ended seventeen years later by a stroke of apoplexy, leaving the way to the throne open to his brother, as he left no issue. William I. was born in 1797, and his father became King a few months after his birth. He grew up under the gloom of the disastrous defeat of Jena, and the overshadowing power of Napoleon. He was early made familiar, by personal experience, with service in the army, and when the troops marched out of Berlin against Napoleon in 1806 Prince William was one of those who watched them from the palace windows. It was to him, thinks Mr. Smith, that the Queen, after Jena, addressed the heroic charge to "Conquer France, and retrieve the glory of your ancestors." From this time onward the Prince's education was constant in strategy, field planning, fortification, and military history; and through many pages the story of his youth and his life as Prince of Prussia is told as it has been already made familiar of late by the many obituary notices of the deceased Emperor. Prince William visited England in 1844, and was received by the Queen and Prince Albert at Windsor. When the revolution came in 1848, he was charged, as it afterwards appeared, without foundation, with ordering the troops to fire on the people in Berlin. He fled to London, where he spent his time studying the constitution and the country, and on his return to Prussia, expressed a hope that "free institutions might become more and more developed there." He took his seat in the House of Representatives as the member for Wirsitz, when the first national Assembly was constituted, and some time after he was fired at by a would-be assassin, who was afterwards tried by an anti-monarchical jury and acquitted. The Prince saw some diplomatic service, and in 1854 betrothed his son to the English Princess Royal. He became regent of Prussia in October, 1858, and king in 1861. There had been no coronation for 160 years until the ceremony at Konigsberg in this year.

The King enunciated the doctrine of the Divine Right of Kings, which, as Prince Albert wrote to Baron Stockmar, was "an absurdity exploded for the last 200 years." Then he quarrelled with his Parliament, and when his Army Reorganisation Bill was jeopardised, looked about him for "a man with courage enough to uphold it in defiance of the Deputies." Otto von Bismarck stepped forward in public life in response. Says Mr. Smith:—

"Only a few days after his accession to power, when speaking in the Budget Committee, he said:—'It is not by speechifying and majorities that the great questions of the time will have to be decided—that was the mistake in 1848 and 1849—but by blood and iron!' This now historic phrase represented the policy upon which Bismarck meant to proceed, both in the treatment of constitutional questions and in the unification of Germany."

In this rapid way the writer goes on to tell the whole story of William's life, without going beneath the surface or wandering for one moment from the abrupt text of his narration. The Schleswig-Holstein dispute and the Danish war; the struggles with Austria and its decisive battle of Königgrutz, or Ladowa, as it was variously called by the Prussians and Austrians; and the events of that "interregnum of peace" which led up to the Franco-Prussian war are told with the same bald fidelity. When the Spanish Cortes failed to persuade any other Prince to accept the Crown and decided on offering it to a scion of the House of Hohenzollern, the French Emperor made the events proceeding from this circumstance a pretext for the disastrous war on which he staked and lost everything, while German dreams were fulfilled. We get in this book many pages dealing with the "Great French War," from the first canon's shot at Saarbrück to the crowning of William as Emperor of Germany at Versailles, within the historic Hall of Mirrors. Then came the conflict with the Ultramontanes, and Herr Windthorst, the Falck laws; and two long chapters dealing with the consolidation of the Empire, and the Emperor's later years, with one on personal characteristics, close this part of the book, which concludes with some speculations as to the future:—

"What will be the future of Germany after the Emperor's death? That is a question which has no doubt often caused deep solicitude to the Kaiser and his Chancellor. It cannot be forgotten that all the co-makers of Germany—and not alone the Emperor William—have been growing old together. Time only can prove whether the new and younger race which, on the nature of things, must at no distant date succeed to the Imperial inheritance of Germany, will be able to maintain it intact, and to deepen and strengthen the foundations of the Empire. Viewed in its relations to the German race and the German Empire, the Emperor's career has been great and glorious beyond that of any other contemporary sovereign; and, notwithstanding the imperfections which cling to all of human mould, when history comes to delineate his character it will depict him as a man amongst men, a king amongst kings, and a true father to his people."

These are perfectly safe statements, and the speculation they cover is neither wide nor deep. But if this book is neither very philosophic nor very profound, it is, at least, a very carefully-compiled and accurate statement of the events in the life of the late Emperor, to which a special interest has been lent by the sad event that has so lately occurred. Any volume that will either systematise or add to our stock of information about Germany and the Germans is acceptable just now, and this book will at least serve the former purpose. The writer has laboriously collected his information from a variety of sources, and he has arranged his material with care. In an appendix is given a body of statistics from recent returns, furnishing a birds-eye view of the extent, growth, and present position of Germany, as well as of its constitution and finance. Some of these facts and figures are very significant, and bring before the eye in a vivid way the progress the great continental power of the Europe of to-day has made and is making year by year. The strength of the army on a peace footing is stated here at 427,274 men, the war footing being 1,500,000. The total available for drill in emergency would be 5,670,000. The German navy numbers 98 ships of various horse-power, totalling 162,405. Germany since 1884 has taken territory on the west coast of Africa, and 100,000 square miles by treaty in Eastern Africa. In New Guinea 70,300 square miles were annexed, in the Bismarck Archipelago 18,150 square miles, and in the Solomons 6000 square miles.

Grammar, with Vocabularies of Volapük (the language of the world), for all speakers of the English language. Second (greatly revised) edition. Translated and published, with the consent of the inventor (Johann Martin Schleyer), by W. A. Seret, Certificated Teacher of the Universal Language. Whittaker and Co., London.

Many attempts have been made to find a language which may be used as a common means of intercourse between different nations, but hitherto without success. Languages have been invented, but the difficulty has been to get people to learn or use them. Volapük is one of the latest, and, from news received from Europe a short time since, it seems to stand a better chance of success than its predecessors, for we hear that several German firms have determined to make use of it in their intercourse with their foreign customers. To those who intend to make a practical use of it this book appeals. Others who may be prompted merely by curiosity to learn what the new language is, will probably be disappointed; for we find no dissertation on the philology of the language or the mode in which the words are invented. Taking it for granted that the reader would learn to make use of the language, we have the words given in two vocabularies and the rules of grammar which are to be applied.

A short sketch of the language will be of interest. The object of the inventor was to form a language which might be easily learnt, while it gives facility of expression. The great difficulty experienced in mastering the elements of any modern language arises from the irregularities and exceptions which, from historical reasons, occur in those words and phrases which are in most common use, and consequently of greatest importance. The alphabet has 28 letters, 8 vowels, and 20 consonants. The vowels are the five English vowels, pronounced long, full, and clearly, and the modified vowels ä, ö, and ü. The consonants are the same as the English, but somewhat differently pronounced, thus c is pronounced as j, j as sh, and h as ch. There is no q or w. The Greek rough breathing is used for the aspirate. Each letter is pronounced and only in one way, and there are no diphthongs. With this alphabet Schleyer has built up his language, aiming at simplicity and brevity. The English language is taken as the basis, as being the most wide-spread language at the present day. No articles are used. When it is necessary to distinguish the sexes, the noun itself shows the masculine, the prefix ji- (pronounced she) or of- shows the feminine, and the affix -os the neuter. All combinations of letters and arrangements of sounds difficult to pronounce are avoided. The cases and number of nouns and adjectives are shown by terminations, and the verbs are conjugated by means of prefixes and affixes. But there is only one declension and one conjugation. Adjectives and adverbs are formed by certain terminations.

From the foregoing it will be seen that the grammatical rules are of the simplest, and can be easily mastered. But when it comes to the use of the language between different peoples, the differences of idiom and different modes of thought would, it seems, create difficulties. On this point M. Seret does not enlighten us.

In addition to the grammar we have two vocabularies, English-Volapük and Volapük-English. It would be too much to expect that the vocabularies would be complete, and an examination shows that words are missing. But these can be easily supplied in time; for ordinary purposes the present list of words may serve. The language, we have said, is based on English, and in many of the words we can trace an English origin. Others, again, show a relationship to other languages, while some it would be difficult to connect with what may be called their parent tongue. It would be fruitless to enter into a discussion on the prospects of success of this invention. Many people believe that English is to be the language of the world. We see that provision is made for poetical expression; but the world of commerce is the first to be attacked and conquered; the use of the language in the world of literature is still in the dim and distant future.

From Melbourne to Melrose. By James Smith. Melbourne: Centennial Publishing Company. 1888.

This book is a series of pictures of travel, reprinted from the Melbourne Argus, and, as we gather from a brief preface, its sketches are republished here in the hope and belief that they may be used as a sort of handbook to the increasingly-large number of Australians who take a holiday run through Europe. There is a flavour of the guide-book about the volume, lightened, however, by the writer's known facility of style and attractiveness of expression. Though this latter feature cannot be said to characterise the book in any marked manner, there is enough of it to enliven in some measure the unavoidable sameness of a labour of which the object is to describe what has been already described so often. One result of the facility of style the writer possesses is that freshness of impression and crispness of observation are sacrificed to the ease of narration; but in a volume professedly intended for a tourist's handbook, this is not, perhaps, a serious fault. The author's defect is particularly noticeable in such portions of the book as deal with art and artists, but what is wanting in vividness or originality here is largely supplied by the writer's attractive and graceful description, which only requires an occasional touch of life or movement to become really charming reading. In the absence of this, the reader finds it hard to escape a misgiving that he is being treated to a mere amplification of the usual guide-book information, filled out by such reflections and light discursive passages as might be written either in one's study at home with the necessary books of reference at hand, or by a traveller on the spot. All books of travel draw their charms from the individuality that is put into them, when the writer knows how to express it. Mr. Smith takes his readers from Naples as his starting-point, and the book opens with a description of sunrise from the sea. Pompeii follows, the description being filled out by carefully-selected facts supplied by those who have told us what we know of that city of the dead, and its old-world classic customs. Capri, Rome, Florence, Pisa, and the other notable Italian cities of which Hawthorne and Hare have written so charmingly, with their art-gossip and middle-age atmosphere, are dealt with by this writer in the same vein; and the journey is continued by Geneva and Bordeaux to Paris, London, and Edinburgh. Mr. Smith is familiar with his ground, having travelled over and described it before. This may account in some degree for the absence of that freshness that some readers will miss. But as a handbook for Australian visitors to the scenes he has described, it is safe to say that these sketches will serve their purpose admirably.

Guide to the Health Resorts in Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand. Compiled by Ludwig Bruck. Sydney: Australian Medical Gazette Office, 1888.

The little that is known of the health resorts of the colonies, and, if the New Zealand thermal springs be excepted, the little that has been written on the subject, encourages Mr. Bruck to put forward this handbook. It deals with the climatology of the colonies, taken from official returns, and contains an alphabetical list of the best known health resorts in Australasia, with succinct particulars of their situation, hotels, attractions to visitors, medical residents, and other such details as may be useful to the tourist in search of health, recreation, or rest. Another division of the book, to facilitate reference, classifies those resorts under the heading of their respective colonies, while a third arranges them according to their therapeutic conditions. Thus a list of resorts is given where are muriated alkaline waters, having a special action on the lungs, chest, and nervous system, alkaline siliceous waters, useful in rheumatic affections; and so on through an exhaustive list. Section V. reprints some interesting observations by the Hon. Sir W. Fox on the hot-springs district of the North Island, New Zealand. This paper was part of a pamphlet issued by the New Zealand Government in 1882, and, as might be expected, embodied a trustworthy description of the hot-spring country and its attractions. A paper by Dr. Hochstetter on the Lake District is also reprinted from the Government publication; and here again we get a description "by authority" of the wonders of this wonderland, and the inducements it offers to those in search of health. An appendix to the book gives popular definitions of the technical terms used, directions for the use of various thermometric scales, for the temperature of baths, and some information on the weights and measures of the British Pharmacopœia. Appended to the name of each of the health resorts given is a list of the disorders for which the local air or waters may be considered beneficial, or information respecting the adaptability of the situation or climate. Besides all this, this exhaustive little book contains much information of a more or less desirable character to those who will consult its pages. A common charge against these guides to health resorts, and publications of the kind generally, is that they are often intended to serve the primary purpose of advertising a special system or place and the information given is merely a secondary consideration to the publishers. There seems to be little ground for any suspicion of the kind about this useful publication, which appears to be at once exhaustive and impartial.

Superior Cookery. By Mrs. Black, of the West-End Training School of Cookery. Glasgow.

This compact little volume of recipes follows in the wake of the numerous small cookery books published within the last few years; and although one of the most useful, its contents differ slightly from those of the ordinary, and are decidedly acceptable to many who may wish to extend the variety of the dishes in daily use in their households. In the preface, the authoress states, that while the volume does not profess to be an exhaustive treatise on superior cookery, no pains have been spared in the selection of the recipes, and that, like all the others already issued by her, they have been constantly tested in her various classes, and are thoroughly sound. The directions are unmistakable; under the various headings, "Soups," "Entrees," "Sweets," "Beverages," &c., some excellent recipes are given, which have the extra charm of being simple and economical, as well as choice and novel. In addition to the contents usual in works of this class, a portion is devoted to "Sickroom Cookery," a branch frequently entirely neglected by those whose knowledge of the art of cuisine is considerable. The recipes contained in this part of the book are excellent, and would prove themselves of great service in varying the somewhat restricted diet of invalids.

MANAGEMENT OF MILITARY MATTERS BY MILITARY MEN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In yesterday's Sydney Morning Herald I notice a paragraph that "Sir Henry Parkes, accompanied by General Richardson and Colonel Roberts, was visiting the various batteries with the intention of their immediate completion, &c."

It is not my intention, neither is it necessary, to write a panegyric on Sir Henry Parkes. He is, and has been known for years as, one of the most able statesmen Australia has produced—a statesman who has been at the helm of the vessel of state of New South Wales for a long period, steering safely through fair weather and foul, good seasons and bad. But he is no military man, and it is impossible for anyone—without a military education—to decide or to vote on military defences. You will observe by these preliminary remarks that my letter is on the necessity of all military matters being managed by military men, free from redtapeism.

I read from the list of military officers of New South Wales the services of the following officers, commanders of our forces:—Richardson, J. S.: Crimean Campaign, 1855, siege and fall of Sebastopol, with 72nd Highlanders. New Zealand War—Taranaki, 1860 and 1861, with 12th Regiment; volunteered from 2nd Battalion, and served with 1st Battalion, 12th Regiment in Waikato Campaign, 1863-64. Soudan Expedition, 1885. Commanded New South Wales Contingent, Suakin; advance on Tamai; despatches, London Gazette, 25th August, 1885. Crimean medal and clasp, Turkish War medal, New Zealand medal, and medal with clasp for the Soudan; C.B. Roberts, C. F.: Crimean Campaign, 1855, siege and fall of Sebastopol, in trenches with siege train, bombardments of 6th and 17th June, August and September; wounded 2nd September, and subsequently very severely while on duty on 15th November, by explosion of French magazine: Sikkin Expedition, 1861, in command of the Royal Artillery, mentioned in orders by the Governor-General (Brevet of Major); Crimean medal with clasp, Sardinian order of military valour, Turkish war medal; C.M.G.; and with us, on duty, we have four English officers of experience, we also have various reports on our defences, the last one from General Schaw. All tell us what is required to complete our defences. Is it, then, necessary to waste further valuable time in the alterations and additions recommended?

Sydney is one of the most vulnerable cities in Australia, and her vulnerability entitles her to immediate protection of the lives and property of the inhabitants from attack. As an integral portion of the British Empire, we must protect ourselves from her enemies. When we "cut the painter" from her we must protect ourselves from our own, as casus belli might arise from our neighbours in the Pacific, or, perhaps, some day from China.

In this matter of defences there is really no compulsion, only we must complete them. Let the inhabitants of New South Wales be made acquainted with the fact that the officers of the military forces—officers who know our danger, and who are most anxious to guard against and prevent it—are not free agents; they at present are subservient to the Government of the day. Should war be declared and find us unprepared, it is not their fault but the Government. I am, &c.,

PLATE ARMOUR.

M. KOWALSKI AND MR. DELANY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—What do the 10 lines signify written by Mr. J. Delany, which appeared some days ago in answer to a protest whose character was before all, to criticise an act of the Sydney Liedertafel committee?

Was Mr. J. Delany, as conductor of the society, taking an inspiration from the royal answer made by Louis the XIV. to the French Parliament, L'Etat c'est moi! or must I accept his answer as that of a delegate of the Sydney Liedertafel committee, notwithstanding it is allowed me to remark that in this affair his sudden appearance looks strongly like a tactic calculated to put the discussion on personal grounds.

Why try to evade the true idea that my last letter conveyed, and why affirm that the Sydney Liedertafel had taken any engagement whatever with the Sydney Philharmonic. Have I ever spoken of such thing? I have said, and I maintain, that the festival advertised for April next should have been given under the conditions enunciated in one of the meetings held by the delegates of the musical societies of Sydney; and that in place of a very respectable masculine celebration of the University Commemoration, it would have been better and more appropriate to the Centennial year, as well as beneficial for the artistic interests of New South Wales, to join in the same manifestation all the musical strength of the country. Mr. J. Delany affirms that the Government caused the discontinuance of the first idea by refusing the necessary subsidies. He forgets the facts. When the delegates asked the Centennial Commission for £1600 for a festival which would present a programme of three grand concerts, the commission, by reason of economy, I suppose, could not accept so great an expense, but the offer of financial support was made on the conditions that the societies would have to present a cheaper scheme, based on one concert, and with the designation of the hall chosen. Entering immediately on the work, the secretaries asked for the Exhibition Building, but they could not obtain it, Mr. Riley, the then mayor, having already authorised the organisers of the national banquet to take possession of the hall for January 26.

The festival was merely stopped by this difficulty, but the best wishes of the commission were morally obtained, and in case of this national celebration taking place at a posterior date, I am certain that a sufficient sum would have been placed at the disposal of the societies. To-day this Centennial festival, accepted in principle by the delegates of the societies' committees, is transformed to a festival of Liedertafels, in a very touching alliance of the Sydney and Melbourne brotherships societies.

But in the same town the sweet understanding between the musical societies of New South Wales disappears, and how long will it be so.

We must console ourselves under the transformation; for undoubtedly we shall have the pleasure of hearing of the success of the Sydney Liedertafel at the Melbourne Exhibition, when, in response to two successive invitations, the Metropolitan and Melbourne Liedertafels will, in their turn, return the compliment. I am, &c.,

H. KOWALSKI.

WHAT are you laughing at, old man? Oh, nothing. I was just picturing a curious old lady who has become a great believer in this new drink, for she declares by all that she knows had she been able to procure it fifty years ago she would be a different lady now, although long over seventy. If it makes her young again, what effect would it have upon a much younger patients Delicate ladies, try Kew's Dandelion Bitters after meals. See directions with each bottle.—[ADVT.]

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

THE TURF.

The Autumn meeting of the Hawkesbury Race Club, which commenced on Thursday, will be brought to a termination to-day on the Clarendon Course, and it may reasonably be expected that a much larger attendance will be present than put in an appearance on the first day. The railway arrangements are similar to those in vogue on Thursday, viz., a special, for the conveyance of racehorses and their attendants, will leave Redfern at 8.50 a.m.; second-class specials leave at 9.20 and 9.40 a.m., and a first-class special at 10.25 a.m. Full particulars regarding fares, &c., can be seen in our advertising columns, but it may be mentioned that tickets, including admission to the grand stand, can be secured at the Central Booking Office, George-street, and Redfern railway station, up to the time of starting this forenoon. The racing will commence at 12.45 p.m., when the horses engaged in the Shorts Handicap will be sent on their mission. The weights for that event were issued yesterday, and appear in their proper place in the programme published elsewhere. Pet Girl stands at the head of the list with 9st. 3lb., but that impost should not prevent her from having a great deal to say in the race; while Merry Duchess, Rosary, and Winnie appear to be about the best treated of the others. Merigobah has been performing so well of late in the Southern districts that if he runs up to form he should just about appropriate the Selling Plate, though most danger may be apprehended from Rossbella and The Gift. The scratching pen has been so busy with the Autumn Handicap that only 10 remain in. The Queen, Lucifer, Touchstone, Aristocrat, Bothwell, Uppercut, and Whisper Low cried enough yesterday, and The Nun, who is at the top of the tree with 8st., is regarded as a doubtful starter; while Burrilda has been left in by mistake. The performance of Southerly Buster in the Rowley Mile on Thursday entitles him to a lot of respect, and with the handy impost of 6st. 2lb. he should give a good account of himself. Harold also showed up well at the finish, and, with T. W., was fast overhauling the leaders, while Alma, if in good buckle, should run a great mare. A good race may be expected, and Harold, Alma, and Southerly Buster, should provide the winner; while T. W. and Bonnie Doon are the pair from whom most danger may come. Paladin, Albanus, and Soldier's Wind read as well as anything in the Disposal Stakes; while Hester, Nonsense, and Democrat II. may divide the honours in the Sportsman's Handicap.

The weights for the Warialda handicaps are promised to-day.

The following scratchings were posted at the office of the A. J. C. yesterday:—A. J. C.—First Foal Stakes: Perfection colt, Bellissima, Happy Land, Garter King, Marchioness filly, Melos, Magazine. Sires' Produce Stakes: Perfection colt, Melos, Magazine, Marchioness filly. St. Leger: Touchstone, Lava, Aberdeen, Cranbrook, Glentworth, Lady Lovel, Van John, Shooting Star, Tranter, Escutcheon, Mana, Whakawai, Jebusite, Colenso, Peabody, Lady Lurline. Champagne Stakes: Fine Lady, Bellissima, Garter King, Melos. All engagements: Melos. H. R. C.—Autumn Handicap: Whisper Low, Touchstone, Aristocrat, Bothwell, The Queen.

Hartley Vale race meeting was registered with the secretary of the A. J. C. yesterday.

Our Glen Innes correspondent telegraphs that at a meeting of the local Jockey Club held on Thursday it was decided to postpone the autumn races. It appears that a serious disagreement has taken place among the committee, and they are very much divided on a proposition that had been made to extend the dates to April 26 and 27, in order to meet the wishes of several owners whose horses will take part in the Inverell Picnic Races on April 12 and 13, and who were anxious to run at Glen Innes also. It is a pity this hitch should have occurred, as the meeting would have received liberal support from the stables of Messrs. Mayo, Moonie, Fletcher, Cruickshanks, and others, and doubtless would have come off successfully.

Those interested should note that the forfeit of 5 sovs. for the A. J. C. St. Leger is due and payable to-day at 4 p.m.

Owners and trainers should bear in mind that on Tuesday, at 6 p.m., entries close with the secretary, Mr. E. Cowcher, for the following events in connection with the Easter meeting of the Wallsend Jockey Club:—Exchange Plate of 40 sovs., w.f.a., winner to be sold for 40 sovs., selling allowances, 7 furlongs; Disposal Plate of 40 sovs., w.f.a., winner to be sold for 40 sovs., selling allowances, 6 furlongs; and Trial Stakes of 40 sovs., 1 mile. The entrance for each event is 2 sovs.

One of the most important sales of racehorses that have been held in Sydney or elsewhere for some years, is that advertised to take place at Fennelly's Bazaar on Wednesday next, when the racing studs of Messrs. Daniel and William Cooper will (in consequence of their projected departure for England) be submitted to public competition. Immediately after their disposal, six notable racehorses, the property of the Hon. W. A. Long, are in terms of advertisement to be sold absolutely without reserve. The various lots fully deserve the attention of racing men, coming as they do from most distinguished families, in addition to the fact of almost all who have been started having been either credited with winning brackets or as having earned the honour of a place.

By reference to our business columns it will be seen that Mr. Geo. Kiss will submit to public competition on Monday at noon, at his bazaar, Pitt-street, the privileges connected with the A.J.C. Autumn meeting, viz., the right to the entrance gate, St. Leger reserve, booths, &c.

The great reduction which has taken place in the candidates for the Hawkesbury Autumn Handicap has had the effect of materially shortening the prices in the betting market, and, although 10 still remain on the list, it is almost a certainty that the field will not number more than eight, as Burrilda has been left in through a mistake, and The Nun is looked upon as a doubtful starter. An effort was made during the early part of last evening to back the latter, but the ring refused to lay anything like the amount the stable wanted. Subsequently an offer of 10 to 1 was made without eliciting a response, and before the rooms closed 100 to 4 was offered without leading to business. Southerly Buster was consistently supported, and all the money at 4 to 1 about him was promptly taken, while 7 to 2 was the best offer. The friends of Harold rallied round him during the evening, and he dethroned Southerly Buster from the position of first favourite, finishing up at 5 to 2. Alma and T. W. had a good many admirers, and Democrat II. had a fair share of support. Subjoined are the latest quotations:—5 to 2 v. Harold, taken and offered; 7 to 2 v. Southerly Buster, taken and offered; 4 to 1 v. Alma, taken; 5 to 1 v. T. W. offered, 6 to 1 taken; 7 to 1 v. Democrat II., taken and offered; 10 to 1 v. Ravensworth, taken and offered; 20 to 1 each v. Lady Godiva and Bonnie Doon, offered. Double betting was fairly brisk, but there was nothing doing on the Sydney Cup straight out.

The general entries for the forthcoming meetings of the Wellington and Germanton racing institutions close on Monday next.

The final payment for the principal handicaps to be decided at the Brisbane Tattersall's Easter meeting must be made on Tuesday next.

The Tumbarumba racing authorities held their annual two day's gathering on the 16th and 17th instant, when the attendance was very good, and excellent sport was provided. The Maiden Plate, 1¼ mile, for which seven started, brought about a capital contest, the winner turning up in Mr. J. Pierce's Bonnie Bertha, who also secured the Juvenile Stakes from a field of five with the greatest ease. The Tambarumba Handicap, in which four sported silk, was a gift to Mr. R. Donnelan's Zebia, who also distinguished herself by annexing the Publicans' Purse on the second day from a field of half-a-dozen, after a splendid race. Mr. R. J. Daly's Fisherboy scored a well-earned victory in the Flying Handicap, in which half a dozen competed; and he also won the Jockey Club Handicap, defeating four others. The Hurdle Race fell to Mr. S. Daly's Mountaineer, after a great race with Wait-a-While, who had a strong lead at the last hurdle, which he struck, unseating the rider, Boland, who, however, clung on to the horse's neck and regained the saddle, but was unable to catch Mountaineer in the run home. The Prince of Wales' Stakes went to Bowman, the Farewell Handicap to Veronica, and the Hurry Scurry to Brinda. Mr. W. J. Lyne, M.L.A., who was present at the meeting, promised to give a gold bracelet set with diamonds to be competed for at the next gathering, and a member of the club promised to present a silver cup.

A successful gathering took place at Corowa on Wednesday, when the annual reunion of the local racing club was held. The attendance was fully up to anticipations, and large fields brought about excellent sport. Eleven were saddled up for the Flying Handicap, 6 furlongs, and Latona (7st.), who succeeded in catching the judge's eye, was followed home by Ravenstein (7st. 6lb.) and Winnie (7st. 12lb.) Five went to the post for the Selling Race, 7 furlongs, in which Aceldama, Sovereign, and Highland finished in that order. Tradition, with 7st. stone in the saddle, came home in front of Creole (6st.) and Arrow (6st. 4lb.) in the Corowa Handicap, 1½ mile; and he also secured the Ladies' Bracelet, 1 mile and 141 yards, from a field of eight, with 7st. 2lb. up, Ravenstein (7st. 2lb.) and Latona filling the other places. Five competed in the Hurdle Race, 2 miles, and the placed horses were Called Back (9st. 12lb.), Honor Bright (10st.), and Bella (10st. 3lb.). Cobweb won the Foal Stakes, from a field of four, and the Novel Selling Race was appropriated by Lightfoot.

MELBOURNE BETTING MARKET.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

There was little or no betting to-night on the Hawkesbury Handicap. Harold was decidedly the favourite, at 5 to 2 taken and offered. Southerly Buster occupied next position at 100 to 30, taken and offered, whilst Alma was at 4 to 1 taken and offered; 5 to 1 about The Nun found no takers. The Sydney Cup was neglected; 3 to 1 is offered against Carlyon, whilst 5 to 1 will be taken. A little money was placed about Arsenal at the same figure, which is also on offer against Acme.

DEPARTURE OF THE AUSTRALIAN ELEVEN.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

The Australian Eleven left to-day for London by the M. M. steamer Oceanien. They were met by several representatives of the South Australian Cricketing Association. The team are in fine spirits, and expect to have a successful tour.

LILLYWHITE'S TEAM IN NEW ZEALAND.

AUCKLAND, FRIDAY.

A cricket match between Lillywhite's team and a local twenty-two was commenced at Wellington to-day. The visitors went first to the wickets, and were all disposed of for 207. When play ceased the home team had lost seventeen wickets for 71.

PEDESTRIANISM.

The running in the first round of the Carrington Easter Handicap commences to-night, when 21 heats will be disposed of. The draw appeared in our issue of yesterday, and it will be seen that the above heats comprise some noted pedestrians. The first heat starts at 8 o'clock.

A £12 handicap is advertised for Good Friday, to be run on the Sutherland cinder tracks, which are in excellent condition. Entries close on Tuesday next, and handicaps will appear in the Herald of Thursday.

Peds and others will do well to notice the programme in our advertising columns of the New Brighton Recreation Company's Sports, to come off on Easter Monday.

LACROSSE ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Lacrosse Association of New South Wales was held on Friday night, at the Cambridge Club Hotel. Mr. F. W. Sim occupied the chair, there being about 25 members present. The annual report stated that the association was in a flourishing condition. One new club, the St. Leonards, has joined the association. Exhibition matches had been played in St. Leonards, Parramatta, and elsewhere. Mr. Hyam having presented a silver cup to the Balmain club, to be competed for as they might deem fit, the club generously offered the cup to the association for competition, and again won it, St. Leonards being second. An attempt to bring about an intercolonial match with Melbourne fell through. A team visited Brisbane, and of two matches played, won one. A successful smoke concert was held on the 5th of August. A match was projected with Richmond, but it had to be abandoned owing to wet weather. The crowning success of last season was the tournament played on the Domain on the 27th of August. The association had joined the Centennial Sports committee; but the expected Government subsidy had not been paid. The association had also joined with other bodies in the efforts made to obtain a new sports ground. Messrs. Holdsworth and Co. had offered a trophy for the forthcoming season. In conclusion, the secretary (Mr. J. S. Scott) bade adieu to the association, as he was leaving for England. The balance-sheet showed a credit balance of 8s. 7d., with one unpaid subscription of £1. The report and balance-sheet were adopted. The secretary, in reply to a question, stated that the St. Leonards Club had not received the trophies offered by the association as runners up for the Hyam trophy last season. A vote of thanks was accorded Mr. Scott, the retiring secretary, for the hearty interest he has always exhibited in the game. Mr. J. Byrne was elected secretary pro tem. A vote of thanks was accorded the press, and the meeting closed on the understanding that a meeting of new delegates would be called on the 13th of April. At the conclusion a very handsome dressing-case was presented to Mr. Scott by Mr. Sim on behalf of the players of the colony. The representatives of several clubs eulogised warmly the services of Mr. Scott to lacrosse, and the recipient suitably acknowledged the present.

AQUATICS.

To-day will be one of the busiest of days the sailing community have experienced during the season. There are five races set down for competition, four of which will be sailed in the harbour, and one at Botany. The principal of these is the last of the series of three races between the three 6-tonners—Sao (F. Milford, M.D.), Assegai (W. P. Smairl), and Iolanthe (W. M. Maclardy), for a sweepstake of £15 per boat, and which will be sailed under the auspices of the Prince Alfred Yacht Club. The winner to be decided by points as follows:—First boat in each race scoring five points, the second three, and the third one. Two of the races have been sailed—the first resulting in a win for Assegai, with Iolanthe second, and Sao third; and the second on Saturday last being won by Iolanthe, with Assegai second, Sao not finishing owing to losing her mast. Thus the points scored are:—Iolanthe, 8; Assegai, 8; and Sao, 1 making the Assagai and Iolanthe equal in points; therefore the race to-day will be between the points to decide which will take possession of the sweepstake. The Sao has had a new mast shipped in her by Mr. Ford, of Berry's Bay, and the "Doctor" intends having another tussle with his rivals, but, of course, he will have no chance of winning the sweepstake, as in the event of the Sao winning, she has not secured enough points. Great interest is attached to this event, each party being confident of success. The Iolanthe is to have Mr. Sid. Wilson at the helm, while the Assagai and Sao will be sailed by their respective owners, and with any sort of a breeze the winner should turn up in the Iolanthe. The course will be the same as that sailed in the two previous races, viz., twice round Manly. The steamer Gosford will follow the race, leaving No. 4 Jetty, Circular Quay, at 1.45 p.m. sharp. Mr. Fred. Bennett will officiate as commodore of the race.

The Sydney Amateur Sailing Club have a hurry scurry race this afternoon for all boats, the prize being, first, the vice-commodore's (Mr. T. Marshall) trophy, second £3, and third £1. The boats entered and their handicaps are as follows:—Rosetta, 22ft., scratch; Ellie, 22ft., 1 minute; Xarifa, 24ft., 3 minutes; Guinevere, 22ft., 4 minutes; Triton, 22ft., 4 minutes; Varuna, 22ft., 5 minutes; Cynthia, 20ft., 6 minutes; Lottie, 24ft., 8 minutes; Buttercup, 22ft., 8 minutes; Sea Breeze, 24ft., 9 minutes; Pomona, 20ft., 12 minutes; Lena, 18ft., 16 minutes. The crews are limited as follows:—Boats, 19ft. and under, four hands; over 19ft. and under 22ft., five hands; 22ft. and under 24ft., six hands; 24ft. and over, seven hands; and the sails, mainsail, jib, and topsail. The course is a novel one, being altogether different from any sailed by the club's boats during the season, being as follows:—A flying start at 3.15 p.m. from line between starter's boat and Kirribilli Point, down to and round lightship and Sow and Pigs, round Shark Island, passing outside both buoys, thence round Fort Denison, passing to the southward of Clark and Garden Islands, round Shark Island to Fort Macquarie, passing Clark and Garden Islands to the southward again. Looking at the handicaps as allotted, the Pomona seems to have the best show, and should not be far out at the finish, but Triton and Cynthia may run her very closely. Mr. C. F. Dunn will officiate as commodore of the race.

The Sydney Amateur Canvas Dingy Club are again to the fore this afternoon, having a handicap race set down for second and third-class boats, for a prize presented by the committee of the club. The entries and handicaps are:—Acme, 14ft., S. Smale, scratch working and leading; Ella, 14ft., J. Hawkes, 1 minute working and scratch leading; Daisy, 13ft., G. Batchelor, 5½ minutes' working and 5 minutes leading; Minnie, 12ft., C. Hellings, and Elmina, 12ft., H. Beattie, 10 minutes' working and 9 minutes' leading; and Endeavour, 10ft., P. Summerbell, 16 minutes' working and 15 minutes' leading. The start will take place at 3.16 p.m., and will be a flying one, and the course will be the usual Shark Island one. Mr. F. M'Donnell will officiate as starter, and Mr. E. G. Foster as umpire. The hon. secretary (Mr. A. Dunn) has offered a trophy to be sailed for on the 7th April for a race open to boats 12ft. and under. The course and conditions will be considered at the next meeting of the club.

A committee meeting of the Balmain Sailing Club was held at Cohen's Exchange Hotel, Balmain, on Wednesday evening last, when it was resolved to make an effort to carry out the remainder of the club's programme for the season. A number of the members having settled their arrears of subscriptions, and several new members having been added to the roll, the club's finances are placed in a far more healthy condition. Two trophies have been presented to the club to be sailed for, one being from Captain Heselton (valued at £5), and the other from the commodore (Mr. C. Cameron). The first named has been allotted to the 16ft. dingy race, to be sailed to-day; and the other for 14ft. dingies, to be sailed on April 7. The entries for the 16ft. dingy race were then taken, which were as follows:—Our Boys, Mr. G. Fletcher; Sophia, Mr. C. Cameron; and Our Own, Mr. W. E. Pacey. The race will be sailed over the usual course, and should result in a very close and exciting contest, the boats being well matched, and the well-known veterans, Fletcher, Ellis, and Colebrook, will be at the helms of the respective boats, and being probably the last time these boats will meet till next season, there will no doubt be a large amount of interest centred in the race.

The Botany Sailing Club have a race this afternoon for boats over 19ft., to be sailed over the club course at Botany.

It is notified that a steamer to convey ladies and gentlemen and members of the New South Wales Rowing Association will leave the Floating Jetty, Circular Quay, at 2.30 p.m. to-day in order to admit of a view of crew practice in connection with the forthcoming intercolonial race.

The handicap outrigger race in connection with last Saturday's events of the Balmain Rowing Club regatta, and which was postponed on account of the strong winds prevailing at the time, will, weather permitting, take place to-day at 4 p.m. There are five contestants, and the course is from the club's shed round Rodd Island, and back to shed.

The annual regatta in connection with the Glebe Rowing Club will take place this afternoon at Blackwattle Bay.

The first general meeting for 1888 of the St. Ignatius College Rowing Club was held on Thursday, when the following officers were elected:—Captain Thos. Cussen; hon. secretary and treasurer, J. P. Clifford; committee, Messrs. D. O'Neill, J. O'Connell, A. Thynne, J. Gentry, E. Pollard, and T. D'Arcy. It was decided to hold the yearly meeting of hon. members immediately after Easter, when the annual report will be submitted.

LAWN TENNIS.

The first round of the Ladies' Single Handicap, which was arranged by the committee of the Sydney Lawn Tennis Club, has been played, and the second round will be played next week.

We are informed that a Gentleman's Single Handicap and Ladies' and Gentlemen's Handicap will be played on the Asphalt Courts of the Geelong L. T. C., on 30th March and 1st and 2nd April next. The prizes are valuable, including a 25-guinea cup. Players from this colony are invited to compete, and entries may be made with the hon. secretary, Mr. Orr, of the National Bank, Geelong.

The dates fixed for the M. C. C. Grass Tournament are the 16th of April and following days. The events are Single and Double Championship, and the entries may be made with Mr. Wardill, the secretary. The events are open to all-comers. The winner of the singles will hold the Silver Challenge Cup, value 50 guineas, presented by Mr. M. Buckley. The cup has to be won twice to entitle possession of it. It is to be regretted that the two meetings noticed above could not have been arranged to follow one another at Easter time, as then probably some few players from this colony would have been able with a week or ten days holiday to have competed at the two tournaments. As they are arranged we fear that none of our prominent players will be able to take part in them.

CYCLING.

The Glebe Bicycle Club held their first annual meeting on the 21st instant at the residence of their secretary, 75, Glebe-road, Mr. James Bryan occupying the chair. The following six members were elected:—Messrs. G. E. Endicott, F. H. Smith, C. Molloy, G. Molloy, J. Molloy, and C. Hutchinson. The annual report and balance-sheet were submitted by the secretary, showing a credit balance of over £7, which is considered very satisfactory for such a young club. After various business had been transacted the officers were unanimously elected as follows:—Patron, Dr. W. C. Wilkinson, M.L.A.; president, Mr. M. Chapman, M.L.A.; vice-presidents, Alderman T. G. Dunn, Alderman J. Meeks, Alderman S. Bryan, and Mr. Henry W. Lee; captain, Mr. Geo. H. Williams; sub-captain, Mr. F. S. Gibbons; committee, Messrs. C. Cawley, J. Bryan, W. Fortescue, and C. Molloy; treasurer, Mr. T. M. J. Goldrick; secretary, Mr. E. J. Walmsley; delegate to the N. S. W. Cyclists' Union, Mr. W. H. Heyes, re-elected. It was decided to present a gold medal to the member who attends most runs during the coming season; also to celebrate the first anniversary with a ball, to take place next month in the Glebe Town Hall. It was announced that members would meet on Tuesday next, 27th instant, for drill, prior to the opening run of the season on April 7.

QUEENSLAND MANGE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It has been found that scabies, which is better known as scab, attacks almost all animals, especially the horse, ox, sheep, dog, cat, and fowl, the cause of the disease being apparently neglect of cleanliness, bad food, exposure to the weather, &c. The disease is essentially parasitic, being due to the presence of acari. There are several kinds or genera, but that which I propose to particularly notice are the acari of mange in the horse, and is divided into three classes—1st, sarcoptes, or the creature which burrows in the flesh; 2nd, psoroptes, or the creature which conceals itself beneath the crusts of scabies; and 3rd, symbiotes, the creature which lives in families or groups. The bovine species are troubled with two sorts, psoroptic and symbiotic; the sheep three, sarcoptic, psoroptic, and symbiotic; the pig one, sarcoptic; the cat one, sarcoptic.

Symbiotic Scabies.—This variety is due to a parasite which lives in numerous groups on the limbs of horses; it does not burrow like the sarcoptic, but irritates the skin by their bites, and this causes a production of crusts, among which the insect lives in an almost stationary manner until the increase of numbers force them to move, and thus the diseased part is increased slowly. This form of scab is easily cured.

Psoroptes Scabies.—This variety is more generally met with, and the parasites on the horse may be detected by the naked eye. They are generally located about the animal's neck and root of the mane, and cause excessive irritation; thus when this disease has invaded the body to any extent the continuous rubbing and biting of the animal affected to the parts produce excoriations and wounds.

Sarcoptic Scabies.—This is the disease which, in my opinion, the horses in Queensland are principally suffering from, and is much more serious and difficult to eradicate than either of the former, as its name signifies. It burrows in the skin, and the acrid fluid which it discharges into the wound is most irritant. This wound causes a small vesicle and scab.

Unlike the other species of scab, it does not live among the furfuraceous crusts, and most probably burrows into the skin, though the excavations or trenches have not been noticed in animals, owing probably to their thick skins, hairs, &c., and which is also the cause of the great difficulty experienced in procuring the parasite. The disease as a general rule commences about the withers, neck, or head, and then spreads along the back and sides of the body. At first the disease progresses very slowly, but after a time it spreads with astonishing rapidity, and if nothing is done to check the complaint it may become chronic or constitutional, and this form can only be cured by the use of internal as well as external remedies. It is noticed that horses that are stable-fed and well attended to resist the disease to a very great extent; in fact, while in Queensland I saw preventitive medicine used with unfailing success on animals surrounded by the complaint. It might also be noted that when the disease has destroyed the skin there is a vegetoid or fungoid growth; in fact, a fungus growth may be found in all species of mange, so that in diagnosing the complaint we should not be led away by the idea that this fungus growth is the cause, as it is in reality only a result of the disease.

Mode of Procuring the Acarus.—There are three systems generally adopted:—1. Wash the affected part with hot water, then, with a strong magnifying glass, to search for the parasite. 2. Simply brushing the scurf quickly on to a sheet of white paper, then examining with a microscope. 3. Bind some of the scurf on the arm, and if any parasites are present they will be felt, and may be removed with a fine needle. In conclusion I would like to say a few words in reference to the acarus I brought from Queensland. It is affirmed that this parasite is cat acarus, but I am convinced that it is not. Dr. Lightoller, who discovered this particular parasite, was satisfied that it was a young one and not full grown. Now the horse and cat acari are very much alike, the only difference being their size, and this is how the mistake was made in distinguishing it. Because it was not large enough for the adult horse acarus it was pronounced to be cat acarus, but supposing it is Sarcoptes scabiei of the feline species, then we have a much more serious disease among our stock than is acknowledged, for this cat acarus will thrive on the horse and produce a similar disease to which we now have. I am, &c.,

HERBERT POTTIE.

MINISTERIAL VISIT TO JUNEE.

SPEECHES BY SIR HENRY PARKES.

THE DISORDER IN THE ASSEMBLY.

PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE BILL.

ELECTORAL LAW REFORM.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Reporters.)

JUNEE, Friday.

Sir Henry Parkes, accompanied by the Hon. F. Abigail, Minister for Mines, left Sydney last night by the 9 o'clock mail train, on a visit to Junee, which place was reached at 9.30 this morning. The Premier was cordially welcomed at the station, by the Mayor, Mr. G. Dobbins, the local aldermen, and a number of influential residents. Shortly after arrival, the Ministers were entertained at a public breakfast at the Railway Refreshment-rooms, at which the Mayor presided. The health of "The Premier and the Ministry" was proposed by the Mayor, who read the following address:—"On behalf of the Borough Council and residents of Junee, I have much pleasure in giving you a hearty welcome on the occasion of this your first visit to our municipality, and we trust that your stay with us will be an enjoyable one to yourselves, and that the experience you will gain of our town and district will be to our mutual benefit. Junee being the junction of the Great Southern and the South-western railway lines, and the centre of a large agricultural, pastoral, and mining district, is no doubt destined to become an important centre of population; and as the Government works located here contribute very materially to the prosperity of the town and district, we feel honoured and pleased that the Premier and one of the other members of the Ministry have deemed it advisable to pay us a visit. In conclusion, we trust that you will be long spared to assist in moulding the destiny of this great colony of New South Wales."

Sir Henry Parkes expressed his gratification at the reception accorded to him and his colleague, and their thanks for the address. They were both fully aware of the resources of the Junee district; and if they were not, the progress it had made within the last 10 years would show how prosperous the district was. He had little doubt that, as time went on, the Junee district would become a very important part of New South Wales. They might rest assured that neither he nor his colleague would move about the district with their eyes closed, and if they could in any way assist the district in a legitimate and fair way they knew that by so doing they would be rendering service to the whole country. It was his duty, holding the position which he did, to keep in view the interests of the whole population of the country, and especially not to allow himself to be drawn into favouring one part of the population at the expense of the other part. So far as he could promote the welfare of this district, or any other, consistently with his important duty to the whole country, he would be glad to do so. He would assure them that he had paid this hurried visit from a sincere desire to see the extent of the progress made since his last visit, 10 years ago.

Mr. Abigail also returned thanks for the kind reception tendered to the Premier and himself. Junee being an agricultural district, it would interest them to learn that the Government had under consideration the formation of a Department of Agriculture. If that were formed, it would be attached to the department over which he presided. If this were done, it would give him the greatest pleasure to assist in anyway possible in developing the agricultural industry of this or any other part of the colony. He thought the contemplated department would prove a most important means for aiding in securing the country's progress, and when he told them that the Premier had entered into the matter in a hearty spirit they might expect something to occur in connection with the matter in a very short time.

Mr. T. W. Hammond, J.P., proposed the health of "The Mayor," and this having been responded to, the proceedings terminated.

After breakfast the Ministers paid a visit to the court-house, a small wooden structure, which the residents consider inadequate to the requirements of the place.

The Premier and his colleague then visited the Public school; and after the children had sung several hymns in a very pleasing manner,

Sir Henry Parkes addressed them. He said that the few words he had to say he was going to say very earnestly. This school had been provided by the beneficence of the public. The cost which fell upon their parents was very trifling in proportion to that incurred by the State. They had a school which was so constructed that it would be as little injurious to their lives when they were confined there as possible; that was, there was a certain proportion of fresh air for every one of them. They had a teacher who had himself been taught in former years how to teach. A school was very often presided over by a man who had found it impossible to do anything else, who came to teach little children as the last resource in life; but now in this country of New South Wales there was quite an army of trained teachers, men and women, every one of whom before he or she was trusted to go into a school, was taught by a competent master trained in the method of teaching. The course of instruction, as far as primary education was concerned, was about as good as it could be. Hence they saw they had a healthy building in which to be taught; they had accomplished and trained teachers employed for the purpose of instructing them; and the course of primary instruction was admitted to be sound and good. They would thus see how great were the advantages they had over their grandfathers and their grandmothers, who had none of the benefits which could be derived from a Public school. Now they were at an age, some of them younger, some older, which might be called the golden season of life. He had shown them the advantages they possessed in regard to the means of instruction, but that was a small part of the blessings which surrounded them. Now, most of them, it was evident from their nice cleanly appearance, had kind parents. They had a home provided for them, protection afforded to them without any effort of theirs, and all they had to do was to take advantage of that golden season to perfect themselves as far as possible in education, the means of which were afforded them in that school. This golden season would not last long with some of them. It would last one year with some, two years with some, three with some, four with others, and in a few cases five, but it would soon pass away; and then they would come to enter into the battle of life—that was, to join in some calling where they would have to go their own way and to earn their own bread. The golden season by which they might benefit would then be gone, and gone for ever. It never would return to them. One word as to what education was. It did not mean knowledge, it did not mean learning in its largest sense, it did not mean information; but it enabled them to acquire the art of putting words together, of putting figures together, and of tracing lines on the surface of pieces of paper to understand how to express themselves in communicating with their fellow-men and women, and in calculating weights, quantities, and values in the intercourse of life, and to understand the different geographical relations of the globe. In other words, what they acquired now as education was simply the keys which would open to them knowledge of the sources of learning, and of the riches of scenes which the world possessed. If they did justice to themselves there was no limit to the extent to which they might acquire the means of knowledge, because education put together in a public school would as it were be but a key with which to open the door to great imperishable treasures of the most gifted and learned men of the world. They would see how precious time was, and in going away to enjoy themselves, as he hoped they all would, in that perfect bliss which sprang from innocence, he trusted they would come back fresh, determined in every case to make the best of their time. Some very distinguished man, or some eminently good woman might come forth from that school to render service to mankind; but whether or not that would be the case, the boys could certainly become worthy citizens, and the girls good respected women. (Hear, hear.) He wished them God-speed, and that fortune might attend all their efforts.

Cheers were given for Sir Henry Parkes and Mr. Abigail. The infant school was then inspected, and the result seemed quite as satisfactory as in the former case. In each school the children were granted a half-holiday. Subsequently the Ministers paid a visit to the railway workshops and other parts of the town.

Evening Meeting.

In the evening a public meeting was held in Crowley's Hall, which was crowded with an audience numbering some 300 or 400 people. The chair was occupied by Mr. G. Dobbyns, Mayor, and a number of local gentlemen were on the platform, amongst them being Alderman James Hopkins, J. H. Davies, C. Blatch, T. C. Humphries, P. T. Bourke, Messrs. T. W. Hammond, A. J. A. Bunidge, and L. Wontner. The Premier and Minister for Mines on entering the hall were received with enthusiastic applause. The chairman briefly introduced the Premier.

Sir Henry Parkes, who was received with loud cheers, said his first words must be to crave their indulgence because he really appeared before them in a condition not very well fitted to address them. He had got a very severe cold that was affecting his voice and altogether making him feel rather uncomfortable, and for that reason alone he must ask their patience and indulgence. He was there at Junee not as a candidate for their suffrages, not seeking any advantages or any favour at their hands, but there were certain questions agitating the country to which he had no doubt they attached importance, and on which probably they took a very different view, and in regard to which they probably might not be altogether in agreement. (Hear, hear.) But for that very reasons these questions deserved patient and sober examination. They were members of a free community, and every matter that affected the welfare of the communities ought to be considered, not in heat of passion, not in any captious spirit, but to arrive at the real interests of truth. (Cheers.) It seemed to him that without any particular presumption he might venture to address any body of his fellow-countrymen in New South Wales on the strength of his long services to the country. (Cheers.) If active knowledge in the highest places, and that experience, which could only be gained by years, entitled men to have their opinions calmly and duly weighed, probably he occupied that position in a more eminent degree than any man in the Australian colonies. There was yet one other reason that, if he put aside that cold, he was in a fair state of health—perhaps he might outlive some of the youngsters. Still, in the nature of things, he could not be very long amongst them, having now served the country in the highest offices for more than a generation—for some 35 years—standing very near the end of that service, it seemed to him that he was quite justified in trying to address them or any other company of people of the country on those questions which affected its lasting welfare for good or evil. He had continually brought under the notice of his countrymen, when he had opportunity the nature of government under which we lived, and he would try to do that in a very few words that night; and he should try to impress upon them one of the conditions of human society which tended to weaken the judgment of all of them. In estimating that which we possessed the poet told us that "Man never is, but always to be blest."

In other words, more or less we were dissatisfied with what lay around us. We were always sighing for something in the future, and always indulging in regrets for something that had gone by. But, notwithstanding this tendency in the human mind they might rest assured that what was going on now right before their eyes, what was being enacted on the stage of events in New South Wales, or even in the more limited stage of their pleasant town, or in the larger theatre of European States, was just as important, just as fraught with vital interest, just as much surcharged with eventful consequences to humanity, as anything which had preceded, or anything which was to come, and what he really wanted to do was to draw their minds to that stage of contemplation that in surveying the past and in estimating the future they should take full measure and weigh patiently and thoughtfully what was going on around them in the living moment. To illustrate what he meant, by persons forgetting the experience of the past he would give them the case of the black population in America. A generation ago they were an enslaved people—owned by human masters—without the rights of human beings, subject to all kinds of terrible afflictions incidental to the state of slavery. But the black people in America now, those men who were children after the civil war terminated, no more thought of the slavery of their fathers than they thought of any other passing thing; and it was amusing to see the game and proud feeling of the free black men now, who felt insulted now if they were alluded to as children of slaves. And it was within the recollection of some of them, at any rate, that they were horrified by the revelations made in that eventful story, "Uncle Tom's Cabin," because it simply drew a picture of what was going on at the time; but it was all forgotten now. The terrible state of slavery which existed up to the close of the civil war could not possibly be realised by the descendants of those very slaves. He had an object in drawing their attention to this illustrative case, because he was going to speak to them on a question on which he had no doubt there were very diverse opinions. He meant the question of what was called protection and free trade. He was not going to speak to them in the heated feeling of a partisan, but rather as a student, however imperfect a one, of the history of our country and of the world; and what he really wanted to do that night was not by a specious argument to wound or please, but to lay before them the calm unsophisticated facts that lay at the bottom of any fiscal policy for the country; and taking the illustration he had just given them, the blacks in America at the present day could not realise what their fathers endured. So the people of this colony could not possibly realise what their fathers endured under the protective system of England not more than 50 years ago. (Cheers.) If it were possible for them to have seen the stagnation of trade, the depression of wages, the gaunt spectacles of want and destitution, the utter ruin which that system brought upon Englishmen and Englishwomen within this very century, not more than 50 years ago—if it were possible for them to see that, there would not be one man in a thousand in this country who would advocate protection. As he had said on other occasions, protection was not a true definition of the policy intended. The true definition was restriction. Everybody must own it who would quietly consider the subject, and who understood their mother tongue. Now every country, every organised Government that ever existed, had lived under this restrictive doctrine. Turn where they would in all the wide expanse of history, they would find no country under the sun in any age that had not a protective or restrictive policy. Every country, and every semi-barbarous country, every imperfectly advised country, every country attaining to the highest condition of civilisation had tried this system of protection. It was an important thing to bear in mind that this was no new thing. It had been tried by the whole of the human family for 2000 years. America adopted it soon after the revolutionary war. Why? In a spirit of retaliation, because England, being a protectionist country, would not admit her produce on easy terms. Thus all over the world and in all ages country after country had adopted this policy—not on its merits, but as a retaliatory measure against the country which did not treat the country adopting it fairly. (Cheers.) Even now there was some talk in the mother country of adopting a direct policy of retaliation against those countries which would not admit its products free of duty. He stood there to tell them, and he knew he echoed the voices of the wisest men living, that no circumstance could honestly and rationally justify a policy of retaliation in any civilised country whatever. (Cheers). It was very much the same thing as in private life. If some person inflicted injury upon them it was far more manly, and far more just, and far more magnanimous and in accord with the spirit of our Divine religion, not to revenge themselves by retaliating, but to treat this criminal offence in the most Christian spirit they could. (Cheers.) Either in civilised society or between nations, if a spirit of retaliation were pursued, when one committed an offence it did not want more than the intelligence of a child to see that it must lead to the dissolution of the true foundations of society. (Cheers.) Well, if they kept in mind this broad fact, that all the countries in succession had tried this restrictive policy, and that hardly any of them had prospered under it at any time, they would be better able to understand its true bearings upon young and free countries like ours, where the soil was fresh from the hand of a bountiful Creator, and where we were endeavouring to carve out a destiny for ourselves free from all errors. (Cheers.) England had tried this policy of free commerce for a period of less than 50 years, and it had placed her in the position of leader of all the other nations. (Cheers.) She had the lion's share of the commerce of the world, and her progress under it had been so marvellous that there was nothing in any age which could be compared with it. Her people were better paid and better fed than those of any other nation, excepting those of the United States. He referred to countries on the continent of Europe as an illustration of the evil effects of protection; and speaking particularly of Germany said that though she was undoubtedly a great country, her greatness mainly rested on her armaments, and not on the happiness and welfare of the great mass of the people. Recently an increase was made in the duty on corn, and almost immediately the price of bread rose; and a similar result would surely follow any such attempt here. In Sweden, the freetrade party at the last general election gained an easy victory over the Protectionists, and German policy was decided, not by the people, but by one or two men who held power. The United States had been until recently continually pointed to by the advocates of a restrictive policy, but he would point out the real condition of that country. The protective duties, which ranged up to 75 per cent., were the highest in the world. If these duties did create manufactures, they ought to do so in the United States; but they found that out of a population of 50 millions only some 3½ millions were employed in manufactures. The reasonable probability was that if the manufacturing industries of the United States had been left to themselves and to the operation of those principles of nature which ought to be at the bottom of all laws, they would have been far larger and more prosperous than they were to-day. (Cheers.) There were some eight million people settled on the land in the United States; but these farmers had to pay the increased tax on everything they or their family consumed. When they took their wheat to market they found it would not sell for a sufficient sum to pay for the necessaries of life. The effect of all this on the Western farmers was that there was hardly a man amongst them but would sell out and come to these colonies if he was able to do so. He had gathered his information from the most trustworthy sources—the reports of the various labour bureaus in the different States. The high tariff had had the effect of bringing up monopolies in all directions, and a few men had become inordinately rich, whilst the masses had been ground down to such a level that they could hardly exist at all. He found from statistics that only a short time ago, and he believed it was the case still, there were 100,000 people in the city of New York who did not know where to get food or shelter; and of these 20,000 were women. Let them turn to Victoria, and see how the farmers were getting on there. In that colony they were in much the same position as the farmers in America, except that the burdens laid upon them were not so heavy. They were loudly complaining from one end of the colony to the other of the insufficient price they got for their crops. The price they got would be sufficient were it not for the increased price they had to pay for everything they used. In New Zealand there was the same state of affairs. The great mass of men who had been supported by the Government of this colony as unemployed—and whom he was glad to say were dwindling down to small numbers now—came from the protected colonies around us; the largest proportion coming from Victoria. If protection was such a good thing, why did not these men stop in protectionist colonies? Mr. Melville had for several years tried Victoria, where protection was in full swing, and he liked it so little that he came back to New South Wales. He would refer to what was going on at the seat of Government. The Government of which he was a member was doing a number of things which he ventured to think were of the utmost importance to all classes of the people. The railway system of the colony, which was now very heavy and complicated, had been brought into existence at a cost of about thirty millions sterling, the interest on which was fast approaching two millions annually; and this being the case, the Government had arrived at a decision that the time had come when this great State property would be placed under some board of management where political influence should not be permitted to touch its operations. The Railway Bill, which he trusted would be law in a few days would effect this. (Applause.) He could promise the country that no consideration would prevent the Government from trying to get the most upright and capable men to constitute this board. If this were done, he had no doubt that not only would a greater revenue be derived from the railway and corresponding reduction take place in respect to taxation, but the convenience of the public would be more scrupulously and carefully consulted. Many defects in working would be done away with, and everyone would derive a greater sense of satisfaction, feeling convinced that their interests were being more highly served than under the present system of political management. Then the Government had another great bill, which, if it passed into law—and it had already been read the second time—would be known as the Public Works Act. The main provision of this bill was to create an independent authority which would in every case of proposed heavy expenditure sift facts and evidence and say if the project were justified, and if the calculations of the Minister were likely to be borne out. In other words, the country would be saved a wasteful expenditure of public money, which in many cases in the past had taken place in the construction of railways which were not at the time of construction much wanted, and in respect to other public works. The Government had also, before Parliament a bill for the amendment of the law relating to the public lands. That was a question in which all were deeply interested, and it was a question surrounded by hosts of difficulties, not of the Government's creation. What he meant was, that if the present Government had had a clean sheet, and had begun anew, they might very well have laid down a different policy from that which they were compelled to follow at present. Great interests had been created by past legislation and a large number of smaller interests, and under these circumstances legislation must take place in constant view of what had gone before. He had no time to say much about the measure, but one or two of its provisions they would thoroughly appreciate. For example, hitherto small settlers had been subject to all kinds of vexatious interference by wealthy persons. When a settler had been in possession of his small holding for a time some one had often come across his path and taken him into the Supreme Court, and after harassing the soul out of him at last ruined him. In the new bill the principle was laid down that where a small selector, whether a conditional leaseholder or a purchaser of a piece of land, was interfered with by anyone else, the Government itself would defend him in his possession. (Cheers.) Another provision was intended to ease down the oppressive conditions of fencing by the Government accepting wherever it could be done, other substantial improvements in lieu of requiring expenditure on comparatively useless fencing, the cost of which small capitalists had to incur. (Cheers.) Another provision was framed to grant land for special purposes, not contemplated at the present time under the law, subject to the sanction of Parliament. That was supposing that a number of capitalists wished to introduce some system of high farming, and required more land than they could readily obtain. Now, this provision would enable them to take up land, and would thus provide for the introduction of fresh capital into the country and skilled treatment of the soil. Provision had also been made in the bill for allowing persons to obtain small pieces of land as homesteads. Hitherto land could be only obtained outside of certain boundaries in blocks of at least 40 acres, but by this bill five acres could be obtained by a tradesman who wished to get a freehold for his wife and family. Some of them might probably have heard of the amenities in Parliament of late. He would not advert to them in detail, because he did not care to say anything which would offend anybody, except when he was in his place face to face with them. He would, however, confess that many things had taken place which ought to make every sensitive and honest man ashamed. (Hear, hear.) He thought that it was more than likely the Government would incur the responsibility of introducing into the Legislature a measure to regulate the procedure of Parliament. This had never been done up to this time, but they had simply relied on standing orders made under the provisions of the Constitution Act. The time had arrived, however, when, he thought—and he expressed his own opinion without any reservation—that when a person committed an act of violence in the House—not through any effort to preserve his own freedom of speech, but through an effort to check another man from uttering free speech—a man of that kind ought to be absolutely expelled from the House. (Hear, hear.) He was further inclined to think that such a member ought to be rendered ineligible for election for a considerable time after the date of the commission of the offence. (Hear, hear.) There should be some drastic measure applied to prevent such scenes as they had witnessed in the House, and which every good man in the land must deplore. If ordinary rules were not sufficient, they must resort to others; and he thought it would be the duty of the Government before very long to take the step to which he had called attention. Whilst on this branch of the subject he would say a few words on the condition of the constituencies throughout the country, and on the present state of the electoral law. He might tell them at once that he was in favour of creating their district of Junee into a separate electorate. (Loud applause.) He was in favour of this, not only on account of Junee, but because it was required in many other constituencies throughout the country, especially where constituences were three-cornered ones, as in the Murrumbidgee electorate. In many cases, especially in three-cornered constituencies, it would be infinitely safer, and more likely to conduce to satisfactory results in the election of members of Parliament to create a separate electorate. Letters had appeared from time to time in the papers on the subject of electoral reform, and it astonished him sometimes to see what silly things could be said by sensible writers in these letters to the papers. One of the favourite theories put forward by several correspondents to cure all the evils which existed in Parliament was to reduce the number of members. One man wished to reduce them to 50, another to 40, another to 30; and nearly all the writers thought the whole of the disorders which, he was sorry to say had taken place, could be cured by a reduction of the number of members. What they meant by that was, he supposed, that a larger proportion of people should be represented by one member. Now what would those gentlemen think when he told them that the quota of electors represented by each member of the present Assembly was 150 per cent. larger than the quota of electors to each member in the first Assembly in 1856. In the first Assembly held in this colony people were over-represented to a much greater extent than they were now. In 1856 the number of members was 54, and the quota of electors to each member was 824. The next election took place in March, 1858, when there were 81 members, being 1 to every 891 of population. It should be noticed, however, that up to this date Queensland formed a portion of this colony. At the election of August, 1859, after the separation of Queensland, there were 72 members, or one to each 1227 of the population. In January, 1861, there were 1474 electors to each member, the number of the Assembly remaining the same. In January, 1865, there were 1665 electors to each member; in January, 1870, 1882 to each member; in April, 1872, 2136 to each member; in January, 1875, there were 2334 to each member. At the election of November, 1877, when the number of members had been increased by 1 to 73, owing to the University having been granted a member, there were 2201 electors to each member. At the next election, which took place in December, 1880, the new Electoral Act came into force, and caused an increase of the House to 108 members, so that the quota of electors to each member was 1745. At the election in January, 1883, the number in the House had risen to 113 members, or 1 every 1737 electors. In November, 1885, there were 122 members, 1 to every 1903 electors. At last election, in January, 1887, there were 124 members, or 1 to every 2069 electors, so that the proportion of electors to each member had been increased by 150 per cent. Since the small Assembly of 54 members which met in 1856. In any electoral system a large number of issues had to be considered, and these worked out certain results, and a complete variety of interests, which covered not only every class but every calling in the country. If they bore in mind the character of a deliberative assembly they would see that certain conditions were unavoidable. If they wished to have a good assembly they should always bear in mind that the work of deliberation could not be done by physical means, but it must be done by conflict of mind, by a battle of will, and contention of reason, and just in proportion as men rose to the honest exercise of what intellect they possessed, guided by experience, so would their work be good. They sometimes heard a man to say on the hustings that he did not appeal to the electors as an orator, but wanted to be elected as a working member. If the business of a member of the Assembly were to dig a potato field he would be in good fettle and suited to work; but this was not a work which he ought to do. He must do his work, whether badly or well, according to the intellect which God had given him. It was absolutely necessary, as far as those were concerned who had a fairer share of mental power than others, that such conditions should exist. It was also necessary that the members of any such deliberative body should be sufficient in number to prevent the formation of dangerous cliques, so that a party of eight or nine men should not have the power of holding the balance between the one party and another, and that little contention parties should be prevented. It was a necessity as well to have numbers in order to afford that human sympathy between a man and his fellowmen which brought out all the powers of the man who was addressing himself to a subject. They would see at once if they gave their attention at all—or any study to the subject—that no man however gifted or accomplished could speak to half-a-dozen persons as he would to 200. Again, numbers were necessary in order to give such a range to representation that it should include all the variety of interests of the country. (Cheers.) Then they would see that they could not fix the number of a deliberative assembly by the numbers of the population. Whether a country had a population of 20 millions or one million, they must have a certain number of members to effect the great objects of a House of Parliament. As far as the expansive clauses of the Electoral Act were concerned, they had had the effect of sending into the House up to the present 16 new members, who would not have had seats in the House if this Act had not been in existence; and that class of philosophers who, when anything went wrong, looked at the nearest object and said that was what we had to get rid of, were continually crying out about these expansive clauses. He was inclined to think that these clauses could not go on operating, because he thought the House was large enough. What, however, would have been the case if these expansive clauses had not existed. Those constituencies which, by dint of industry and industrial power, and intelligence and amity, had expanded to some 4000 voters, would have remained with one member; whilst another place, which had made no progress, would have also had one member to only 1000 electors. Would the country have been content with this inequality of representation, which at all events had been cured by the operation of these expansive clauses? He had come to the conclusion that new electoral law was necessary, and he considered that the electorates should be apportioned so as to give far more satisfactory results. Some alteration, he thought, was absolutely necessary in the law of the country in order to prevent impersonation. These were the great objects to be aimed at—To give fuller and more satisfactory representation to the country, and to try and cure some of the defects in the present law, by which persons were able to criminally personate other electors, and bring about a false result. The time had come to effect this, and if his life were spared he would introduce a bill of this kind, he thought during the present session. In any such bill as this it would be his duty to split Murrumbidgee into three separate electorates. (Applause.) Perhaps no subject connected with the province of politics had been the source of more speculation than the creation of a proper electoral system. Some persons had advocated that the electors should have power not only to elect a member, but to unelect him. He was glad to think that there were some constituencies which, if they had the power, would set about unelecting some of their members to-morrow; but he often thought that if it could be really carried out,—although there would be some difficulty in doing so,—it would not be a bad thing to unelect a member. For example, if he won the suffrages of a constituency by declaring himself to be the champion of a great cause, and if, after so declaring himself, he deserted his colours, and went over to the enemy, he thought it would be only just that the constituency should go through the process of a new election. (Cries of "Dibbs.") He mentioned no names. He was not there to mention people's names unless he could speak of them in terms of approval. He was inclined to think there ought to be, as he had already indicated, provision to unelect persons who committed certain offences which should render them ineligible for immediate election to the Assembly. He thought that a man convicted of any frauds on the ballot-box, or who had committed grave offences such as he had indicated ought to be ineligible for election. He concluded with an eloquent peroration, in which he alluded to the great fertility and beauty of this country, and appealed to the people to lay broad and deep in this sunny land the foundation of a great free and Christian Empire. (Loud and continuous applause.)

Mr. Abigail also addressed the meeting, speaking at some length on the question of free trade and protection, and in favour of the policy of the present Government. In regard to the Chinese question, he said that the Government had had the matter under consideration, and in a few days the country would see that the Government had no sympathy with Chinese labour. With regard to the recent scenes in Parliament, he thought every man in the community was in some degree responsible for what had transpired. It reflected discredit and disgrace on the colony, and he hoped that voters would in future select men to the Assembly who would not in any way lower or disgrace the representation of this great colony.

The meeting terminated with an enthusiastic vote of thanks to the Ministers, Sir Henry Parkes and Mr. Abigail left for Sydney by the night mail train.

CROWN TENANTS IN NEW SOUTH WALES

(From St. James's Budget, January 28.)

Some months back a Scotch newspaper, the Banffshire Journal, published in a tabular form a summary of the exceptional advantages secured to Irish tenants by recent legislation. The table was copied into other papers, and in due time found its way out to Australia. There it was seized upon by the Commercial Pastoral and Agricultural Association of New South Wales, and made to serve a new purpose; not merely to show the benevolence of the Home Government, but also to prove the hardness and rapacity of their own. For this purpose, alongside of the table setting forth the present position of the Irish tenantry, has been printed another, comparing in each particular the position of the Crown tenants of New South Wales under the Land Act of 1884. It is needless for us to reproduce the facts about Ireland: they are known by this time to every person who chooses to know them. But even without the heightening effect of contrast, the Australian manifesto will not, we think, be found without interest.

In the first place it is to be noted that the provisions of the Act of 1884 apply to "every tenant of public or Crown lands in New South Wales, whether pastoral lessee, homestead, or conditional lessee." The leading conditions are these:—The rent is fixed every five years by the local land board, which is nominated by the Minister for Lands. If, however, the Minister considers upon the evidence "revised by him, without publicity, in his own chamber" that this rent is fixed too low, he can fix it at a higher rate; and this decision of his is without appeal. The rent once settled, the tenant obtains fixity of tenure, for a term ranging in different parts of the colony from five years to fifteen, subject, however, to an increase of rent (if justified by circumstances) at the expiration of each five years' period. The clauses providing for increase of rent have no counterparts providing for its adjustment in the opposite direction in case of drought or invasion of vermin. It further appears that the majority of the present rents under the Act were fixed in 1887, "one of the best seasons known for many years, and following a period of drought." The rentals of all Crown tenants are payable twelve months in advance; and leases are not only forfeited in all cases when rent is in arrear, but "a large class of Crown tenants are liable to forfeiture for non-compliance with conditions other than non-payment of rent." On the other hand, the lease can only be surrendered by the tenant at the expiration of a five years' period.

So much for the two first F's. Now for the third, Free Sale. "If any tenant or his predecessor in title has sunk money in saving water, making fences, or erecting buildings, or other substantial improvements (unless in the case of resumed areas where the incoming tenant recoups outlay on valuation), then these improvements are all confiscated at the end of the lease, and become the property of the landlord—the Crown." Further, if a tenant, from bad seasons or a fall in price of produce, is compelled to surrender his lease, he relinquishes without compensation all tenant-right in improvements made by himself or purchased in former goodwill of the property. "Former," we understand to mean "before the passing of the Act of 1884." As improvements in Crown lands have been made in all cases by the tenantry, and the value of them is often many times the rental, to provide that in no case a tenant shall have any compensation on quitting his holding is certainly a strong measure. When we add to this that the landlord is not a neighbour who, even where he lies under no legal compulsion to do so, will naturally be moved by kindly feelings to grant time for payment or to make remissions of rent, but that impersonal entity a Government Department, urged on possibly by a Treasurer who is anxious to balance his Budget, we shall hardly wonder that Irish tenants hesitate to take the advice of some of their best friends and refuse to emigrate—at any rate to New South Wales.

SHIP RAILWAYS.

Mr. Hagadorn, in a remarkable article on ship-railways, which appears in the February number of Harper's Magazine, tells us, says the Daily News, that it is officially determined that some of the existing American railways are already capable of conveying torpedo vessels from the navy yards on the seaboard to the great lakes of the interior. The ship-railway is only an extension of this system, or simply, as Mr. Hagadorn puts it, a proposal for carrying greater burdens than have hitherto been carried on ordinary railroads. If a vessel, it is argued, can safely carry a heavy freight over stormy seas, where half her hull is sometimes out of water, pounded by the waves that break upon her decks, or drive upon her abeam, tossing her in their fury from crest to crest, and dropping her suddenly into great "troughs of the sea," it is idle to suppose that she cannot safely carry her burden when lifted gently into a "cradle," and borne smoothly and steadily along over solid rails of steel. Moreover, we are reminded that though it is customary to speak of the sea as a ship's "native element," no ship was ever yet built in the water. Ship-railways, however, have now passed beyond the stage of mere scientific speculation. The air is full of ship-railway projects for all parts of the globe. The ship-railway over the Chignecto isthmus is already under contract. A ship-railway has also been surveyed across the Florida peninsula to save the 600 miles of distance round and through the straits. This, we are assured, is a most practicable route, and the railway can be built for about one-half the estimated cost of a ship-canal. But the great work in all this programme, both as to the magnitude of its construction and its results, is the Tehuantepec ship-railway of Captain Eads, now in the hands of Captain E. L. Corthell as chief engineer. This is a scheme which is regarded by competent judges as sound and well planned, though it is one of remarkable originality and boldness. Perhaps it is too much as yet to say that the age of ship-canals is giving way to that of ship-railways, but M. De Lesseps can hardly be expected to feel quite at his ease in the presence of this new and vigorous movement.

The seven Bibles of the world (says a China paper) are the Koran of the Mahommedans, the Eddas of the Scandinavians, the Try Pitikes of the Buddhists, the Five Kings of the Chinese, the Three Vedas of the Hindoos, the Zendavesta and the Scriptures of the Christians. The Koran is the most recent of these seven Bibles, and that older than the Seventh Century of our era. It is a compound of quotations from the Old and New Testaments, the Talmud and the Gospel of St. Barnabas. The Eddas of the Scandinavians were first published in the Fourteenth Century. The Pitikes and the Buddhists contain sublime morals and pure inspirations, but their author died in the sixth century before Christ. There is nothing of excellence in these sacred books not found in the Bible. The sacred writings of the Chinese are called the Five Kings, king meaning web of cloth, or the warp that keeps the threads in their place. These sayings cannot be traced to a period higher than the 11th century B.C. The three Vedas are the most ancient books of the Hindoos. The Zendavesta of the Persians is the grandest of all the sacred books next to our Bible. Zoroaster, whose sayings it contains, was born in the 12th century B.C. Moses lived and wrote his Pentateuch 15 centuries B.C.

THE MINISTER FOR WORKS IN THE WEST.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

BLAYNEY, Friday.

This morning, Mr. J. Russart (the Mayor) and a number of aldermen waited on the Minister for Works, and drew his attention to the necessity of providing more accommodation at the railway station. They stated that the present premises were entirely unsuitable for the junction. People wanted to have a coal-shed here in order to supply coal to the engines running between Blayney and Harden. It was also necessary that a turn-table should be placed here as, under present circumstances, some engines had to run backwards from Blayney to Cowra. They also stated that the cattle-yards required to be removed to the opposite side of the line, and an overhead bridge was urgently needed. Other matters of interest to the townspeople were also attended to. Mr. Sutherland, in reply, said there would be certain alterations made in the railway station. This would meet the requirements of the place at present, and might be considered as the first portion of a whole which could be completed at any time. A turn-table and all the necessary attachments to it would be placed at Blayney Junction. More than that he could not promise. Mr. Sutherland then inspected all the railway premises here. He was also shown over the public buildings of the town, some of which, notably the town hall and court-house are very fine for so small a place, the population of Blayney being about 1300.

A deputation of residents of Milthorpe also interviewed the Minister in Blayney this morning with reference to a siding which had been constructed from the platform at Milthorpe to the premises of the Great Western Milling Company. It was pointed out that the company had paid £465 6s. 3d. to the Government for laying down the siding, and also for erecting a distance signal, which was now used by the Government. The deputation wished Mr. Sutherland to refund this money, or a portion thereof, on the ground that the railway had profited largely by the carriage of the company's goods. Since the establishment of the Great Western Milling Company, over £3000 had been paid to the railway department. The deputation also asked Mr. Sutherland to erect a new residence at Milthorpe for the station-master at that place. The Minister promised to give his favourable consideration to the matters brought under his notice by the Millthorpe people.

COWRA, Friday.

The Hon. John Sutherland arrived at Carcoar about noon to-day. A deputation consisting of the Mayor, Mr. J. O. Dodd, and Messrs. Stimpson, Hade, Fagan, M'Killop, Connolly, W. B. Warne, F. A. Moss, J. J. Smith, J. Marks, and J. J. Links waited on the Minister and urged that stock-trucking yards should be constructed at Carcoar for the convenience of owners in the district. The Mayor informed the Minister that if trucking yards were placed at a spot just outside of Carcoar it would be a great boon to graziers and others living in the surrounding district. If the yards were established, Carcoar would become one of the chief watering places on the line between Blayney and Harden. It was pointed out that there was permanent water close at hand, and in addition to this there were 1600 acres of Crown land near the town which were available for depasturing stock before trucking to Homebush. Mr. Smith, Government inspector of stock, furnished the Minister with certain figures showing the aggregate number of sheep belonging to owners in a portion of this district. The figures were—Sheep owned at Carcoar, 93,071; Mandurama, 39,696; Landhurst and Bakers (two hamlets near each other), 57,202; Woodstock, 87,626. He said it was probable that most of these sheep would be trucked if yards were made. The Carcoar residents were willing to guarantee the Government interest on the outlay. Mr. Sutherland said that was all very well, but he wished to know it the people would object to the nuisance caused by having cattle yards near the town. The Mayor said the residents of Carcoar had no objection to the establishment of the yards at the spot which had been indicated. Mr. Sutherland said he would ascertain the cost of making the yards, and see what he could do to comply with the wishes of the deputation. The Minister was also requested to make an alteration in the time table, in order that a train might leave or arrive at Carcoar during the daytime. Mr. Sutherland said the line was rather difficult to work, and the application would require to be carefully considered. They must use the present railroad to the best advantage, and would have to adopt a different class of engine for the traffic on the line. He did not care where these engines were made, but he must have a class of engine suitable for the traffic requirements. Mr. Henson, traffic inspector, here informed the Minister that a short while ago three trains were stuck up on the Blayney Bank. This was entirely owing to the heavy grades and insufficient motive power. Two trains, each consisting of an engine and 3 trucks of sheep were stuck up a fortnight ago. More powerful engines were certainly needed for the heavy grades on the line. Mr. Sutherland said he would have certain alterations effected in some of the engines, in order that all mixed trains might run as fast as passenger trains.

Subsequently the Minister was entertained at dinner at the Royal Hotel, when his health was proposed by the Mayor and drunk with musical honours. The Minister responded to the toast in appropriate terms.

Leaving Carcoar, Mr. Sutherland touched at Mandurama, Lyndhurst, Burley Jackey, and Woodstock. At each of these places deputations waited upon him, and directed his attention to certain local requirements, such as the formation of platforms, stock-trucking yards, sidings, cranes, &c. The Minister promised he would provide a three-ton travelling crane, which would run up and down the line, and could be used by all the stations and platforms when necessary. As to the other questions, he said he would give each and all his consideration. Just below Burley Jackey, the Ministerial special, on turning a sharp curve, ran into a trolly on which four men were seated. On seeing the danger, the workmen jumped off the trolly and escaped unhurt. Before the special could be brought to a standstill, the engine dashed into the trolly, and lifted it clean off the rails and threw it on the side of the line, breaking one of its wheels, and doing other damage. The special received no injury. Mr. Sutherland arrived at Cowra shortly after 5 o'clock this evening. He was received by the Hon. G. Campbell, Messrs. H. Dennis, Ryan, and Watson, and was driven to the Fitzroy Hotel.

A large deputation of residents of Cowra waited upon the Minister for Works, at the Fitzroy Hall, this evening. Among those present were the Hon. G. Campbell, Messrs. S. A. Rheuben, J. Ousby, H. Dennis, J. Walker, W. Howey, Dr. Geraty, T. Watson, T. J. Adkins, J. B. Fitzgerald, H. Mawby, J. C. Ryall, C. Stebbard, J. Perara. The deputation drew attention to the necessity that existed for greatly increased accommodation at the Cowra goods shed. A goods clerk was urgently needed, and if one were appointed it would prove beneficial to the public. Most of the Forbes trade was coming through Cowra to the railway, and the limited accommodation at the goods shed would be severely taxed. Mr. Sutherland said he would visit the goods shed to-morrow morning. The Minister was also informed that, although a large tank had been erected in the town, from some unknown cause the public were prevented by the railway authorities from obtaining a supply of water from it. Mr. Sutherland said he knew of no reason why this state of things should exist. The Minister was asked whether if a number of townsmen were appointed to act as a responsible body, he would allow them to supervise the distribution of water from the tank in question. Mr. Sutherland said he would answer the question on his return to Sydney. The rates charged for the carriage of wool were then alluded to. It was stated that producers sending wool from Cowra to Sydney were charged 8s. per ton more than if it were sent from Young to Sydney. The present rates were almost prohibitory, and were altogether too high. Unless some alteration were made by the department the wool trade would be diverted from Cowra to other towns. Mr. Sutherland said, with regard to the wool rates being too high, he supposed they were fixed before the line was opened. He would give the matter his careful consideration. Fresh arrangements were being made for the conveyance of wool from all parts of the country. The deputation also asked for an increased rate of speed on the railway between Cowra and Blayney, as this would afford a quicker mail service to Forbes and Grenfell. Mr. Sutherland said he would bring the matter under the notice of the Postmaster-General. The Minister was also informed that the Cowra Traffic Bridge was in a very unsatisfactory and unsafe condition. A sum of £3000 was voted two years ago to put down iron cylinder piers in place of the present wooden stuacture, but very little, if anything, had been done. Mr. Sutherland said he would attend to the matter when he returned to Sydney. The Minister also promised to sanction the running of trains at excursion rates from Young to Cowra, and from Blayney to Cowra, on the occasion of holding the Cowra annual races in April. The benefits of the proposed railway from Cowra to Forbes, and the vast mineral wealth of the district were also alluded to at length. Mr. Sutherland promised that the extension of the railway from Cowra to Forbes would not be forgotten when the railway policy of the Government was under consideration. (Applause.) He also said it was high time Cowra was formed into a municipality. He would have the matter of the application of the people to be incorporated dealt with one way or another shortly. A hearty vote of thanks to the Minister brought the proceedings to a close.

PASTORAL INTELLIGENCE.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own Correspondent.)

BOURKE, Friday.

Fifty-seven bulls passed Hungerford for Chatsworth station, North Queensland, Stevens owner.

At the Lord Lieutenant's drawing-room, in Dublin, some commotion was lately occasioned in the Castle yard (says the Pall Mall Gazette) by a carriage belonging to Dr. Meldon, which was lit by electric light. Four lamps were used—two inside and two outside. They were supplied by a six-celled storage battery. The effect was novel and interesting.

LATE HOURS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I hope you will pardon my trespassing on your valuable paper to say a few words re "white slave trade." I wish to ventilate my grievance as a saleswoman, not in the drapery trade, but one equally as bad for keeping late hours, and that is the boot trade. I can testify to the fact of working from 13 to 14 hours per day in an unventilated shop and 15 hours or more on Saturdays, and what with the gas and heat I can assure you no one could judge unless they had the experience. Many is the time I have heard the customers say, "Good gracious! how you can stand this is a wonder to me;" and so no doubt it is, but we have to do it. I hope now the game has been set going they will leave no stone unturned until they bring it to bay. One word to the eight-hour men. Don't have your wives and daughters going shopping after 6 o'clock at night. Think of the men and women in the shops, who ought to enjoy the same liberty as yourselves, and if you do this, the proprietors of those shops who keep open until 9 and 10 o'clock will soon close up early. I say strike, boys, whilst the iron's hot; don't have it in this age; let them see we have lived past the days of slave trade. Why, I venture to say there is no town in England where shops are kept open such long hours. Compare D. Jones, Farmer and Co.'s men; they go with hearts as light as feathers to their work, and do it with pleasure. Have less hours and more pay. "Australia's the land of the free"—but I can assure you there is very little of it the majority of us saleswomen in retail shops in Sydney ever see. Nevertheless, with the assistance of your valuable paper, we hope to soon recover from this state of things. If not, I say

March 20. RUAT CŒLUM.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read with considerable interest the correspondence that has recently appeared in your columns upon the above, but I cannot say I agree with some of the writers, who lay the blame entirely upon the working classes. My experience has taught me, closely connected as I have been with the classes mentioned for over five years, that your correspondents are acting unjustly to those who have ever been willing to assist us. Is it not unreasonable to expect disinterested persons to assist those who will not help themselves? They have fought and won their own battles unaided, and were generous enough when we started an agitation some two and a-half years ago to co-operate and assist us in our efforts to reduce the hours of labour in shops, and any member of the committee of the Drapers' Association at that time will bear me out that a committee was appointed from the Trades and Labour Council to act in conjunction with the Drapers' Association for that object. Every member appointed attended our meetings, worked hard with us, went with us in deputations to the various trades and labour organisations, asking their co-operation and support in our efforts to reduce the hours of labour in shops by not shopping after 6 p.m. They further assisted us in distributing handbills throughout the city and suburbs, and in every way worked as hard as if working for themselves. Much good was accomplished, many of the employers acknowledging that their night trade had diminished, and that they were willing to conform to the rules laid down. There was an opportunity to obtain what we were asking for if the persons themselves strengthened the hands of those working for them by subscribing to the funds of the association. But no, we were not getting along fast enough (breaking down a system that had been in existence from all time), their contributions ceased, and consequently we failed in our efforts to obtain that for which so many are now crying out. Surely, Sir, in the face of this, it is unjust to saddle the blame entirely upon the working classes. If they desire to obtain a reform, let them first show that desire by helping themselves, and they will receive the support of every labouring man in the colony. In the controversy it has been asked, What has become of the Drapers' Association? I answer, it has ceased to exist. Now an opportunity offers itself for the formation of an early closing association, composed of all trades. The drapers did not succeed in all their efforts; let those who are desirous of reform organise a society on that basis, and for early closing only, show that they are earnest in their desires, and I am sure they will receive not only the support of the public, but will be ably assisted by the press of the city and the support of the trades and labouring classes throughout the city and suburbs. I am, &c.,

THOMAS CADDY,
Ex-President and Secretary Drapers' Association, and Ex-President of the Trades and Labour Council.

March 21, 1888.

P.S.—In penning the above, I have no desire to take any part in it. It is only with a view to put the case fairly that I have written, and a hope that it may induce some one to take the matter up, and endeavour, as I have done in the past, to assist those who, unaided, cannot help themselves. T. C.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Seeing that you have responded in a liberal manner to the appeal on behalf of shop assistants, and have taken the matter heartily and earnestly in hand, I am tempted to again trespass on your generosity for the purpose of offering a practical suggestion.

As in the affairs of man, "there is a tide which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune," so in all public movements having for their object the amelioration of the condition of any particular class or section of the community, there is a time to strike and to act with vigour, with a fair assurance of success. The present is the drapers' opportunity. Though we cannot regard the present limited movement as being in any degree enthusiastic, there is undoubtedly a certain amount of public sentiment alive, which, if acted upon, would, perhaps, spread, and bear favourable fruit.

Opportunities like the present have presented themselves at irregular intervals for some years past, but owing to a lamentable want of cohesive power between the members of the trade, any society that has been galvanised into life has had but a temporary existence.

It is all very well to talk about the futility of moral suasion, and to demand the immediate intervention of the Legislature. If assistants are not prepared to espouse their own cause, and form a basis for Parliamentary action, they cannot grumble if philanthropy fails to step forward. At the risk of being deemed egotistical, I will suggest what I believe to be a proper course of action. Let a public meeting of employees be called for the purpose of again forming a union, having for its special and sole object the dissemination of true particulars of the gruesome evils attendant upon a system of late hours. Let a public meeting be held at least once a week in one or other of the suburbs, alternated by an occasional meeting in the city, and in this connection invite the support of prominent men. As a matter closely affecting their own principles, the active co-operation of the various trade unions should be solicited, and delegates should be invited to attend and speak at every meeting. It goes without saying that unanimity on the part of assistants themselves is absolutely imperative, for a crusade of this description against a deeply-rooted evil cannot possibly be successful unless ample funds are forthcoming. I firmly believe that twelve months' vigorous agitation would completely pave the way for legislative action; but if a drastic Early Closing Act were to be forced upon the public without a period of preparation, a dangerous re-action would in all probability ensue.

Seeing that it would confer an incalculable benefit on masters as well as men, their assistance and influence could be openly sought without the least diffidence. But, as I said before, "the first remedy must be solicited from the public," and it will certainly not come unasked. Let drapers be up and doing, as "God helps those who help themselves." Thanking you in anticipation, I am, &c.,

H. A. SCOTT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I notice in your issue of the 23rd a letter signed "Draper." The writer of it evidently does not possess one spark of the feeling of humanity. He writes re white slavery and late hours, and he talks more about his rent than anything else. He mentions that it is during the late hours so much complained of (and justly so, too) that the wives of boarding-house keepers do all their shopping. Now, if it is because of a few of the abovementioned people doing their shopping business during the hours complained of, I think it is high time that they are appealed to as Christians to put off their shopping hours till a more convenient time, and one which will not occasion such suffering and ill-health among their fellow-creatures. I would draw "Draper's" attention to the following facts, and which may be seen to be true by standing outside some of the leading business houses after 9 o'clock—viz., that most of the people who come out of a Saturday night to do their shopping, finding it is a fine night, decide upon going for a walk round town first, and let their shopping stop till after 9; then they rush in about the time for closing up, and keep the assistants going till sometimes long after the regular hours of closing. Now, Mr. Editor, I am no letter writer; but I could not help placing my little might (sic) along with the rest of the generous people who have taken this matter up, to protest against the cruelty and white slavery which is carried on and passed over night after night. Trusting some more able pen than mine will take this matter up and keep it going till some of our members are forced to take action in the matter, and apologising for taking up so much space, I am, &c.,

JUSTICE.

The French Government, according to an English paper, has decided to issue no more bronze 5 and 10 centime and no more silver 20 centime pieces. The bronze coins are generally complained of as being dirty and too cumbersome, and the 20 centime silver coins are equally unpopular on account of their extreme smallness. Nickel pieces are to supersede them. It was at first proposed to mint the new coins from octagonal instead of from circular dies, it being feared that unless this were done, it would not be easy to distinguish the new 5 centime from the current 50 centime, the new 10 centime from the franc, and the new 20 centime from the two-franc piece. But it has been found that, if their edges are hollowed out, the nickel coins can be readily distinguished by touch from the corresponding silver ones, all of which have milled edges, and the circular shape is therefore to be retained. The nickel to be employed is of a quality superior to that which is used in Germany. Ten millions of 20 centime pieces, thirty-five millions of 10 centime pieces, and twenty-five millions of 5 centime pieces will be put into circulation within a few weeks. A similar measure of reform would be acceptable in this country. Our present penny, besides weighing considerably over a quarter of an ounce, is ugly, and, in certain circumstances, becomes a source of ill odour and verdigris. Nickel, on the other hand, if both clean and light.

MONETARY AND COMMERCIAL.

Friday Evening.

In the Stock and Share market very little business was done. A higher price was offered for Bank of New South Wales. Hudson Brothers sold at a lower price, others being without change. The following sales were reported at 1 o'clock:—Joint Stock Bank, 18; Hunter River Steam, 9; North Shore Ferry, 41s. 6d., 43s.; Port Jackson, 46s.; Australian Gaslight, 15½; Hudson Brothers, 5s.; Sydney Exchange, 14¼. Closing quotations were:—

Sales of the following land and building societies' shares are reported:—85 Excelsior, paid 40s., at 63s.; 9 Sydney Permanent, paid £20, at £33; 150 City and County, paid 10s., at 13s. 6d.; 50 Land Company of Australasia, paid £5, at £5 2s. 6d.

In our advertising columns appears the Prospectus of Caldwell's Australian Wine Company, which is being formed with a capital of £125,000 in 100,000 shares of 25s. each, to purchase the wine business of the late Mr. Robert Caldwell. The first issue of shares will be 25,000, payable 5s. on application, 5s. on allotment, 5s. in three months, and 5s. in six months. The sum to be paid to Messrs. Caldwell and Co. will be £20,000. A dividend of 10 per cent. on the paid-up capital for three years is guaranteed by the present proprietors, who, in part payment, will take 5000 shares paid up to 20s. It is said that half the shares for allotment have been applied for. The head office is 114, Collins-street, Melbourne. Messrs. Fraser and Co., of Sydney, are the brokers.

Elsewhere appears the prospectus of the Australian Mercantile Loan and Guarantee Company, Limited; capital, £500,000, in 5000 shares of £100 each. One thousand shares are now offered to the public, £10 per share payable on application, £10 on allotment, and the balance as required in £10 calls at intervals of three months. Application for shares is to be made at the company's offices, corner of Market and York streets, Sydney.

The report of the Civil Service Co-operative Society of New South Wales for the half-year ended 31st January, states that the gross profits had amounted to £2517; discounts for cash payments, £258; the total income being £2777. The working expenses had been £1890, and the net profits had amounted to £836. A debit balance of £447 at the beginning at the half-year had been paid off, leaving a credit balance of £385. The total receipts, amounting to £14,919, were £1297 in excess of the amount for the period ended 31st July.

Our London cablegram shows that the bank returns had increased by £90,000 during the week, and the percentage of returns to liabilities from 44⅜ to 44¾. The private deposits fell off from £23,441,000 to £22,232,000. The demand for Australian Government stocks is not so active, and the market is a little easier. The quantity of wheat afloat for the United Kingdom is 1,884,000 quarters, and for the Continent 228,000 quarters, showing increases on the week of 48,000 quarters and 36,000 quarters respectively. The American visible supply has gone down from 36,650,000 bushels to 36,250,000 bushels.

In the Import markets business to-day, as it has been throughout the week, was quiet. Country orders are coming in freely, but the town trade is very slack, except perhaps in goods required for the repairing and provisioning of vessels. For these there has been an improved demand, consequent on the presence in port of an unusual number of ships coming here to load coal for San Francisco. There was a fair demand for flour, and bakers' lines were moved off at the following prices:—For roller milled, £9 5s. to £9 15s.; and for stone dressed, £8 10s. to £9 5s. Of the colonial flour selling here, Adelaide is most in demand, the higher prices to which wheat and flour have been pushed up in Victoria having handicapped the produce of that colony. Best samples of wheat are worth from 3s. 7d. to 3s. 8d. Respecting the Christchurch (New Zealand) market, Messrs. Kaye and Carter, writing on the 13th instant, state that the majority of the crops being safely in stack, farmers were coming into town to ascertain best prices for their various lines of produce, and as with the one exception of barley all lines this season were valued on a lower basis, those who could seemed determined to hold for possible better rates later on, the more impecunious ones only being the sellers. Samples of all commodities were, as a rule, excellent. Wheat, Tuscan and Pearl, 2s. 8½d. to 2s. 9d.; H. White, 2s. 8d. f.o.b., sack extra. Locally the tea trade remains very dull, nothing beyond small transactions being reported. Coffee is rather lower, consequent on the weaker tone of the Eastern market; 11d. to 11½d. is the value of No. 1 Ceylon Plantation. Barry's chicory, 2½d. Cocoa is easier, and for Epps's more than 1s. 6½d. to 1s. 6¾d. cannot be quoted. The sugar market remains unsettled, consequent on the recent reduction of the company's tariff. Good Queensland whites may be quoted at £25, yellows, £20 to £22, and rations from £17. From the Brisbane Courier we learn that the stock there was estimated at not much more than 1000 tons—a quantity believed to be inadequate to the colony's requirements until the new crop is received. In dried fruits, prime currants are worth 5d.—a price regarded as barely equal to European values, which are strengthening; 250 cases off quality disposed of on private terms. Elemes dull of sale, from 5d. to 5½d. For sultanas 5¾d. to 6d. may be quoted. Figs are almost out of the market. For dates holders ask 2½d., but there is very little demand. Fish had very little attention; tinned salmon is worth 8s. to 8s. 6d., bulk 5d. to 5½d. Oysters noticed at 5s. 7½d. Although holders are still asking 75s. for Liverpool coarse salt ex store, shipments to land are procurable at 72s. 6d. Rock salt 85s. Stock of low grade of rice is temporarily scarce, owing to the detention in quarantine of vessels with supplies; £12 to £12 10s. is the value. Fine table rice is selling at £13 10s. to £14. Sago and tapioca are selling at 2⅜d. Pepper unaltered. Candles are perceptibly firmer, 6d. being quoted for five medals; Sunbeam colonial selling at 5½d. In brewers' goods new Tasmanian hops were sold at 1s. 2d., and from 1s. to 1s. 2d. is quoted; Kents from 1s. to 1s. 8d. Malt dull of sale at 6s. 3d. to 6s. 6d. In liquids the demand for beer has slackened, business quoted in Guinness's stout, by Blood, at agents' prices. There are still complaints of leading brands of stout having gone off in quality. Hennessy's single star brandy for export done at 34s. 9d., and three star in ordinary trade request at 45s. 3d. to 45s. 6d. Moderate sales of whisky, including parcels of Williams's and John Jamieson's. Lownde's rum, in hogsheads, noticed at 2s. 10½d. Very little doing in wines. In metals, the inquiry for galvanised iron has almost entirely gone off, and concessions have to be made to quit parcels, but importers generally are storing; £19 to £20 may be quoted as values. Sheet lead is offering at £18. Further sales, covering 900 boxes of tin plates, have been made for export, and the market has now a firmer tone; less than 18s. 6d. could not be quoted for I. C. Coke's. Fencing wire scarce, and very firm at £11 5s. and £12 5s. for Nos. 8 and 10 respectively. Stock of muntz has been bought up at 8½d., to meet an unusually heavy demand for shipping requirements; and as the English market has strengthened, there is no prospect of lower rates, even if there be no advance. Certain descriptions of wire rope are at the moment unprocurable. Wire nails are worth 13s., and the market bare. In oils there is nothing fresh to notice since yesterday's sales; castor, 2s. 8½d.; china, 2s. 11d. In jute goods, woolpacks remain steady at about 2s. 3d. for forward delivery, with a moderately good demand, concessions being made for large parcels; 6s. 6d. to 6s. 7½d. is the value of cornsacks, and but very little trade. 650 cases Bell's and 200 cases No Monopoly plaid vestas cleared off on private terms.

At the closing wool sale of the week to-day the catalogue comprised little more than oddments. There was fair competition at full prices. 1939 bales are reported as having been sold publicly and privately during the week. The following report of the business done to-day has been supplied:—

R. Goldsbrough and Co.—We held a wool sale to-day, and submitted a catalogue of 418 bales, comprised chiefly of remnants of clips and oddments. 354 bales were sold, greasy realising from 4¾d. to 7¼d., washed 6½d. to 10½d., and scoured 8d. to 13¾d. Although we cannot report any actual improvement in prices, the tone of the market is firmer, and there was keen competition for every lot up to late rates.

The following was the Customs revenue received to-day:—

Spirits, £1758 17s. 5d.; wine, still, £78; wine, sparkling, £48 5s.; ale, porter, and beer (in wood), £87 10s.; ale, porter, and beer (in bottles), £179 14s.; tobacco and snuff, £308 11s.; tobacco (for manufacturing purposes only), £367; cigars, £243 15s.; tea, £429 16s. 2d.; coffee, £13 8s.; chicory, £22 8s.; sugar (unrefined), 2s. 8d.; sugar (molasses), £35 14s. 8d.; opium, £150 10s.; rice, £300 19s. 11d.; dried fruits, £152 17s. 10d.; specific duty £1285 6s. 3d.; harbour and light rates, £16 15s. 8d.; pilotage—Sydney, £44 11s. 4d.; harbour dues, £5; excise on tobacco, £1087 1s. 3d.; cigars and cigarettes, £25; beer, £299 1s. 3d.; Chinese restriction, £150: total, £7130 19s. 5d.

STOCK SALES.

The Union Mortgage and Agency Company of Australia, Limited, report having sold, on account of Messrs. Moodie, Donaldson, Inglis, and Co., 17,000 aged ewes from their Pangee Station, near Nyngan. On account of Messrs. Fulton, Hastie, and Co.: 7000 aged ewes, from their Springfield Station, near Cobar. On account of S. B. Leishman, Esq. (in conjunction with Messrs. Richard Gibson and Co.): 7500 ewes, from the Lorne Station, near Blackall, Queensland; and (in conjunction with Messrs. Archibald and Bateman), 8100 wethers and 3700 ewes. On account of Messrs. Hann and Hodnett: 15,000 ewes, travelling north, bred at Momba Station, for delivery at Mount Margaret Station, near Thargomindah, Queensland. On account of Chas. Alfrey, Esq.: 1000 rams, from Warranooke, Glenorchy, Messrs. Manifold, Bostock, and Co., of Lesbania Station, Queensland, being the purchasers. On account of Messrs. Raleigh Brothers: 500 two-tooth rams, from Tandara, being the whole of this season's sale rams, Messrs. C. N. Armytage, of Afton Downs, Queensland, and A. K. Inglis, of Moothumbill, Guabalong, being the purchasers. On account of F. W. Armytage, Esq., Nocoleche Station, Bourke: 17,000 6 and 8 tooth wethers. On account of Messrs. Pettitt and Cameron, New Babinda Station, Nyngan: 4000 ewes in the wool. On account of F. S. Falkiner, Esq., Boonoke Station, Conargo: 2300 2-tooth ewes, off shears. On account of F. S. Falkiner, Esq., Boonoke Station, Conargo: 500 2-tooth rams to R. S. Kinnear, Esq., and 300 2-tooth rams to Messrs. Roberts, Murray, and Co., of Manfred Downs, Queensland. All the above sales were made at satisfactory prices.—(Advt.)

LATEST COMMERCIAL TELEGRAMS.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENTS.)

LONDON, March 22.

The weekly returns of the Bank of England show that the issue department stock of gold coin and bullion is £21,933,000. The banking department reserve in notes and coin amounts to £16,596,000. The private deposits amounts to £22,232,000. The percentage of reserve to liabilities is 44¾.

The quantity of wheat and flour afloat to the United Kingdom is estimated at 1,884,000 quarters; and for the Continent 228,000 quarters. The American visible supply is estimated at 36,250,000 bushels.

The market for Australian Government stocks is changing a little for the worse, owing to decreased demand for securities of this description.

Three hundred thousand bales of wool have arrived for the next sales. The stocks at Antwerp number 10,000 bales, below the quantity in hand at the corresponding period last year. After September 1 steamers with wool cargoes must have arrived off the British coast in order to insure the inclusion of their cargoes in the sales.

Business in London is extremely quiet.

MELBOURNE, Friday.

Business generally is quiet. Prime wheat, 3s. 5½d. to 3s. 6d. A parcel of Natal white maize sold for shipment to Sydney. Nearly all the China whites and all Java yellows sold at auction to-day at a reduction of 10s. per ton. Currants, 4¾d. Cement is firm. A good business done in hops; Victorian, 1s. 4d. Fencing wire sold at £9 10s. A cargo of red deals, ex Rhea, fetched full prices.

Share Report.—Sales: Commercial Bank, £9 12s. 6d.; Federal Bank, 70s. 6d.; Melbourne Tramway, 55s., 56s.

BRISBANE, Friday.

Business in the wholesale markets continues quiet, but an improvement may shortly be expected. Prices generally are unchanged. The only really weak line is flour, which shows no tendency towards improvement. The sugar market is quiet, but holders are not inclined to make any concessions to secure orders. Present quotations are—First whites, £24 to £25; second whites, £22 to £24; yellows, £11 to £16. In the produce market imported potatoes are quoted at £4 10s.; and oaten hay at £6. Maize, 2s. 11d.

ADELAIDE, Friday.

The market for breadstuffs is unaltered. Millers are only buying for grist purposes. Most of their purchases are made direct from the farmers. In spite of the recent active business in shipment for the United Kingdom and the Continent, only some 100,000 tons of surplus have yet been shipped, although three of the best shipping months have gone. Quotations of wheat are 3s. 2½d. to 3s. 3d. at Port Adelaide, and 2s. 10d. to 3s. at the outports. Flour is dull at £8 to £8 10s. for patent roller, and £7 10s. to £8 for superfine. General trade is dull.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, MARCH 24, 1888.

Sir Henry Parkes addressed a large public meeting at Junee last night, and spoke at great length on free trade and protection, on the principal measures now before Parliament, and on the disorderly scenes that have lately occurred in the Assembly.

Speaking at Junee last night, Sir Henry Parkes said that many things had taken place in the Legislative Assembly which should make any sensitive and honest man ashamed.

The Premier thinks the time has arrived when any member of Parliament guilty of an act of violence, should be expelled, and rendered ineligible for election for some time afterwards.

In dilating on the subject of Electoral law reform at Junee last evening, Sir Henry Parkes expressed himself in favour of the constituencies having the power to expel members who had deserted their colours.

Mr. Frank Farnell, one of the members for Central Cumberland, addressed his constituents at Granville last night. Mr. Farnell spoke for an hour and was accorded a vote of confidence.

The Government promise restrictive legislation on the Chinese question.

The Government intend to introduce a measure into Parliament to regulate procedure, with a view of preventing disorders as far as possible.

In the House of Lords, the Earl of Onslow, Political Secretary to the Board of Trade, introduced a bill to provide a more effectual means of saving life on vessels at sea. The bill is based on the recommendation of the late Imperial Conference, and has been read the second time.

Mr. Charles Hern, a well-known artist of Sydney, has been appointed instructor to the daughters of H.R.H. the Prince of Wales in water-colour painting and sketching from nature.

The revolt in North Borneo has been quelled.

The British expedition despatched to suppress the rising at Sikkim has captured a stockade on the road to Lingtu held by the Thibetan troops.

The settlement of Myingyan, in Upper Burmah, has been burned to the ground, and 15,000 Burmese rendered homeless thereby. The fire was the work of incendiaries.

The Fifeshire's cargo of Australian mutton has arrived at London in splendid condition. The butter shipped by this vessel is also reported to be in a good condition.

The frozen mutton from Australia received by the Orient steamer Orizaba realised in London an average price of 3¾d. per lb.

The total exports of wool from the colony this season amount to 376,354 bales, as compared with 295,658 bales for the corresponding period last year, showing an increase of 80,696 bales in favour of 1887-8.

The King of Roumania is consulting with the Emperor Francis Joseph of Austria with the view of effecting a union between Austria and Roumania as against Russia.

Two thousand two hundred men will attend the forthcoming Easter encampment at Melbourne, as well as 600 horses.

Major-General Downes, formerly Secretary for Defence in Victoria, proceeds to Adelaide by Monday's express to assume command of the military forces of South Australia. The Victorian Government express high appreciation of his services, and regret that they are losing him.

The Australian Eleven left Adelaide yesterday by the Oceanien. They were met by several representatives of the South Australian Cricketing Association.

Lillywhite's Eleven commenced a match against 22 of Wellington yesterday. The Englishmen scored 207 in their first innings, and when play ceased the New Zealanders had lost seventeen wickets for 71.

The grand organ which is being built in London by Messrs. Hill and Son for the Centennial Hall, Sydney, will be completed at the end of the year.

The annual meeting of the New South Wales Rifle Association was held last evening at the Victoria Barracks.

In another column we publish the first of three articles on the "Public Charities of the Colony."

The coal-miners of the Bulli district kept a strict holiday yesterday in memory of the 81 men who were killed in the Bulli explosion exactly 12 months ago. Much disappointment was expressed at the postponement of the unveiling ceremony in connection with the memorial obelisk.

At a meeting of the Melbourne Exhibition Commissioners, Auckland, yesterday, applications were received for a total space of 21,687ft., in addition to 4000ft. required for trophies of exhibits from the Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

H.M.S. Raven arrived at Brisbane yesterday afternoon. Since leaving Auckland, on the 4th January, she has been to Noumea, and thence on a cruise among the New Hebrides.

H.M.S. Thalia arrived at Albany yesterday. She brings the relief crews for ships on the Australian naval station.

The Melbourne people have decided that the silver wedding gift of the Prince and Princess of Wales shall be a handsome piece of silver plate.

The gold-mining property of Oppenheimer and party at Razorback, in New South Wales, will shortly be placed on the London market. The capital of the proposed company is £120,000, the bulk of which has been underwritten.

The Centennial Banquet invitation cards issued to members of the South Australian Parliament, and others invited from that colony, were found on enquiry during the week to have been detained at the Adelaide Customs House for the payment of duty. The cards will now be released.

A proclamation is to be immediately issued at Brisbane declaring China, Hongkong, and the Straits Settlements infected with smallpox, and all vessels from these ports will be subjected to 21 days' quarantine.

The Queensland Cabinet has decided to adopt the resolution passed at the recent Postal Conference in Sydney for the exchange of postcards between Australia and Europe. These cards must be forwarded via Torres Straits.

The New Zealand Parliament will probably be summoned for the 24th of April next.

For the position of two Railway Commissioners, the South Australian Government have received from 15 to 20 applications. The salary for each is £1000 a year. The chairman has already been appointed.

A meeting of members of Parliament will be held next week at Adelaide to consider the appointment of Speaker. There is likely to be a contest. Mr. E. Ward, chairman of committees, will stand, and will probably be opposed by the Hon. J. C. Bray.

The main hall of the Adelaide Jubilee Exhibition Building has been let for six months at the rate of £30 a week, to be used as a skating rink.

Doctors F. H. Meyer, M. U. Sullivan, W. D. Hooper, and Rothwell Adam were yesterday elected hon. physicians of the Melbourne Women's Hospital. There were 12 candidates.

The Trinity College, Melbourne, has inaugurated a scheme of regular and systematic instruction to country students for the University by correspondence. A similar system is used in England with great success.

Cannon and Connor will engage in a wrestling match at the Melbourne Theatre Royal to-day, the best three falls for £300, for the Græco-Roman championship of the world.

It was hardly necessary for the Premier to contend, as he did last night at Junee, for his right to address the citizens of any part of the colony concerning public affairs. As will be seen by a full report in another column, he spoke very strongly upon the matter. Such a privilege could hardly be seriously disputed, though some of his political opponents have lately insisted that he should remain in the seclusion of his official sanctum and attending only to his duties as Premier of the country, watch the battle of political opinion from afar. But while such a demand has been made by the Premier's critics, they have not hesitated to use the leaders of their party on every occasion throughout the country where, as they deemed, their voices were needed to strengthen the cause of protection. There can be no question as to the right of the leader of a Government to speak as any private member of Parliament would, when and where he chooses, before the people. His official position ought not to interfere with the right, but rather to make the exercise of it more necessary, always provided, of course, that matters of urgent public importance are not delayed to make way for some local political exigency. That is a matter which must lie between the Minister and his conscience. There is such a thing, certainly, as procrastination in public business, which may be rendered disastrous by a too easy compliance with outside demands that bear but indirectly upon the great questions of the hour; and might be cause for complaint if a Minister, flushed with a newly-made honour, plunged into those politico-social recreations which the people of the rural districts are always ready to extend to officers of the Crown. But Sir Henry Parkes is too old a politician to be influenced by such things, and if he chooses to go to Junee or anywhere else, he but goes to his constituents after all, for being the leader of a majority of the representatives of the people, he appears before them in person to express his policy, rather than by proxy or from his place in Parliament. Considering the state of public business, any protracted absence from his place of administration in the metropolis would be improper on the part of the Prime Minister, but no fault could be found with him for taking a trip into the country, were it but for pleasure alone, for a day or two. In this instance the Premier probably pleased the people more than himself. The people, at all events, were pleased. They gave the head of the Government an enthusiastic reception, and applauded him all through his lengthy address.

A considerable portion of the Premier's address was devoted, appropriately enough, to the question of free trade and protection. The protectionists have been forcing their propaganda upon the attention of the country people, and when the Premier goes into the country he only does what is expected of him when he takes notice of the bane, and applies the antidote. The policy of "restriction" (the Premier regards this as a more accurate definition than "protection") was described as a retaliatory policy, and was condemned on that account. Its evil effects in England, where it was in full force half-a-century ago, were described; and the Premier drew a glowing picture of the prosperity which had followed the adoption of the free-trade policy, which, in a period of less than 50 years, had placed the mother country in the position of the leader of all the nations. If there was nothing very new in what Sir Henry Parkes said on this subject, the information he gave to his hearers was true, and in public utterances this is the all-important point. Referring to the effects of protection in the United States he showed that the cost of the necessaries of life were raised unduly, while employment was not secured for the people. In support of this statement he called attention to the fact reported in a leading New York paper, that there were out of work recently in that city 100,000 persons, 20,000 of whom were women. Coming nearer home, Sir Henry Parkes drew attention to the condition of the Victorian farmers, who, like their brethren in the United States, find it difficult to win a bare subsistence, simply because, living under protection, they have to pay high prices for all the necessaries of life. Let Victoria knock off the protective duties, he said, and her farmers would be able to make a decent living, because although their receipts would be no larger, their outgoings would be very much less. This is a view of the case which should be laid to heart by our own farmers, who are told that protection is the one thing wanting to make them prosperous.

It was to be expected that the Premier would refer to the recent scenes of violence in the House, and it is satisfactory to find that the Government intend to take some action. They contemplate introducing a measure to regulate the procedure of Parliament instead of relying upon the Standing Orders alone. It is the opinion of the Premier that not only should a member who had been guilty of violent conduct be expelled from the House, but that severer punishment still should be meted out to him by rendering him ineligible for election again for a time. We are inclined to think that the punishment proposed would be effectual; but at the same time we venture to hope also that a remedy will be found to apply to the real source of trouble. It is the everyday brutality of speech and the interchange of gross personalities that give rise to such exhibitions as that which occurred the other night. To remove the cause is as necessary as to correct the effect. What we want is a healthier tone in Parliament and that can only be got—since some members seem naturally to exhale a miasma of disorder—by rules of procedure, which will check lengthened and irrelevant debate, which will curb the dissident language of members, and which will give additional power to the Speaker. If the new rules of the House of Commons were made those of our own Chamber we might expect better things, but whatever they may be, they should strike decisively and searchingly at the roots of the difficulty. Parliament is intended for the transaction of business and not for a talking-shop. The words of the Premier are timely, but we need something more than words. We need not only new rules, but a Ministry that recognising its duty will, while personally forbearing, be prompt and vigorous in quelling disorder, and in upholding the Chair.

Other matters of importance were dealt with by the Premier, who referred to the measures of the present session, more particularly the Land Bill, which dealt with a subject rendered difficult and embarrassing by the fact that under previous legislation large interests had grown up which it was necessary to consider. Sir Henry Parkes devoted a good deal of time to the Electoral question. He spoke of the intention of the Government to amend the Electoral Act, but for some time left his hearers in doubt as to what the Government really intended to do as regards the most important point of all—the expansive clauses. He ridiculed the idea that the Assembly as it stands is too large, and called attention to the fact that in proportion to the population its numerical strength is much less than that of the first Assembly, elected in 1856. But, as he himself admitted a little further on, the number of Parliamentary representatives must not be fixed by hard and fast rule, based upon the census returns. If such a principle were adopted, Houses of Legislature would be unwieldly, useless, impossible. We are unable to agree with the Premier when he denies that the present Assembly is too large. We are sorry to find him taking up this position, but it is satisfactory to know that in his opinion the House is large enough. Sir Henry Parkes will find plenty of people to agree with him in this; and no portion of the Junee address will be received with more satisfaction than that which announces the intention of the Government to propose at an early date the repeal of the expansive clauses of the Electoral Act.

In another column will be found an article by Professor Anderson Stuart, in which the dangers to human life which may result from the diseased dogs so frequently met with in this city are pointed out plainly and forcibly. In matters of this kind medical opinions are, of course, entitled to respect, and Professor Stuart's remarks will be read with the attention which they deserve. The dangers which are enumerated under the somewhat needlessly alliterative title, "Our diseased dogs, our disgrace and danger," are not of a kind to be lightly regarded. Professor Stuart disclaims any intention of raising the scare of hydrophobia, though he plainly confesses that he sees no reason why the disease should not some day make its appearance here. Our attention is more particularly directed to evils admitted already to exist, to the various forms of mange, and to the terrible disorder which arises from the absorption of hydatids into the human body. The latter disease Professor Stuart tells us is already a great plague, and is believed to be on the increase. It comes alike to high and low, to rich and poor, to dwellers in the town and to dwellers in the country. The eggs from which it has its origin may be absorbed from air or from water, and we know not when or where we may swallow them; and once absorbed, the disease is so slow and so insidious in its development that the patient discovers its presence and realises its importance often only when it is too late. Those whose misfortune it is to occasionally pass through the cloud of dust raised by one of our street-sweeping machines will appreciate the importance of this information, and they may further be led to wonder whether an ordinary walk upon a dry dusty day may not carry with it dangers almost as great as a visit to a smallpox hospital. And their equanimity will not be increased when they learn that it is more than probable that some of the skin diseases of dogs, which are popularly grouped together under the single name of "mange" may also be communicatad to the human subject.

It is not, of course, pretended that the possibility of contagion in the case of certain diseases is a sufficient reason for the wholesale destruction of a valuable and useful race of animals. All that Professor Stuart advocates is the adoption of precautions by which the risk may be minimised. The experience which has been gained of the operation of the regulations in force in Germany in general, and in Bavaria in particular, has shown that the neglected, stray, and uncared-for dogs are the dangerous dogs. In an article quoted by Professor Stuart from the Nineteenth Century it is stated that before the present regulations were adopted in Bavaria the number of cases of hydrophobia averaged 26 a-year; but since these regulations came into force the average has fallen to one case in every two years. What the regulations are we are not told; but it is interesting to note that the above-stated diminution in the cases of hydrophobia has been secured by a reduction in the number of dogs of only 33 per cent. It can hardly be doubted that such a reduction is quite possible amongst ourselves with no hardship to anybody, and with actual benefit to the unfortunate strays who often offend our senses in our streets and certain portions of our parks. And it must be borne in mind that it is these which are the principal cause of disease. There are so many diseased and vagrant dogs, that any animal which is once allowed to stray is almost certain to be exposed to contagion. Once affected he is too often turned out of doors by a careless owner as the simplest means of getting rid of a useless animal, and he goes to swell the crowd of loathsome and suffering brutes, which is again upon the increase. The condition of these miserable creatures is well described by Professor Stuart; they are a misery to themselves, and a source of danger to man, and they ought to be got rid of. But the only question is, how to get rid of them without at the same time destroying valuable animals which may have chanced to stray without the knowledge of their owners. If in a case of this kind a regulation is issued, it is apt to be either neglected, or carried out with such thoroughness as to amount to a hardship. A certain amount of discretion is required of those upon whom we must ultimately rely as our active agents, and such discretion is not always possessed by them. They destroy valuable and useless or dangerous animals with equal indifference. Whether their mistakes are due to ignorance or not matters little to those owners who are deprived of dogs which they value; and these are apt to raise an outcry which secures the protection of the leprous pariah as well as of the dog who has been temporarily lost by someone who values him.

It must, however, be admitted that if mistakes are made, the owners of dogs are generally quite as much to blame as those who are the active agents in destroying them. Perhaps, in no civilised country are dogs treated with less care than amongst ourselves. A large number of owners indeed seem to keep them rather from force of habit than from any other reason. They are chained in a yard, where their continual barking is a nuisance to a whole neighbourhood, or they are allowed to wander about the streets at will. Only a few people comparatively seem to think of making companions and friends of them; to the rest their condition is a matter of indifference, unless they should happen to disappear altogether. Then the desire to recover lost property takes possession of an owner indifferent before, and the police are blamed for making away with a valuable animal, which, in fact would never have been lost but for the carelessness of its master. The remedy is, or should be, simple enough. Professor Stuart advocates the employment of dog-catchers under the control of the inspector of nuisances; but the arrangement of the necessary machinery is a matter of minor importance. What is most necessary is, that since stray dogs have been shown to be a danger to man, they should be caught and, unless diseased, kept for a certain time. They can then, as suggested, be destroyed, if unclaimed, by a quick and painless death. At the same time it may be suggested that a substantial increase in the dog tax might at once benefit the revenue, and lead to a diminution of the number of those dogs which night after night make Sydney one of the least restful cities in the world.

The observance of Good Friday as a day for solemn thoughts rather than for sport or festivity has been the subject of several letters in our columns. The appearance of these letters may be regarded as evidence of tendencies which the writers discern with pain, and desire to counteract. With the great body of the people there is a stronger disposition to keep holiday than holy day; and when either common custom or the law that recognises it has snatched a day more or less completely out of the grasp of business and toil, there are more who devote the rescued hours to pleasure or recreation than to religious observances, even though the line of distinction which separates the day so marked off from other days must be traced back to a religious starting-point. It is natural that in the midst of all this there should be a current setting the other way—a reaction, even though it be limited in extent, in favour of a revived attention to religious solemnities on the memorial days of the ecclesiastical year. Sincere and earnest endeavours to come to the succour of religious feeling where it may seem in danger of being crowded out are deserving of respect. We have no sympathy with those who would meet them with levity or derision. But in dealing with such matters as the religious observance of Good Friday, for instance, there are some considerations that should never be overlooked in a mixed community. Whilst some bodies of Christians attach a peculiar solemnity to that day, and feel bound by an obligation to pass it in a particular manner, others, equally sincere and zealous from their own point of view, recognise no authority for setting the day apart, and look upon its non-observance as a necessary protest against an alleged obligation which they deny. Others, again, who have no religious sentiment either way, simply deny the obligation, and claim the right to spend the day in their own way. Here, then, we have three distinct classes, all standing on one level in the eye of the law, and none possessing the power or the privilege of judging the others, or thinking for them, or declaring with authority what they should do, or from what they should refrain. Those who presumably occupy common ground may be exhorted by any of their number to stand fast by the old landmarks; and our boasted liberty of speech would be worth little if exception were taken to that. But where is our liberty of action if the conscience of one man is to be made another man's law, and religious obligations which are not imposed by the law of the land are to be enforced upon those who do not recognise them by the will of those who do? Non-interference with lawful acts and lawful omissions is the prime condition of religious freedom.

A rather ominous statement has been made with regard to the expenditure on the Centennial Park. According to a return which has been prepared by direction of the Premier, the money expended on the Park up to the present time amounts to the large sum of £33,000. We assume that the money has been judiciously laid out, and we therefore make no complaint. But this question must present itself to the reflective mind, If it has cost £33,000 to execute merely preliminary work, what is the expenditure likely to amount to before the reserve really becomes a park? The heavy road-making which had to be undertaken in the first instance accounts, no doubt, for a large portion of the expenditure, and this work will not have to be undertaken again. But when we consider what remains to be done, it is difficult to avoid the conclusion that the park will be a much more expensive affair than was at first imagined. By the time drives have been laid out, trees and shrubs planted, footpaths formed, and other necessary improvements made, a sum very much greater than £33,000 will have been accounted for. The amount authorised by the Legislature for laying out the park is £50,000; but does any one suppose for a moment that the work will be completed for £17,000 more than the sum already expended? It would be absurd to expect any such thing. We need not be surprised if the estimate of the Government proves fallacious. Such estimates are never to be depended upon, and we must make the best of the position. We have put our hand to the plough, and we cannot turn back. The park must be really a park, even if we have to spend more money than we were led to expect would be necessary. At the same time anything like unnecessary expenditure must be avoided; we must try to combine efficiency with economy. What is now wanted is further information. Parliament, we submit, should be fully informed as to how the money already spent has been laid out, and also as to what is required in the future. As matters stand, members must feel that they are very much in the dark.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

A deputation representing the residents of St. John's Park, Canley Vale, introduced by Mr. Frank Farnell, M.L.A., and Mr. Nobbs, M.L.A., waited upon the Postmaster-General yesterday, for the purpose of endeavouring to induce the Government to remove the post-office now situated at Bonnyrigg to St. John's Park. It was pointed out that the post-office was at present two miles from the centre of population, and were it removed to St. John's Park its position would be far more central and convenient. St. John's is a nice little town, surrounded by farms, and it greatly needed better postal facilities. Mr. Roberts promised that he would send a postal inspector to visit the district and report upon the request, and if possible he would accede to it.

The Minister for Justice has had under consideration a report of some remarks made by Mr. Abbott, S.M., with reference to his action in allowing the summons division of the Central Police Court to be used on Thursday for the ballot of members for the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board. It will be remembered that Mr. Abbott, after alluding to the inconvenience to which suitors, officials, and the public were subjected, said that had he been present at 8 o'clock he would certainly not have allowed the polling to be proceeded with, inasmuch as he had not even been treated to the mere courtesy of a notification that the court-room had been granted. The Minister for Justice informs us that it was arranged in the first instance that the long room of the Central Police Court should be used for the purpose of the election, but on Thursday morning an officer went to the Department of Justice, and intimated that the long room was not suitable, and that unless the Minister sanctioned one of the court rooms being devoted for the purpose, no election could take place. Representations to the same effect were made by the Works Department, and Mr. Clarke was reluctantly compelled to grant the use of the Summons Court, and Mr. Abbott was instantly apprised through telephone of the fact. He at once replied "all right," and was apparently perfectly satisfied with the arrangement. Mr. Clarke has called upon Mr. Abbott for an explanation.

The question of the maintenance of a monthly mail service by the Union Steam Ship Company's boats, between Sydney, Melbourne, and the New Hebrides, has for some time past engaged the consideration of the Government. Sir Henry Parkes has received a communication from the Victorian Premier on the subject, and a decision will probably be arrived at as to the amount of subsidy to be paid by New South Wales, if any, in the course of the next few days.

The Government have now under consideration the question of extending the penny postage system over the whole of the colony. It is not improbable that an early decision will be arrived at—not for the benefit of any particular district, but for the advantage of the colony as a whole.

Mr. Frank Farnell, one of the members for Central Cumberland, gave an account of his stewardship in the Albert Hall, Granville, last night. Alderman Unwin occupied the chair. Mr. Farnell spoke for an hour on his conduct in the House, and at the close he was accorded a vote of confidence.

There will be a parade of the Metropolitan Infantry of the partially-paid force this afternoon, at Moore Park. The purpose of the parade is to look to the light marching order of the brigade, and go through some drill preparatory to going into camp on Friday next. The arrangements for the encampment of the field branches on the Paddington rifle range are going on steadily, and a considerable portion of the tent accommodation is already complete. The new supply of tents has arrived, fortunately in time for use during the camp, to replace those destroyed by the unemployed, and the shipment is now being landed. This will enable the whole force to go under canvas, instead of quartering the country corps by billet, as would have been done had the tents not arrived.

In connection with the recent matriculation examination, it was stated in a paragraph published yesterday that the scholarship for general proficiency was awarded to Mr. F. W. Doak. We find that it was actually won by Mr. Edward Milner Stephen, of the Sydney Grammar School; but that, as in the examination he had also won two scholarships and could not hold a third, it went to Mr. Doak.

A circular has been issued by the secretary of a suburban School of Arts to other institutions of a like character inviting support in an agitation to induce the Government to place upon the Supplementary Estimates for the present year a grant in aid of schools of arts and similar institutions. The circular states that no provision of the kind has been made on the Estimates for 1888, and hence the suggestion for the agitation. In consequence of the receipt of the circular, the committees of some of the institutions in question have recently held meetings, and others are proposing to follow their example. The Colonial Treasurer points out, however, that if the originators of the movement had only consulted the estimates of expenditure for 1888, they would have found a sum of £52,550 for grants in aid of public institutions, which included £10,000 for issue in the proportion of £1 to every £2 raised by private contributions for schools of arts, mechanics' institutions, and the like educational establishments.

Friday being general motion day, a number of short matters were taken in Banco, several of them being merely of a formal character. In Pombart v. Australian Banking Company a rule nisi for a new trial was granted, but a similar application in Phillips v. Martin was refused, and the Court also declined to grant a rule nisi in Bale v. Shepherd. In Frater v. Abbott and another, the defendants' application for a rule nisi for a new trial was granted. The present sittings of the Supreme Court will terminate to-day, which is the last day of term, and in a short time the Judges will leave Sydney on circuit business. In Equity, his Honor dealt with a number of motions and petitions, and also took several short causes.

The "European Situation" is the subject of an article by our special correspondent which we publish to-day. Russia slowly and steadily mobilising her forces, Germany asking the Imperial Parliament to sanction a loan of £14,000,000 for augmenting the strength of her army, France alive to the necessity of being ready, Austria anxious to be equal to the occasion when it comes, and, side by side with the principal Powers, Bulgaria, Servia, Roumania, and Turkey all anxiously waiting the outcome of events, suggest to our correspondent the question whether it is to be "peace or war"?

We publish to-day a new weather chart, illustrating the barometrical changes in the meteorological conditions of the colonies. In our new map all the arrows or vanes point the way the wind is going, whereas in the old map they have pointed where the wind was coming from. The change which has been introduced is in accordance with general practice.

The Minister for Justice has been informed of the sudden disappearance of the clerk of petty sessions at Campbelltown, who left his office on Saturday last and has not since been heard of. An emergency clerk has been despatched by Mr. Clarke to take charge of the office, and to make a thorough investigation of affairs there. The police have been communicated with, and every effort is being made to trace the whereabouts of the missing clerk.

The special auditors appointed by the Mayor are continuing their examination of the books and papers of the City Engineer's department. So far, they have had all their time occupied with the audit of the Water branch, but before long they will be able to give their attention to the Sewerage branch as well. The Mayor expects another report from the auditors in about a month's time. The City Surveyor's department will next be examined, and then the other various departments of the Corporation. The books of the period before 1881 have not yet been found. In consequence of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board having now been constituted, and the engineer and other necessary officers appointed, the City Engineer's department has practically ceased to exist, and yesterday some of the furniture was being removed. The Mayor intends to retain the books, all of which are now in the hands of the special auditors.

Forged notes of the Bank of New South Wales are in circulation in Parramatta. They are splendid photographs, and the paper is slightly discoloured with chemicals. The police have the matter in hand.

The Government has approved of a regulation framed by the Marine Board to the effect that steamers returning from boat races on the Parramatta River shall not proceed at a pace exceeding six knots an hour, as far as Long Nose Point. The object of the regulation is the prevention of accidents through fast steaming.

About 60 Parramatta employees, mostly shop assistants, met in the Friendly Societies Hall on Thursday evening last, for the purpose of coming to some decision as regards the hours of labour. It was decided to call a public meeting for the purpose of bringing pressure to bear to get the shopkeepers to close their establishments at 6 o'clock every evening, Saturdays excepted.

We have received two views of the interior of the Pitt-street Congregational Church, as arranged for the memorial service to the Emperor William I., which will be most welcome souvenirs to our German colonists of the imposing ceremonial of Sunday last. Messrs. Kerry and Jones have obtained clear sharp outlines, and the photographs convey an excellent idea of the artistic decorations of Messrs. David Jones and Co. The German committee were very anxious to have the interior photographed when the church was filled; but a quarter of an hour, which is the time necessary for the plate to be exposed, rendered the attempt impracticable.

Mudgee bids fair to become an important source of fruit supply to the Sydney market, judging from some magnificent specimens brought from the orchard of Mr. G. Rothe, Home Rule, by Mr. W. H. M'Keown, junr., a well known Sydney fruit merchant. Mr. M'Keown describes the fruit prospects of the district as being splendid, especially for wine producing. The grapes are of exceptionally large size, and, as they come into season after other crops are finished, a constant supply can be assured to Sydney.

It having been found necessary to build a chapel in connection with the St. Magdalene Refuge, at Tempe, Cook's River, conducted by the nuns of the Good Samaritan Order, a fund to defray the expense was, we understand, initiated some weeks ago by a number of ladies interested in the institution, and Cardinal Moran has been invited to lay the foundation stone of the new building to-morrow afternoon. The work of the refuge which is mainly carried on in the large and specially designed laundry connected with the establishment, is, we are informed, done by the inmates of the refuge, who, at the present time, number over 80. When the refuge was opened towards the end of last year by Lord Carrington, the hope was expressed that it would become self-supporting, and we understand that this aim has been, in some measure at least, accomplished by the practical patronage extended to the laundry, and upon which the nuns entirely rely for the means to conduct the establishment. It is announced that several prominent Roman Catholic gentlemen, including Mr. Dalley, will speak at to-morrow's ceremony.

On Friday some 60 gentlemen, including members of the leading mercantile houses, entertained Mr. David Mitchell (of the firm of Messrs. D. Mitchell and Co.), who is about proceeding on a visit to England, at a harbour excursion and luncheon, which was held at Chowder Bay. Mr. A. Elkington (Fraser and Co.) occupied the chair, and Mr. James Burns (Burns, Philp, and Co., Limited), the vice-chair. After the usual loyal toasts, the chairman proposed the health of "Our Guest" in an appropriate speech, which was feelingly responded to by Mr. Mitchell. Other toasts followed, and the party landed at Circular Quay, at 6 p.m., after a pleasant outing.

We have received two additional letters on the subject of British Sailors. "A Look-out" considers the employment of Australian boys at sea a matter of national importance, and deems it a duty to foster a Mercantile Marine drawn from a population native to the soil, and which can be relied on for the defence of our coasts in time of war. Our correspondent states that the Federated Seaman's Union of Australia could not permit of this under the 9th clause of their amended printed rules, and refers to the success of the system in the British Merchant Service. An "Australian Seaman," a Swede by birth, enters his protest against the references made to the practices of his countrymen as sailors, and maintains that the allegations are without foundation.

With reference to "Experience's" letter headed "Commissioners for Affidavits," which appeared in our issue of the 7th of March last, and an explanation which appeared in a subsequent issue, we are requested to state that the delay complained of in "Experience's" letter was occasioned by the Post Office. On the 24th of December last a letter making the usual and necessary enquiries was written to the late A. M. Keightly, who was formerly P.M. of Albury, and who, unknown to the writer, was dead. This letter reached Albury on the 25th of December, and it was not returned until the 23rd of March.

According to the Brisbane Courier, the return of the sales of land by auction from 1st January to 31st December, 1887, shows that the Government offered for sale 3899 lots of town lands of an area of 1938 acres; 1380 lots of suburban lands of an area of 3527 acres; and 258 lots of country lands of an area of 1539 acres; total, 5547 lots of an area of 8066 acres. There were sold 1520 lots of town lands of an area of 604 acres; 604 lots of suburban lands of an area of 1426 acres; 77 lots of country lands of an area of 857 acres; total, 2101 lots of an area of 3308 acres. The sum realised from auction sales was £73,209.

In an article respecting the appointments made in connection with the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, in yesterday's issue, the name of Mr. J. B. Henson, assistant city engineer to the water and sewerage works, is incorrectly printed Benson.

In connection with the N. S. W. Congregational Sunday School Union, an excursion of teachers and friends will be made this afternoon to Athol Gardens. A steamer will leave No. 3 Jetty, Circular Quay, at 2 o'clock, returning at 6 o'clock.

The following is the order of service at St. Andrew's Cathedral on Sunday next:—Morning, 11 a.m.: Te Deum (Sullivan), in D; anthem, "O Lord, our Governor (Gadsby). Afternoon, 3.15 p.m.: Nunc Dimittis (Winchester), in F; anthem, "Hosanna in the Highest (Stainer); Litany (Tallis).

DISEASE AMONG RABBITS IN NEW ZEALAND.

[By Cable.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

AUCKLAND, Friday.

A disease of a highly infectious character has broken out among the rabbits in the Wairarapa district, and is proving very fatal. At the request of the Government Professor Brown, of Auckland University, proceeds to the locality to make experiments for the purpose of ascertaining whether the disease can be transferred to other parts of the colony where the rabbit pest exists.

LOST IN THE BUSH AT MOUNT VICTORIA.

DISCOVERY OF THE MISSING MAN.

[By Telegraph.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MOUNT VICTORIA, Friday.

Large bodies of settlers scoured the country yesterday in search of the man who was lost in the bush, but up to 5 p.m. no trace was found. Mr. N. Delaney then came on his tracks in a swamp leading back to the ranges of the Kanimbla Valley. The tracks were followed up with little hope of success till just about dusk, when the man was discovered in a state of madness, standing on a high rock overlooking a precipice, with his arms folded on his breast, calmly surveying the rescuers. "I presume you are looking for me," was the astonishing reply to the shout which announced his discovery. The man was perfectly naked, with the exception of his trousers, and his bare back was fearfully burned by exposure to the sun. Though he had eaten nothing for three days, he refused food, saying, "I have just dined at the camp." He was brought in at 7 p.m. to Hartley, and locked up, as he had evidently gone mad and was unfit to be at large. Great praise is due to the settlers for the way they turned out to search, especially to Messrs. N. Delaney and Manning, of the Royal Hotel, Mount Victoria.

THE FIRE ON THE SHIP ARISTOMENE.

[By Telegraph.

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, Friday.

Mr. Thomas Brooks, J.P., Lloyd's marine surveyor for the port of Newcastle, has made a survey of the ship Aristomene, which was found to be on fire on Sunday last. He estimates that it will cost about £400 to put the vessel in repair again, whilst some £400 worth of stores which were damaged will have to be replaced. Other incidental expenses will probably bring the total amount of the damage caused by the conflagration up to between £1500 and £2000, including detention, &c. The Aristomene is now alongside No. 15 Dyke jetty. The whole of the water has been pumped out of her. After repairing she will proceed on her voyage to San Francisco. The Coroner, Mr. Martin, opened an inquiry this afternoon at Carrington into the cause of the fire. The evidence of the captain and steward was taken, and the inquiry was adjourned till to-morrow.

THE WEATHER.

The weather during the early portion of yesterday was cloudy, heavy dark clouds hung about, and there were certain indications of rain, but very little fell, and that only here and there: in any instance it was not sufficient to lay the dust. Towards midday the clouds disappeared, and the afternoon was quite hot; but it was not by any means oppressive. In the country the weather was fine and clear; light clouds and fogs were had on the coast line, and the winds were variable generally throughout the colony.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

A meeting of the members of Parliament will be held next week to consider the appointment of Speaker. There is still considerable uncertainty as to the candidates, but it is considered that there will be a contest. Mr. Ward, Chairman of Committees, will stand, and will most probably be opposed by Mr. Bray. The latter states that he at present is not a candidate, but if desired by a section of the members, he will accede to their wishes.

The Government not having arrived at a decision in the matter of the main hall of the Jubilee Exhibition, the building has been let for six months at £30 a week, and will be used as a skating rink.

At the conclusion of the Centennial festivals in Sydney, the committee intimated to the South Australian legislators and other South Australian invited guests that they will shortly receive their invitation-cards handsomely engrossed, with their names engraved so that they could be retained as a memento of the event. The cards not having come to hand a prominent member of Parliament instituted inquiries, and found that they had been forwarded from Sydney, but were detained by the Customs at Port Adelaide. The whole of the cards have been forwarded by the Clerk of the Legislative Council for distribution. They were sent in the steamer Victorian about a fortnight ago, and on arrival at the Customs were placed in bond on account of being dutiable. The matter has been settled, and the cards will be released to-morrow.

It is understood that the Government has already received from 15 to 20 applications for the position of railway commissioners, including applications from a number of Civil servants, and from the other colonies. The salary is £1000.

The writs for the Legislative Council elections will be issued shortly after April 14, the day when eight members retire. The Chief Secretary, Mr. Ramsay, who is a candidate, will, it is understood, declare the Ministerial policy.

NEW ZEALAND.

AUCKLAND, FRIDAY.

At a meeting of the Melbourne Exhibition Commissioners, applications for a total space of 21,687ft. were received, in addition to 4000ft. which will be required for the trophies exhibits from the late Colonial and Indian Exhibition.

For some time past negotiations have been in progress between the Auckland timber companies and a Melbourne syndicate for the purchase of their sawmills and forests. It is understood that the representatives of the syndicate consider the price asked too high. It is now thought likely that the negotiation will fall through.

It is understood that Parliament will be summoned for the 24th April.

CHARGE AGAINST AN ALDERMAN AT COOTAMUNDRA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

COOTAMUNDRA, FRIDAY.

A very exciting case was heard at the police court to-day. Thomas M'Beath, returning officer for the municipal election last month, prosecuted William Augustus Byrn, alderman and J.P., for making a false declaration. The prosecutor was represented by Mr. Fitzhardinge, of Wagga, and the defendant by Mr. Gordon, M.L.A., who came from Sydney for the case. For the prosecution it was alleged that a portion of defendant's rates were due at the time of voting. It was admitted by the evidence that defendant exercised only two votes, and disputed a claim for overdue rates on the sale yards leased by him, for which he refused to pay, and which, if he had paid, would have entitled him to three votes. The police magistrate held that the prosecution had broken down, as no false declaration was proved. The case was dismissed. A public meeting to express sympathy with the defendant has been called for Monday night.

THE DECENTRALISATION MOVEMENT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WEST MAITLAND, FRIDAY.

A public meeting was held in the Mechanics' Institute, East Maitland, last evening, in connection with the decentralisation movement. The Mayor, Mr. G. T. Chambers, occupied the chair, and Mr. J. N. Brunker, member for East Maitland, Mr. Alex. Brown, and Mr. H. E. Stokes, occupied seats on the platform, and the hall was fairly well filled. Mr. John Ewing moved the first resolution, pledging the residents of East Maitland to support the principles of the North and North Western decentralisation league. Alderman Cunningham, Mr. Alex. Brown, and Mr. Brunker, spoke in support of the resolution, which was carried unanimously. On the motion of Mr. A. G. Cullum, seconded by Alderman Bourke, and supported by Mr. H. E. Stokes, an influential committee was formed for the purpose of carrying out the first resolution, and the meeting then terminated with votes of thanks to the chair, the member for the town, and the delegate from Newcastle.

BATHURST, FRIDAY.

A ballot was taken at the School of Arts to-day, to decide whether the reading-room should be opened on Sunday afternoon. 54 voted in favour and 75 against, out of a total number on the roll of 250. The majority against the proposal was therefore 21.

BOURKE, FRIDAY.

A Government land sale was held here to-day by Ranken and Bloxham, Government auctioneers. The total amount of the sale was £6053 8s. 9d. The upset prices of lots situated at North Bourke were looked upon as too high to admit of speculation, and the lots were all passed in. To-morrow a large Government sale will be held at Byrock by the same auctioneers.

A warrant has been issued against the defaulting town clerk, who absconded in January last.

The weather is hot and cloudy. The river is 25ft. 10in., stationary.

DUBBO, FRIDAY.

At an influential meeting held at the Royal Hotel last evening, Mr. Morgan being chairman, a resolution was unanimously carried inviting the following ex-Ministers to visit Dubbo, viz., Messrs. Lyne, Dibbs, Copeland, Fletcher, and Garvan, with Messrs. Hassall, Slattery, and other members of Parliament. A banquet will be held. The Farmers' Union have secured the Masonic Hall for a mass meeting in the evening, at which the visitors will be invited to speak on the question of protection.

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

A survey party is at present re-surveying the Grafton and Tweed railway.

Corn pulling is now in full swing. The yield in some instances is exceptionally heavy. Blight is ruining the late corn.

NARRABRI, FRIDAY.

The court-house will be opened on Monday. There will be no demonstration.

The Land Court concluded to-day an enquiry as to residence, &c., in the cases of W. B. Smith, J. Whiteman, and H. Thurlow, and upheld the same. The rent of Killarney leasehold was fixed at ½d. an acre. An application from the Department of Mines to exchange parts of the Narrabri Commons for other land, for use as travelling stock reserves, was postponed. The district surveyor was instructed to notify the areas at Tabala Creek as travelling stock reserves and camp reserves.

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

At a meeting last night of the committee for opening up Melville-street there was a full attendance. A report from the collectors was read, notifying that their exertions had been successful in obtaining subscriptions to the amount of £102, while promises amounting to £108 had been received, making a total of £210 to the fund. It was stated that Mr. Jesse Gregson, general manager of the A. A. Co., had the necessary documents in connection with the opening up in hand. About £70 more is required to complete the work, which, when finished, will be an immense boon to the Newcastle public.

A meeting of the inhabitants of Islington was held last night at the Mechanics' Institute for the purpose of extending the Wickham branch of the decentralisation league to that place. The chair was occupied by Alderman A. Shedden, Mayor of Wickham, and president of the Wickham league. The usual resolutions were carried unanimously. The principal speakers were Mr. T. Brooks, J.P., Alderman Frewin, Messrs W. Clarke, and J. W. Kidd. The branch was duly formed and the names of members were enrolled.

The third anniversary of the Y. M. C. A. was celebrated last night in their hall at Newcastle, and the proceedings were a great success.

PORT MACQUARIE, FRIDAY.

At the Lands Office yesterday over 700 acres were selected.

The first shipment of new maize was sent to the Sydney market yesterday.

WILCANNIA, FRIDAY.

The river trade is very quiet at present. Almost all the wool has gone down, and none of the stations are making any improvements, consequently they require very little else except a few stores.

The weather is very warm and close. A change is impending. 1100 mixed cattle arrived on the Common to-day en route for Broken Hill, via Menindi, Richard Dawes, owner; 416 ewes and wethers, from Tichurst and Kilfera, passed here bound for Cobham Lake, Donnelly Bros.; 4500 going to Combogolong, Lower Castlereagh, crossed the river yesterday. Tantara reports the following stock having passed:—1000 bullocks from Palparara, Queensland, for Melbourne, Heng Bros.; a mob of cattle from Bulloo Downs for Adelaide, and another mob close at hand from the same station, bound for Melbourne.

FATAL ACCIDENT AT THE WEST WALLSEND MINE.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

NEWCASTLE, FRIDAY.

An accident which resulted fatally occurred at the West Wallsend mine yesterday. Six men were working at the bottom of the shaft, and had already sunk 450ft. A bucket containing about 15cwt. of stuff was hauled up, and when within 15ft. of the top the rope broke. The bucket fell upon a man named Edward M'Earne, employed in sinking, and cut his right arm clean from his body, smashing his right foot, and doing other injuries. He was taken home to Wallsend as soon as possible, and was seen by Dr. Nash, who ordered the sufferer to be taken to the Newcastle Hospital. His right foot was amputated, but in spite of all efforts to save his life the poor fellow died this afternoon.

HAY QUARTER SESSIONS.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

HAY, FRIDAY.

The Quarter Sessions were opened to-day before Judge Forbes. Mr. Merewether was the prosecutor for the Crown. John Pointon was found guilty of stealing jewellery, and was sentenced to two years in Darlinghurst Gaol. Amos Wood, charged with robbery, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to 12 months in Deniliquin Gaol. Donrid Sinclair Giles, horse-stealing at Mossgiel, received two years' hard labour in Darlinghurst Gaol. Michael Cuneen pleaded guilty to horse-stealing, and was sentenced to 12 months in Deniliquin Gaol. Thomas Montfort Laycock, obtaining goods by false pretences at Mossgiel was found guilty and sentenced to six months in Hay gaol. Ah Foon, Ah See, and Ah You were convicted of sheep-stealing from James Tyson, Tupra run. They were each sentenced to 12 months in Hay Gaol.

ELGIN WATCHES
ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD.
THE LEADING AMERICAN TIMEKEEPERS.
THE MOST EXCELLENT WATCHES FOR RAILWAYS.

These celebrated watches are unsurpassed for excellence of material and workmanship, and are universally acknowledged to be the most accurate timekeepers.

Astronomers and explorers have unhesitatingly pronounced them more trustworthy than the best known chronometers.

Nearly all the Observatories throughout America are provided with ELGIN WATCHES to correct any error in the rate of their Chronometers.

In taking observations astronomers frequently use ELGIN WATCHES in preference to their chronometers.

The railroad is the great critic. Nowhere else is a watch so severely tested: nowhere else is accuracy so absolutely essential. After careful trial, solely upon their own merits, the ELGIN WATCHES have been adopted as the standard upon all the leading trunk lines of railways in America. On the Pennsylvania railroad alone more than 200 locomotives are run by them, and they are in use among conductors and engineers upon every railway in America. The great transcontinental railway from Omaha to San Francisco is run by Elgin Watches. Two facts in the consumption of the Elgin Watches are—First, fully two-thirds thus far are sold in the United States; second, the company are filling large orders for India, China, Japan, and Australia, which have come without solicitation or advertising abroad.

Explorers tell us that on expeditions made into some parts of the uninhabited globe they have been provided with no less than "four chronometers," but that the only "horological instrument" upon which they were able to rely was an ELGIN WATCH, all the others having become useless.—Vide Astronomer Powell's report.

Elgin National Watch Co., Chicago.

Dear Sir,—Last year, in the explorations of the canyons of Colorado River, I had unusual opportunity to test the accuracy of one of your watches. I was provided with four pocket chronometers for use in astronomical observations. I also had with me an Elgin Watch, which I rated from time to time, together with the chronometers, by observations with the sextant. Of five instruments its rate was the best. With the ordinary disturbance due to transportation, its rate was the least variable, while, with the extraordinary disturbance incident to such an expedition, it was the only instrument on which I could rely, the chronometers at last becoming useless.

I am, with great respect, yours cordially,
J. W. POWELL, Astronomer.

ANNIVERSARY of the BULLI DISASTER.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OWN OUR CORRESPONDENT.)

BULLI, FRIDAY.

The public holiday requested by this district not having been granted, owing to the Government having postponed the unveiling of the disaster memorial monument, it was decided locally to proceed with whatever portion of the proposed programme was practicable, and keep a strict holiday at the district mines. The miners and friendly societies assembled at midday, and, numbering about 500, headed by the Wollongong band, marched to the Bulli Park, where addresses were delivered bearing on the local colliery disaster this day 12 months ago. The Rev. J. B. Gribble (Church of England), Rev. T. F. Potts (Wesleyan), Mr. J. Curley, northern miners' secretary, spoke. Mr. T. J. Pallister presided. The tone of the speeches was moderate, and produced little enthusiasm. There was no excitement or indecorum. Resolutions were passed expressing sympathy with the sufferers. Mr. Curley strongly urged organisation and unity amongst the miners of the district, and a motion to that effect was carried. Much disappointment was expressed at the postponement of the unveiling ceremony, many having travelled long distances to witness the proceedings. The obelisk is much admired so far as it is discernable from the barrier imposed by the locked railway fence. Over a thousand persons attended the demonstration. The utmost order prevailed throughout. The weather was beautifully fine, and the day was spent quite in keeping with the melancholy occasion.

THE NAVAL BRIGADE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I see by your issue of Wednesday last that Sir Henry Parkes intends to inspect the various fortifications at the Heads and along the coast and make himself conversant with the requirements necessary to make them more secure, &c. I would humbly suggest that the Premier would visit at the same time the head-quarters of the Naval Brigade, viz., Forts Macquarie and Denison, and have a look at the obsolete and useless weapons mounted there for drill purposes, and other war materials of which I shall draw attention further on. As an old service man, I contend that to drill a force like the Naval Brigade, composed of, as you are aware, Mr. Editor, by far the greater part men-of-war's men, who have purchased their discharges from time to time on this station, at 64-pounder M. L. R. guns mounted on traversing platforms, is wasting valuable time. Such men as compose the Naval Brigade are men who have put in their 10 years in the Royal Navy, and accustomed to work guns of the most modern styles—6, 10, and 12 inch guns, both muzzle and breech loading, mounted on Elswick and Albini carriages, and to drill them at the obsolete guns and carriages mounted on the above forts is a simple farce, and ludicrous to a degree. The sooner such guns are laid on one side, and the carriages burnt, the better it will be for the Naval Brigade. There is no force I know, either in the old country or this side the line, that has the same percentage of trained men-o'-war-men as the Naval Brigade in Sydney, and yet they are supplied with weapons of a type seen nowhere but in New South Wales.

Why the officer commanding this most valuable arm of our defence forces has allowed such a state of things to exist for the last 10 or 15 years is unexplainable. In the matter of field and machine guns the Naval Brigade is in the same condition. I happened to see three, shall I call them field guns, at Fort Macquarie, dated 1840 or 1850. I thought possibly they had been sent out from the British Museum as curiosities. Are such guns as these used for drill purposes? It is to be hoped not. I believe the brigade has a few other field guns not quite so ancient, and one solitary Gatling, which is obsolete, having been superseded by the Gardner, the most reliable machine gun yet invented, and which I advocated in your columns some time since for use in the Naval Brigade. In Victoria, Queensland, and South Australia, the Naval Brigades have each about one dozen machine guns, some of which are attached to their vessels and others worked as field-guns. The Naval Brigade here appears to ignore the necessity and usefulness of having a field battery attached to their battalion, as I have never seen them with any guns except on Queen's Birthday. The force, to one who is competent to express an opinion, seems to be sadly behind the times. As to small arms, the brigade is the only paid force using the old Henri rifle. Such a state of things is simply scandalous. An inspection, as suggested by me, would reveal the rottenness of our defences, and probably the Government of which Sir H. Parkes is the representative would have their eyes opened and be prompted to speedy action to put the Naval Brigade in its right sphere in the first place, and, in the second place, see that it is supplied with heavy guns, field and machine guns, and small arms of the latest type, and we will have a corps in Sydney to be proud of. I am, &c.,

Sydney, March 23, 1888. REFORM.

THE SEWERAGE OF THE WESTERN SUBURBS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—I have read with a great deal of interest the report of Mr. G. H. Stayton, C.E., on his scheme for the sewerage of the western suburbs. Now, I have no doubt his scheme would be very effectual; but I cannot but think that by including those places lying north of the Liverpool-road he has made a mistake. I refer more especially to Strathfield, Burwood, Croydon, Ashfield, Concord, and Five Dock, these places being situated on ground with its watershed towards the Parramatta River. By including these places he increases the cost of his scheme to the very large figure of £830,304. Now, how will this large cost affect the places abovementioned? I will take Burwood, and see what will be its proportion. I find Burwood has an area of 1920 acres, for which Mr. Stayton has allowed for a population of 33·065 per acre. This gives a population when entirely built on (which, of course, must be allowed for in any sewerage scheme), 63,485; the total population on the whole scheme is 482,608, so that the proportional cost out of the £830,304 that will fall to Burwood will be £109,222. Now, how does this amount affect the ratepayers? If the capital and interest on the above is paid off in 28 years, the interest will be at 6 per cent., which amounts to an annual call of £6553; or if for the 60 years term, at 4·42 per cent., it will amount to £4827. This does not include working expenses, which amount to another £44 and £32 respectively, or a total of £6597 and £4859. I find that a penny rate realises about £300; so it is very evident that it will require a rate of 1s. 10d. if the capital and interest is paid off in 28 years, or a rate of 16½d. if paid in 60 years. Now this large rate would, I feel sure, prevent people from building and living in this neighbourhood.

I have had large experience in sanitary works in England, and have certainly never seen a case in which the sewerage has been taken so dead against the natural lay of the land, unless there was a very strong reason for so doing, which certainly does not appear in this case, as by carrying out Mr. Stayton's scheme necessitates the use of Schone's pneumatic-ejector system for the low-lying parts, and which will be a continual expense, and should therefore be avoided.

I am quite sure that the work can be as effectually and much more quickly carried out, and at a third of the cost, by taking into consideration the natural watershed, and laying the whole of the sewers to empty themselves by gravitation, with small sewerage farm, say at the head of Hen and Chicken Bay, where there are many acres of land waiting to be reclaimed (which now at low water are very offensive). A small sewerage farm properly arranged will be no nuisance to anyone, and a great improvement to the state of affairs at present. Of course the effluent water would not be allowed to go into the bay until it is perfectly bright and clear.

Apologising for trespassing so largely on your space,
I am, &c.,
CHARLES COWDERY, C.E., Sanitary Engineer.

AMUSEMENTS.

PIANOFORTE RECITAL AND LECTURE.

Mons. Kowalski gave his second short lecture and recital at the New Masonic Hall, Castlereagh-street, last evening, the audience numbering considerably more than on the former occasion. The subject of the "lecturette" was "Pianoforte study, style, and art of phrasing." The two latter were disposed of each with a single reference and illustration. In regard to the former M. Kowalski said that what first led him to contemplate coming to Australia was the perusal of some statistics which told him that there was one pianoforte to about every 15 of the inhabitants, whence he concluded that Australians must be essentially a music-loving people. In reference to study he gave some sound advice, contrasting the colonial style of teaching, which turned out performers first and trusted in Providence that they might become musicians by some mysterious process of evolution, instead of (as in Europe) endeavouring first to teach music as an abstract fact and then proceeding to its outward manifestation, viz., performance. He instanced "finger skill" as a mere means to an end, and referred with some delicacy to quack teachers as closely analogous to quack practitioners in the healing art. He urged the advisability of musical analysis preceding performance; and strongly recommended the six books by Ridley Prentice as conveying sound teaching and much practical aid—a recommendation which we can heartily endorse. In music there are phrases and sections as components of sentences; and these are built up into what are known as movements. And in larger works there are several movements which are all essential to the complete composition. He reminded the audience that classical music must not be considered as confined to the musician of the past, for many of the productions of our own time will prove to be the classics of the future. The lecture was well received, being listened to with attention, and applauded.

A recital followed of pianoforte works by Bach, Handel, Beethoven, Schumann, Weber, Mendelssohn, Liszt, Raff, and Rubenstein, in which Mons. Kowalski was assisted by Miss Mildred Hester, Miss Emilia Wood, and Miss Hunter. Madame Boema contributed largely to the success of the evening—her fine singing of the grand aria from Mozart's "Don Giovanni" being, in particular, applauded to the echo. Of Mons. Kowalski's performances, the best and most pleasing were, a romance of Schumann, and Liszt's marvellous transcription of the "Erlkönig" of Schubert. In endeavouring to restrain his exuberant spirits within the bounds of the more reserved style which is held to pertain to the schools of Beethoven and Mendelssohn, M. Kowalski perforce resigns certain of those qualities which make his performances at other times so magnetically effective. The Beethoven sonata would have been better had he (true to the principles advocated by himself a few minutes before) not omitted the minuet movement. Miss Mildred Hester deserves to be especially complimented upon her very fine performance of Schumann's "Variations Symphoniques"—which was not excelled by anything during the evening.

THE OPERA HOUSE.

A very large attendance was amused at the Opera House last night by the mesmeric performances of Professor Kennedy. A number of those who showed courage enough to step upon the stage and subject themselves to an electro-biological test in public were made to prove unintentionally that the entertainer's powers were of an astonishing nature. The audience appeared to well appreciate the entertainment, and hearty laughter was constantly evoked.

THE ALHAMBRA.

Mr. Frank Smith's company at the Alhambra Music Hall, Haymarket, has continued during the past week to draw well-attended houses. As is usual with the caterer, an altered programme will be submitted to-night.

THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC.

The Federal Minstrels and Specialty Union announce a change of programme for to-night. In the first part of the entertainment there will be associated with the company six corner men, and some new features are also promised in respect to the vocal and instrumental contributions. Mr. C. Lyndon, whose performances are always received with much enthusiasm, is to give his original clog and acrobatic song and dance. H. Carroll will doubtless add to his popularity as a contributor of "double-voice impersonations." Amongst the "sketches" to be produced is one by Mr. Horace Bent, entitled "The Lost Child," in which the author will appear. Messrs. Warner and Ryan are to appear in an Irish specialty called "Toss the Turk."

CENTENARY UNIVERSAL EXHIBITION.

The Centenary Universal Exhibition was well patronised yesterday. An additional attraction was afforded by an exhibition of fireworks by Mr. Brock in the evening, and as a consequence the attendance was very large. The park was beautifully illuminated by Chinese lanterns and variegated lights. The fireworks were commenced shortly before 9 o'clock, and were continued for about three-quarters of an hour. The set pieces included a portrait of his Excellency Lord Carrington, silver birch tree, a dancing sailor, forest of fairy palms, a letter device, fountain devices, aërial wheatsheaf and aërial harlequinade. The display was in many respects a very grand one, and was repeatedly applauded by the spectators. A large number of aërial guns, rockets, mammoth bombs, and shells, were included in the programme. The usual concert will be given at the Exhibition this afternoon.

DIORAMA OF SCOTLAND.

An exhibition of an attractive and interesting character, known as the Royal Diorama of Scotland, will be opened in the New Masonic Hall, Castlereagh-street, on Saturday next. It will comprise views of cities, towns, lakes, rivers, caves, and cataracts, and pictures of life in the mountains.

THE AQUARIUMS.

Attractive programmes have been provided for those who visit the aquariums to-day. At the Coogee Palace Aquarium the programme will consist of performances by Zuida, described as the wonderful aërial gymnast, who will execute some marvellous feats on the trapeze, concluding with a thrilling and sensational descent from the dome to the stage hanging only by her teeth. Mr. W. P. Owens, the mimic, will also appear in conjunction with other artists of merit.

The attractions at the Manly Aquarium will be the same as on former occasions. The aquarium will be illuminated by the electric light in the evening.

At the Bondi Aquarium there is to be a bayonet contest between the professors of the New South Wales Academy of Arms and representatives of the sister colonies. The prize consists of a £40 trophy and the Royal Aquarium Company's gold watch and chain.

The Theatre Royal continues to be largely patronised, the attraction being the merry opera of "Erminie," which will be repeated this evening. The cast is most powerful, the acting meritorious, and the scenery artistic. Notwithstanding its success, however, it will be withdrawn on Tuesday to make way for farewell performances on Wednesday of the "Mikado," and afterwards for the introduction of "Pinafore."

The final nights of "In the Ranks" are announced at Her Majesty's Theatre. Last night the play was given for the 77th time, and passed off most successfully. To-night it will be repeated, and, to mark its long continuance, the management have decided to present visitors with souvenirs, ranging in value from 1s. to £10. The latter prize will represent a gold hunting watch. "Faust" is in active preparation.

At the Criterion Theatre the amusing comedy "Sophia," adapted from Fielding's famous novel "Tom Jones," is being played with great excellence by Messrs. Brough and Boucicault's Comedy Company. It has been received every night this week by large audiences, and will be repeated to-night.

The Gaiety Theatre, last night, produced the pathetic drama of "East Lynne" by special request. As Lady Isabel and Madame Vine, Miss Lily Dampier's acting met with much approval, whilst Mr. Dampier acquitted himself well as Captain Levison. The other characters were in good hands. To-night Thomas Morton's drama, in four acts—"The Slave"—will be placed upon the boards, and Antoine Bollars, the coloured tragedian, will make his first appearance.

On Saturday next Mr. Frank Smith will re-open the Standard Theatre with a specially-selected burlesque company. The burlesque selected to open with is the late H. J. Byron's "Don Juan, Junior," and as the management are sparing no expense in the production, there should be a successful season. Miss Amy Horton will be the leading attraction.

At the Protestant Hall last night, "Rab Scott's" concert was well attended. Twenty-one songs, duets, &c., were given, very many of which evoked most justly-earned applause, and in several instances hearty encores. Mr. John Robarts acted as accompanist, and Mr. John Finlayson undertook the duties of musical conductor.

CASUALTIES.

A man named Emanuel Heller, 27 years of age, employed as a fireman on board the steamship Salier, was taken to the Sydney Hospital early yesterday morning by Constable Eppell, and on examination by one of the medical attendants was found to be suffering from a compound fracture of the left leg. It was stated that Heller was discovered lying on the ground at Circular Quay, where he was surrounded by a number of men who were dancing upon his chest.

At 10 o'clock last night a fire of a somewhat disastrous character broke out at Kingsley's stables at Rockdale. The premises, in spite of all efforts which were put forth to save them from the flames, were completely destroyed. Information of the occurrence was only received at the metropolitan fire brigade station at a late hour last night, and no report has yet been received to show how the fire originated or the extent of the damage done.

A man named John Taylor, a master monumental mason, of Rookwood, was killed on the railway at Harris Park station last night. For some reason deceased got out of the 7.45 train from Parramatta on its arrival at Harris Park, and made an attempt to get on again while the train was in motion. He fell between the train and the platform, and was dragged under the carriages, and must have been killed instantly. He was fearfully cut about the head and body. The train was stopped, and the body was taken to Granville. It was subsequently sent to Parramatta hospital, where an inquest will be held to-day.

MEETINGS.

THE NEW SOUTH WALES RIFLE ASSOCIATION.

The annual general meeting of the New South Wales Rifle, Association was held last night in the Engineers' drill hall at Victoria Barracks.

Lieutenant-Colonel Jaques presided. There was a good attendance of members.

The report for the year was received and adopted, and from it we make the following extracts:—"The council, in presenting the twenty-seventh annual report, feel justified in congratulating the members on the unprecedented success which has attended the operations of the association during the past year. The income from subscriptions was very large as compared with previous years; this is owing, in a great measure, to the number of intercolonial riflemen who became members of the association in connection with the Centennial Prize Meeting. The prize meeting of 1887 was held during the week ending 22nd October, and was thoroughly successful in every respect, although there was a decrease in the number of competitors as compared with the 1886 meeting, which was mainly owing to the reduction in the strength of the Defences Forces, and to the discontinuance of recruiting for some time past. The following are the winners of the principal prizes at the meeting, viz.:—Private J. Nicholson, 2nd Regiment V.I., champion gold medal; A. B. Grant, N.B., silver medal of N. R. A., England; Scots Team, international trophies; 1st Regiment V.I., Regimental Challenge Bugle; No. 1 Company N. B., Company Challenge Bugle; No. 1 Company N. B., Hixson trophy; Newington College C. C., Engineers' trophy; Newington College C. C., School Challenge Shield; Naval Brigade, Skirmishing Match; Naval Brigade Rifle Club, Major Strong's trophy. In the month of May last it was decided to have a special prize meeting in honour of the centenary of the colony, open to competitors from all parts of the British dominions. The programme, as originally issued, was subsequently considerably enlarged and added to, and when finally settled embraced:—1, The Grand Centennial Match; 2, the Centennial Teams Match; 3, the Members' Centennial Match; 4, the Rifle Clubs' Centennial Match; 5, the Parliamentary Centennial Match; 6, the Continuous Match; and 7, the Consolation Match; also, two special matches shot in connection with the foregoing, viz., the Walker Centennial Prize and the Waltham Watch Centennial Trophy: the total prize money amounting to £2365 5s. There was also an intercolonial match at Adelaide, in which this colony was represented. When the centennial meeting was projected your council approached the Colonial Secretary by deputation to ask for some assistance from the Government in carrying out the meeting, and for free passes on the railways for visiting riflemen from the other colonies. This latter was generously granted; but up to the present time your Council has not received any definite reply to the application for a special grant in aid of the prizes. In view, however, of the assistance that has been given to other associations in carrying out their centennial celebrations, your Council still hopes that the Government will still recognize the claims of this association. The meeting was held during February last, and may, without doubt, be characterised as the most successful rifle meeting that has been held in the Australasian colonies. The neighbouring colonies responded liberally to our invitation, and Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania were all well represented. Upwards of 700 competitors took part in the meeting, of whom more than one half were visitors from the other colonies. The following are the winners of principal prizes at the meeting:—Mr. F. Page, Melbourne Rifle Club, Gold Medal of the association, first prize in Grand Centennial Match, and Waltham Watch Company's trophy; New South Wales, Centennial Teams Match; First Regiment N. S. W. V. I. Rifle Club, first prize in Rifle Clubs Match; Captain Patterson, Gympie, Queensland, first prize in Members' Match and Hon. H. C. Dangar's prize; Mr. F. Jago Smith, M.L.A., N. S. W., first prize Parliamentary Match; A. B. Fenn, N. B., N. S. W., Walker centennial prize; Sergeant Warden, N. C. C., N. S. W., special prize presented by Major Walker for highest individual scorer in Rifle Clubs' Match; A. B. Young, N. A. V., N. S. W., the Hon. Sir W. M. Manning's special prize; Lieutenant Stack, Second Regiment, N. S. W. V. I., Mr. C. Anderson's special prize. The Centennial Teams Match, which was practically an Intercolonial Match, was competed for by teams of eight from this colony, South Australia, Queensland, Tasmania, and Victoria, and is the first occasion in which five colonies have been represented, and after a keen and exciting competition it was won by New South Wales with the score of 1423 points, South Australia being second with 1387 points, Queensland third with 1377 points, Tasmania fourth with 1346 points, and Victoria fifth with 1329 points. The most successful match of the meeting was the Rifle Clubs Match, for which 90 teams, represented by 450 individual competitors, entered; and your council trusts that a match of this kind will form a prominent feature in the programme at all future prize meetings of this association, and provide an additional inducement for the formation of these useful clubs. Your council believes that this Centennial Prize Meeting, which is the first of an intercolonial character that has been held, has given a great impetus to rifle shooting throughout the Australasian colonies, and has done much to bring about a more cordial and friendly feeling between this association and those of the neighbouring colonies, and between our riflemen and theirs. It is with much regret that your council has to report that in August last an order was issued closing the Paddington Rifle Range, owing to the alleged danger to men working in the Centennial Park. Your council would strongly urge upon the military authorities the necessity of their cooperating with and assisting this association in an endeavour to have a new rifle range formed on the site selected at Randwick, or such alterations and improvements made on the Paddington range as will allow of its being used without danger to the public, which competent judges affirm can be done at a moderate cost; otherwise the interests of rifle shooting (without the knowledge of which the infantry portion of the defence forces would, in the opinion of your council, be practically useless) in this colony will be greatly prejudiced, and the efforts of this association to promote and encourage it be rendered null and void. During the visit of the riflemen from the neighbouring colonies a conference of delegates representing this association, Victoria, South Australia, Queensland, and Tasmania, was held, and a general council of Rifle Associations of Australasia formed, having for its object the promotion and carrying out of intercolonial contests, and the decision of any question remitted by any rifle association. It is confidently anticipated that this general council will tend to preserve the cordial relations now existing between the several rifle associations who have joined therein, and to promote rifle shooting generally throughout Australasia. In compliance with the terms of a resolution adopted at the last annual meeting of this association, your council communicated with the military authorities with a view to having one or more of the improved sights chosen and authorised, the remaining being disallowed, which was approved by the Major-General commanding. A committee was then appointed to examine and report upon the various sights now in use, or authorised, and a report from this committee recommending a certain sight, and urging upon the military authorities the advisability of adopting such site, and issuing the rifles therewith, has been adopted, and recently forwarded to the said authorities, and the result will doubtless be communicated to this council in due course. The treasurer's statement shows that the expenditure during the past year, consequent upon the heavy drain upon the funds in connection with the centennial meeting, exceeded the income by about £500, which is the amount your council still hopes to obtain from the Government as a special grant towards the centennial meeting.

The election of office-bearers for the year then took place, with the following result:—President: His Honor Sir William M. Manning. Vice-presidents: Major-General Richardson, C.B.; Colonel Roberts, C.M.G.; Captain Hixson, N.B.; Colonel Goodlet, Lieutenant-Colonel Holborow, Lieutenant-Colonel Jaques, Lieutenant-Colonel Baynes, Lieutenant-Colonel Stokes, Lieutenant-Colonel Rowe, Lieutenant-Colonel Farrell, Major Walker, Commander J. H. A. Lee, Commander Lewington, Rev. G. F. Macarthur (chaplain), Mr. A. Bennett, Mr. F. C. Brewer, Mr. John Cooper, Mr. F. H. Dangar, the Hon. H. C. Dangar, M.L.C., Mr. Jas. R. Fairfax, Mr. John Harris (Mayor of Sydney), Mr. R. Jones, Mr. C. K. Moore, Mr. J. G. Ross, Dr. Ward. Council: Commander Lewington, Major Longfield, Major Strong, A. B. Douglass, Dr. G. Hurst, Lieutenant Cohen, Captain Cuthell, Mr. R. A. Warden, Colour-sergeant Gee, and Lieutenant Oldershaw.

A number of votes of thanks were passed, and the meeting terminated.

A meeting of parishioners and parents of children interested in St. Paul's schools, Redfern, was held last evening in the schoolroom adjoining the church. The object of the meeting was to formally object to and protest against a proposition lodged by the Rev. F. B. Boyce with the Church of England Synod regarding portion of the school grounds, the Rev Mr. Boyce having advocated that portion of the school grounds fronting Regent-street, Redfern, should be leased for the purpose of obtaining revenue. After considerable discussion, it was resolved that the proposition in question should be combated, and that various other steps be taken to prevent the leasing of the land.

The Articled Clerks' Association held their fifteenth general meeting at the Rugby Union Rooms, on Thursday evening. There was a large attendance of members, and the chair was occupied by Mr. W. A. Gilder. The consideration of the motion standing in Mr. Cowper's name, the object of which was to alter the rules so as to admit of debates being carried on by means of a "government" and "opposition," took up the greater part of the evening, and, after a very lively discussion, was carried without amendment. Mr. Howarth was then elected premier without opposition, and Mr. Martyn leader of the opposition. Mr. Clapin was also nominated, but, after a ballot had been taken, the former was declared elected. The proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

An English paper says:—There are 886 miles of tramways in the United Kingdom, of which 233 belong to local authorities and 653 to companies. The capital actually expended on these undertakings has been as follows:—England, £10,854,000; Scotland, £1,179,000; Ireland, £1,089,000: total, £13,122,000. The net receipts in the year ended June 30, 1887, were as follow:—England, £521,000; Scotland, £90,000; Ireland, £48,000: total, £659,000. The working expenses were:—England, £1,739,000; Scotland, £260,517; Ireland, £142,000: total, £2,142,000. The passengers carried in one year were thus distributed:—England, 330,359,000; Scotland, 62,282,000; Ireland, 23,875,000: total, 416,516,000. The total number of horses employed was 25,501, of locomotives 484, and cars 3494. The total capital authorised in connection with the whole of the undertakings was £17,902,000 of which £12,907,000 has been paid up.

SHIPPING REPORTS, &c.

CUSTOM-HOUSE.—Entered Outwards: March 23, Fitzroy (s.), 504 tons, Captain J. E. Meaburn, for Rockhampton, via ports; Rockton (s.), 1198 tons, Captain R. The steamer Fernmount crossed the Clarence River bar at 6 p.m. on the 21st instant, passed Seal Rocks at 10 p.m. on the 22nd instant, and entered the Heads at noon on the 23rd instant. Experienced light winds and fine weather throughout the passage. 1354 bags maize, 50 hides, 6000ft. cedar, 8 casks beer, 2 bags oysters, 1 coop poultry, 3 cases eggs, and sundries.

The steamer Barrabool left Melbourne at 5 p.m. on the 21st instant, passed Wilson's Promontory at 2 a.m. on the 22nd instant, and arrived in Sydney at 4.30 p.m. on the 23rd instant. Experienced light variable winds and fine weather throughout.

The barque Southern Belle left Port Rickaby, Spencer Gulf, on the 7th instant. Experienced light N.E. winds to Gabo Island, which was passed on the 19th instant during the morning, thence light E. and S.E. winds to arrival. Entered the Heads at 6.30 p.m., and sailed up to an anchorage in Darling Harbour.

The T. S. N. Company's steamer Flora, hence to Hobart, arrived at her destination at 2 a.m. yesterday.

The American ship St David will be moved from Anderson's Dock to the Fitzroy Dock this morning.

The steamer Booidana was yesterday brought from Mort's Dock to a berth on the Western side of Circular Quay.

The ship Noach III. will come from Rowntree's Dock to Walker's Wharf on Monday morning.

The E. and A. Company's steamer Tannadice, hence to Melbourne, passed Gabo Island at 8 a.m. yesterday. The same company's steamer Airlie, bound from Calcutta to Sydney, via ports, passed Green Cape at 2.50 p.m. yesterday. She is due in port to-day.

The M. M. Company's steamer Caledonien left the port yesterday in continuation of her voyage from Marseilles to Noumea, via ports. Besides a large general cargo from Sydney, the Caledonien has a large original cargo. She cleared the Heads at 6.45 a.m.

The T. S. N. Company's steamer Flora, hence to Hobart, arrived at her destination at 2 a.m. yesterday.

H.M.S. Thalia, with relief crews for the Myrmidon and Undine, now in harbour, arrived at Albany on Thursday from Cape Town.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Austral, hence to London, via ports, left Albany for Suez at 10.30 a.m. yesterday.

The Messageries Maritimes Company's steamer Oceanien, hence to Marseilles, via ports, left Adelaide at 5.40 p.m. yesterday. Her first port of call is Mauritius.

The P. and O. Company's R.M.S. Chusan, hence to London, with the outward mails for Europe, left Melbourne for Adelaide yesterday, thence to Albany, Colombo to London.

The ship Salamanca will take 1000 tons of Northern coal from here for Lyttelton, where she will load with wheat for the United Kingdom.

A large 3-masted steamer, flying letters N. H. P. J., passed Port Macquarie at 7.30 a.m. yesterday, bound north.

The collier Saxonia is at Mort's Dock, receiving a thorough overhaul. She is to be fitted with new boilers.

The ship Andreta and barque Catalina, to arrive at Newcastle from Melbourne, are to proceed to San Francisco with coal.

Messrs. John See and Co.'s steamer Australian, has just completed an extensive overhaul at the hands of Mort's Dock and Engineering Company. She has been thoroughly scraped and painted throughout; her engines have been taken to pieces, and thoroughly overhauled. A number of new tubes have been fitted to the boiler. The saloon has been thoroughly renovated; it has been redone up in every respect. The work has been carried out under the direction of Mr. James Richmond, the firm's superintending engineer. The Australian resumed her commission in the Clarence River trade last Tuesday.

Messrs. John See and Co.'s steamer Lawrence, after having been laid up for the past three months, was placed in commission in the Clarence River trade yesterday. During the past week she has been in the hands of Mort's Dock and Engineering Company, and has received a thorough overhaul, both to hull and machinery, to the entire satisfaction of the firm. The cattle fittings have been thoroughly attended to. It may be mentioned that the s.s. Lawrence in December last conveyed 710 valuable rams from Sydney to Rockhampton in one trip. The average mortality on that occasion was so small that, undoubtedly the Lawrence is one of the best stock boats on the coast.

The China Navigation Company's steamer Changsha passed the port at 4.45 p.m. yesterday, bound from Melbourne to Newcastle.

The barque Brunette arrived in port yesterday from Mercury Bay, with a full cargo of lumber. The barque has been 20 days coming across, which is exceedingly good work, when it is known that, on the 7th day out, the barque was within 40 miles of the coast strong westerly winds added materially to prolonging the passage. The Brunette was berthed at Ellis's Wharf, Pyrmont, on arrival.

The steamer Wellington crossed the Port Macquarie Bar at 2.30 p.m. on the 1st instant, called at Newcastle, left again for Sydney at 11.15 a.m., and arrived in port at 5.40 p.m. on the 23rd instant. Experienced N.E. winds and fine weather throughout. Cargo: 61 bags maize, 10 hides, 60 pigs, 6 coops poultry, 4 cases eggs, 3 quarter-casks wine, 3 calves, 13 pieces cedar, and 20 packages sundries.

The ship Alcinous arrived in port yesterday, under command of Captain D. Brown, with a full cargo of lumber from Tacoma, Puget Sound. The Alcinous is a very fine specimen of naval architecture, and was here last year. From Newcastle she went to San Francisco with coal. Captain Brown and his officers may be congratulated upon the very excellent way in which the vessel has evidently been cared for during her long absence from home. The Alcinous is a large iron ship. She is 259ft. long, 38ft. beam, and 23ft. depth of hold. She was built at Glasgow in 1882 by Barclay, Curle, and Co., for Messrs. A. and J. H. Carmichael, of Greenock. Of the voyage Captain Brown reports that the Alcinous took her departure from Tacoma on January 1, and Port Townsend January 6. Light winds from the N.W. to the N.E. were carried until the 16th of January, when a heavy gale set in, with hard puffs of wind and squalls. The gale lasted for three days. During the squalls which were very violent, the vessel shipped a considerable amount of water, and a portion of her deck cargo got adrift, but was quickly secured. Variable winds followed. The N.E. trades were conspicuous by their absence; but nevertheless the vessel made fair headway. The Equator was crossed on February 5 in 149° W., when moderate E. and E.S.E. winds were carried to 8° S. Light variable winds from the N.W. to N.E. followed with occasional dirty squalls until 27° S. was reached, after which the vessel was enabled to make some very good work, 230 knots and over were logged. The 180th meridian was crossed on March 2 in 29° S. Fine weather was experienced for some days until the 9th of March, when a hard N.W. gale set in with squalls, and plenty of water on the decks. During one of the squalls the main lower topsail was split. Strong winds from the N.W. and N.E., with wet decks, ensued. After March 17 adverse winds were encountered and continued until making the coast. The Alcinous was picked up by the tug Irresistible 43 miles to the eastward yesterday morning, and was towed to an anchorage in Neutral Bay.

The Aberdeen White Star liner Damascus arrived in port on Thursday evening, from Newcastle, where she loaded up with 2860 tons of coal. The run down from Newcastle was one of the quickest yet accomplished, it having occupied only 4 hours 22 minutes. The Damascus will probably leave to-day for Bombay.

TYPHOID FEVER IN THE CROOKWELL DISTRICT.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]
(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

CROOKWELL, FRIDAY.

Dr. Thompson, the deputy medical adviser to the Government, arrived at Laggan yesterday morning, and made personal visits to every family supposed to be connected with the typhoid fever cases in the district. Dr. Fitzpatrick, local Government medical officer, met Dr. Thompson at Laggan, and after instituting most rigid inquiries respecting the spread of the disease, the doctors returned to Crookwell, where further inquiries were made. They interviewed the auctioneer that sold the farm and effects of the Jones family in October last, and that gentleman stated that no furniture or bedding of any sort was sold by him for the family. This at once dispels the idea that the disease was spread through the bedding being sold by auction and distributed. The auctioneer has given Dr. Thompson a press copy of Mrs. Jones's account sales, showing everything disposed of. There are no fresh cases of typhoid, and the panic has subsided.

Dr. Thompson left Crookwell this morning, intending to interview the Jones family, who are now in C[illegible]burn, and so if possible trace the cause of the spread of the disease.

POWER COMPANIES IN SYDNEY.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—A "Lover of Sydney," in the Herald this morning says he quite agrees with me (alluding to my previous letter in last Saturday's Herald), and then he goes off to state a great many things I do not agree with at all. I have been expecting to see some abler hand demolish the rough figures I gave as to the excessive cost of hydraulic power, but it has not yet been done. Your correspondent advocates the hydraulic systems as there is no waste of water. Does he mean to say that the company proposes to lay a double or return main to take the water back to their works? If they do not, must it not go to waste? But I would like to know how there can be any waste if the water is paid for? The country has carried out a water scheme at a cost of about two and a half millions, that I believe the engineer, Mr. Moriarty, has designed to bring in 120 million gallons a day; but as at the present time the consumption of city and suburbs is not 20 millions daily, the 100 millions is running to waste now. I think it will be profit, not waste, to sell that water and get a return for it.

Your correspondent says this motive force, unlike any other, is perfectly noiseless and free from grease and dirt. I am afraid he has not seen a dynamo driving an electric motor at a distance by the intervention of a cable or the compressed air stokers up at the Mortlake Gasworks, both jobs cleaner and superior to what could be done by hydraulic power.

I referred to the statement that the hydraulic horse-power was to cost about 18d. per hour, or say £4 10s. a day of 10 hours for 6-horse power.

Now, a steam-engine of the very highest make, to yield 6-h.p., with boiler all complete and highly finished, can be purchased here in Sydney for £100. Interest and depreciation, at 20 per cent., £20 per year of 300 days, say 16d. per day; coals (maximum), 5cwt. per day, at 20s. per ton, 5s.; men to attend and water (although a boy would do), 8s. 4d; total cost, 15s. per day, as against 90s., or one-sixth.

At the present price of water, until it is reduced to what the public have been led to expect from Mr. Moriarty's and Mr. Clark's reports, it is doubtful if the Power Company could supply the power as cheap as steam, if they only had to pay for their water the same as other people, and gave the rest in, and I presume they would have no privileges over other manufacturers.

At any rate, the whole thing wants more than a passing thought. It ought to be carefully considered, and that is why I deem it my duty to call attention to it as

A CITIZEN.

P.S.—Note in the above charge for coal it has been taken at least four times as much as larger engines would consume, or nearly six times what the large mail steamers use, as there is much waste with small steam boilers.

LAW REPORT.

SUPREME COURT.—FRIDAY, MARCH 23.

In Banco.—(Before their Honors the CHIEF JUSTICE, Mr. Justice WINDEYER, and Mr. Justice INNES.)

SACHS V. BEAUMONT

Mr. Wise applied for a writ of attachment against Leo Ferdinand Sachs, the plaintiff in the above action, for disobedience of an order of Court. On the 23rd February last the Court made an order supporting an appeal by the defendant against the decision of the Primary Judge, and ordered Sachs to pay taxed costs within 14 days after the issue of the certificate of taxation by the Master. The certificate was issued on the 15th September, and notice was served on the respondent Sachs on the 22nd February last, but he had not obeyed the order of the Court.

The order was granted, the writ to lie in the office until April 2.

BROWN V. COMMISSIONER FOR RAILWAYS.

On the motion of Mr. C. B. Stephen the order of the Privy Council in favour of the Commissioner for Railways was made a rule of Court. The action was one brought by Henry Brown in April, 1885, against the Commissioner for Railways to recover compensation for injuries alleged to have been received by him owing to the negligence of the tramway officials. A verdict was returned for the defendant, but the Full Court having granted a new trial, the defendant appealed to the Privy Council, who decided that the verdict of April, 1885, ought to stand, and reversed the order of the Full Court granting a new trial.

SECCOMBE V. BATE.

Mr. O'Connor appeared for the defendant, and moved for a rule nisi for a prohibition directed to the District Court Judge M'Farland, the plaintiff, and the registrar of the Bega District Court, calling upon them to show cause why they should not be restrained from further proceeding in an action for trespass in which the verdict went against him. The grounds of the motion were:—That the defendant was not resident within the jurisdiction of the Bega District Court, and that the case was investigated and treated in the absence of defendant, the Judge having no evidence before him of the service of the summons on defendant.

The rule was granted, returnable on the first motion day of next term.

POMBART V. AUSTRALIAN BANKING COMPANY.

Mr. Rogers applied on behalf of appellants (the defendants) for a rule nisi for a new trial of the above action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Stephen and a jury of four on the 7th of the present month at Darlinghurst, the plaintiff claiming damages for trespass. The jury returned a verdict in favour of plaintiff with £100 damages, and it was now sought to set aside this verdict on the following grounds:—1. That the defendant company were taken by surprise by the evidence given by the plaintiff and his daughter that the furniture was not intended to be included, and was not included in the bill of sale. 2. That fresh evidence has been discovered since the trial tending to show that the furniture was intended to be included and was included in the security given to the defendants. 3. That the damages were excessive. 4. That the verdict was against the evidence and the weight of evidence.

The rule was granted on the first, second, and fourth grounds.

MASON V. COLLINS.

There being no appearance in this case; it was struck out.

PHILLIPS V. MARTIN.

Mr. Wylie appeared for the appellant (plaintiff), and applied for a rule nisi for a new trial of the above action, which was tried in the No. 1 Jury Court during the present sittings, before his Honor the Chief Justice, and a jury of four. It was a case under the Real Property Act, and the issues were whether two deeds, one of the 22nd January, 1885, and the other of the 1st June, 1885, had been signed by the caveator, Caroline Martin. The jury found that they were not, and thus the issues were decided in favour of the defendant. Plaintiff now appealed for a new trial, on the ground that the verdict was against evidence.

After hearing Mr. Wylie,

The CHIEF JUSTICE said that the jury had all the documents and evidence in the case before them, and he was not prepared to say that the verdict was demonstrably wrong, or that it was one which reasonable men ought not to have found. That being so, he thought that the rule nisi ought not to be granted.

Mr. Justice WINDEYER concurred, but Mr. Justice STEPHEN thought that there was sufficient in the evidence to make him come to the conclusion that the matter ought to be further argued.

Rule by majority discharged.

BALE V. SHEPHERD.

Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., appeared for the appellant (plaintiff) and moved for a rule nisi for a new trial. The action, which was tried before Mr. Justice Stephen and a jury of four in the No. 1 Jury Court during the present sittings, was brought by plaintiff, an estate agent, to recover the sum of £1500 as commission at the rate of 2½ per cent. on the sum of £60,000, the amount obtained by him for the sale on behalf of defendant, and under his instructions, of a station known as Nubba, near Cootamundra. A verdict was returned for the defendant, who now appealed to the Full Court, on the ground that the verdict was against evidence.

The Court said that the Judge who presided at the trial had reported that he was quite satisfied with the verdict, and although the opinion of a Judge who tried a case was not conclusive, it was entitled to the greatest possible respect. In this case there appeared to have been abundant evidence in support of the finding of the jury, and that being so, they could not, according to the rule which bound the Court, grant a rule nisi.

Rule discharged.

(Before the CHIEF JUSTICE, Mr. Justice WINDEYER, and Mr. Justice INNES.)

FRATER V. ABBOTT AND ANOTHER.

Mr. Pilcher, Q.C., appeared on behalf of the appellants (defendants), and moved for a rule nisi for a new trial of the action on the ground mainly that the verdict was against evidence. The action was tried on the 13th, 14th, 15th, and 16th of the present month, when a verdict was found in favour of the plaintiff with damages £492 1s. 8d.

The rule was granted.

Jury Court No. 2, Darlinghurst.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice STEPHEN.)

M'DIARMID V. COX.

The record in this cause was withdrawn.

THE FEDERAL BANK V. SYSTRUM.

The hearing of this cause was postponed to next sittings.

ELPHINSTONE AND OTHERS V. SMITH AND ANOTHER.

This was an action for recovery of £73 12s., for a quantity of bricks sold and delivered. There was no defence, and a verdict was accordingly given for the plaintiffs for the amount claimed. Mr. Gordon, instructed by Mr. Burcher, appeared for the plaintiffs.

In Equity.—(Before his Honor Mr. Justice OWEN, Chief Judge in Equity.)

RE GLOBE EVENING NEWSPAPER COMPANY.

Mr. C. J. Manning appeared for Mr. Selwyn Smith, the liquidator of the Globe Evening Newspaper Company, and Mr. Lingen represented the directors.

This was a summons for directions under the Companies' Act, calling upon certain gentlemen who were the late directors of the Globe evening newspaper to show cause why they should not re-convey to the liquidator the sum of £700 realised by them on the sale of the book debts of the company; and also why a bill of sale, given by the company to the directors, dated the 21st May, 1887, should not be delivered up to be cancelled.

Mr. C. J. Manning said that the directors became personally responsible to the National Bank of Australasia for an advance of £2000, in order to carry on the newspaper business. As security the company agreed to give them a charge upon the company's property, "whatsoever and wheresoever, both present and future." On the 8th June, 1887, the directors passed a resolution agreeing to wind up the company voluntarily. The bank called upon them to pay up the amount of their overdraft, which they did, and the directors then proceeded to realise the company's property, selling the book debts for £700. The liquidator contended that this gave the directors an undue preference over the other creditors, and urged that the arrangement whereby they took over the whole of the assets of the company, was an illegal one, and one which the Court of Equity would set aside.

His HONOR raised a point, touching his jurisdiction in the matter, and the motion was adjourned until Tuesday morning.

RE BLANDFORD PROPRIETARY SCHOOL.

This was a matter for advice and directions of the Court in a suit that is at present under the determination of the Master in Equity. Mr. Gordon appeared for the petitioner, the Venerable Archdeacon Coles-Child; Mr. Rolin for Mr. R. P. Abbott, Mr. Walker for Mr. J. P. Abbott, and Mr. J. C. Manning for the directors of the Blandford Proprietary School.

The opinion of the Court was asked as to whether the election of the two new trustees was valid; whether Robert Palmer Abbott was still a trustee of the school, and entitled to be recognised as such by the petitioner; whether the funds, including the sum of £1500, should not, after deducting therefrom certain sums ordered, be paid into court, to abide any order consequent on the determining of the inquiries before the Master in Equity.

Counsel explained that the petitioner, Archdeacon Coles-Child was one of the original trustees of the school; that Mr. Q. L. Deloitte had been appointed a new trustee in the place of Mr. H. H. Bradley, and that the Hon. James Norton was a new trustee in the place of Mr. R. P. Abbott, whose position, it was claimed, had lapsed because of his absence from the colony for more than 12 months.

Mr. C. J. Manning contended that all the parties were not present, so far as he was concerned, and he objected, and also stated that it was not in the power of the Court to give the advice asked for.

After argument,

His HONOR did not decide the question as to trustees, but ordered that all moneys and securities should be paid into court.

SHARP AND OTHERS V. STEWART AND OTHERS.

Mr. C. J. Manning for plaintiff; Mr. Walker for trustees. It was arranged that the motion for an injunction, and the suit, should be dismissed, costs to come out of the estate.

RYAN AND ANOTHER V. BUTLER.

Entry of default of appearance was entered in this case.

ARGUE V. BICKENRIDGE.

Mr. Rolin asked for an injunction restraining defendant from dealing with three promissory notes. Mr. Hanbury Davis, for defendant, consented as to two promissory notes of £50 each, and one of £40. Order as prayed.

HENRY V. GUY.

Mr. C. J. Manning appeared for the plaintiff, Ivan Henry, and Mr. Gannon for the defendant, C. H. Guy.

The application for an injunction was by consent turned into a motion for a decree. Plaintiff, a hotelbroker, prayed that defendant, who had been a clerk in his employ, might be decreed from directly or indirectly entering into the business of hotelbroker in Sydney within 12 months from 25th February last. Plaintiff stated that defendant entered into an agreement not to accept another similar engagement in Sydney.

Mr. Gannon, for defendant, said that there was a clause in the agreement that it should not be operative provided that defendant were discharged without sufficient cause from the plaintiff's employ. Counsel read affidavits stating that defendant had been so discharged.

Mr. Manning read affidavits denying that defendant had been discharged, and stating that he left of his own free-will.

After argument,

His HONOR said the only question was whether the defendant was discharged without proper reason. From the affidavits he held he was not so discharged. According to the evidence he left plaintiff because he did not like the hotel brokering business, but preferred other employment. His Honor granted the decree as prayed for by plaintiff, with costs.

SPALDING AND ANOTHER V. BARBOAR.

Mr. C. J. Manning for plaintiffs. No appearance for defendants. The case for plaintiffs was that defendant had been acting as their agent in the colony; that he accepted a contract with the Government for the supply of ruled paper, and that there were now large sums of money due on account of the transaction. The defence was that defendant had given a power of attorney to a third party to draw the money.

His HONOR said there appeared no sufficient defence on the papers, and decreed for plaintiffs, with costs.

UNION BANK V. ISAACS AND WIFE.

Mr. H. Manning asked for a decree under the 79th rule. A decree was given as asked, subject to an affidavit of service of the order of entry of default on the female defendant.

BANKRUPTCY COURT.—FRIDAY.

(Before his Honor Mr. Justice DEFFELL.)

SINGLE MEETINGS AND PUBLIC EXAMINATIONS.

Re Thomas Savage and Cornelius Weekley. The bankrupt Thomas Savage deposed that he gave a bill of sale over the stock-in-trade after the dissolution of the partnership; he gave the bill of sale about five or six weeks ago to a man named Loebel; with that exception his statement of affairs was correct. To Mr. Stephen, official assignee: The goods were at his shop at Newtown when he gave the bill of sale; when he left the house to sequestrate his estate there was some one in possession from Mr. Loebel; when he came away from the house there was no one in possession; he left about half-past 8 o'clock and returned about half-past 12, when he found a man in possession; Loebel sold the goods the next day. The bankrupt Weekley deposed that he knew nothing about the bill of sale; it was given after he ceased to be a partner of Mr. Savage.

Re William Osborne and Edward Ramsay. Mr. Stephen, official assignee, examined both bankrupts. Ramsay deposed that there was a gun belonging to the firm, and now lent to Mr. George Lindsay, who resided at Clifton, which had been omitted from the assets.

Re Frederick Hardy. The bankrupt did not attend. The examination of the bankrupt was adjourned sine die.

Re Patrick M'Keon. The bankrupt deposed that he desired to amend his statement of affairs by adding a debt which he owed. No one came forward to question the bankrupt.

Re James Scobie. The bankrupt, in reply to Mr. E. M. Stephen, official assignee, deposed that he had a son named William James Scobie, aged 18 years; about 12 years ago, when his son was 6 years old, he took up on his behalf a selection, which was a transfer of 160 acres of land from Robert Hardy, of Singleton; he had also taken up two additional conditional purchases for his son, making in all 280 acres of land; witness had made all the payments in respect to those lands; he would furnish the official assignee with particulars of the payments.

Re Henry Romano. The bankrupt did not attend. Directions were given that he be allowed his household furniture. The public examination was adjourned sine die.

Re Aaron Redman. In reply to Mr. Morris, official assignee, the bankrupt deposed that he was a clerk in the employment of Messrs. Myers and Solomon, and received a salary of £2 5s. per week.

Re John Grogan. In reply to Mr. Morris, official assignee, the bankrupt deposed that he was at present working by contract for Mr. Jeanneret.

OFFER OF COMPOSITION.

Re William Harkness, adjourned special for proof and offer of composition. An offer of composition of 2s. in the £, on the proved debt of £51 8s. 2d., was accepted by the only creditor who had proved in the estate, Mr. Joseph Paul Walker.

SPECIAL FOR PROOF.

Re George Richard Holcombe. Two debts were proved.

THIRD MEETINGS.

Re Alexander Cooper. No debts were proved.

Re Frederick Bailey Deeming. No debts were proved.

SEQUESTRATION ORDER ON PETITION OF DEBTOR.

Alfred Pitty, of Gunning, farmer. Mr. L. T. Lloyd, official assignee.

A TROUBLESOME BANKRUPT.

John Wilson, of Adamstown, a bankrupt, who described himself as a miner and storekeeper, appeared before his Honor Mr. Justice Deffell, in the Bankrupty Court yesterday, for examination. The bankrupt was examined by Mr. Lloyd, official assignee.

The object of the examination was to show that the bankrupt was in reality a miner, and that the whole of the business connected with the store, although he claimed to be the proprietor of it, was in reality carried on by the bankrupt's wife, without his being aware of the nature of the transactions.

The bankrupt pretended to misconceive some of the questions submitted to him, and when they were re-stated "fenced" them.

His Honor interposed and informed the bankrupt that he had better be on his guard, or else he might spend a little time in Darlinghurst.

The official assignee now asked the bankrupt: Do you really know anything at all about the store?

Witness: Well, I don't know very much.

Mr. Lloyd: Did you not leave the whole of the business connected with the store to your wife?

The witness did not answer.

His HONOR: Answer the question, sir, or I will send you to Darlinghurst gaol for 14 days.

The witness: My wife did the business.

Mr. Lloyd: Did she carry on the whole of the business of the store irrespective of yourself?

Witness: Yes. She carried it on under my name.

Mr. Lloyd: Well, can you give us any information about the business at all?

Witness: No, I cannot, because I was oftener at work in the mine than about the store.

In reply to further questions by Mr. Lloyd, the bankrupt deposed that he was not aware that any robbery had taken place at his store, but he heard his wife state at a meeting of his creditors that a robbery had taken place at the store; his wife also informed the creditors at the meeting that there was £119 due to him for goods, but particulars of the debts could not be given because the books had been lost.

Mr. Lloyd: Your wife claims to have some property in Irishtown?

Witness: Yes.

In reply to other questions, the witness deposed that the property was in the centre of Irishtown, and was bought by his wife 15 years ago; his wife was a widow when he married her, and she purchased the property after he married her with money left to her by her first husband.

His HONOR declared the examination passed without prejudice to any further examination.

METROPOLITAN DISTRICT COURT.

(Before his Honor Mr. District Court Judge WILKINSON.)

CHANT V. TYAS.

The plaintiff, Joseph Chant, of Woolloomooloo, sued the defendants, Wilson Tyas and Wm. Tyas, builders, of Petersham, to recover the sum of £30 16s. 11d., for labour and material. Verdict for £15.

M'CARTHY V. M'CARTHY.

The plaintiff, Mary M'Carthy, of Darlinghurst, sued the defendant W. M'Carthy, of Darlington, to recover the sum of £28, alleged to have been lent by the plaintiff to the defendant at his request. Verdict for the amount claimed.

BEALE AND CO. V. WOODS.

In this case the plaintiffs, Beale and Co., of Pitt-street, Sydney, took action to recover from the defendant the sum of £44 11s., for hire of a piano. Verdict for the plaintiff for the amount claimed.

FISH KILLED BY DYNAMITE.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—It may be important to make it known that men are using dynamite to procure fish at Bondi Bay. I don't know how it affects the flesh of the fish as food, or those who eat. But as more fish is eaten now than usual, it may be important to inquire into the matter. I am, &c.,

PUBLICO.

PETER MOLLER'S COD LIVER OIL has such a thoroughly established reputation that it seems almost superfluous to say that it is not an emulsion, and contains no water—charged for at the price of oil. The manufacture, from the finest and freshest livers only, is perfected in one operation, without any after manipulation, which should be carefully guarded against. Its superiority and efficacy have secured the approbation of the whole medical world, and the Highest Awards at all chief Exhibitions.—[ADVT.]

REMARKABLE DISAPPEARANCE.—Very remarkable disappearance of all dirt from everything by using Hudson's Extract of Soap. Reward—Purity, health, perfect satisfaction, by its regular daily use. For clothes, linen, knives, forks, dishes, saucepans, and all domesting washing.—[ADVT.]

POLICE.

Mr. Johnson, S.M., presided in the Charge branch of the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday. John Ryan, 15, farm labourer, was fined 10s., with the option of six days' imprisonment, for having wantonly thrown stones. John Sullivan, a labourer, for having assaulted a Chinaman named Ah Youk, was fined £10, with the alternative of four months' hard labour. Frederick Hudson was sent to gaol for three months for having been found in a bedroom in the Town Hall Coffee Palace for an unlawful purpose. He was sentenced to an additional three months for having stolen an umbrella. Frederick Hudson, for the theft of some clothing, valued at £1 10s., the property of Gwilyn E. Bowen, was sentenced to an additional six months' hard labour. William White, 41, agent, was ordered to pay 25s. per week towards the support of his deserted wife, Amelia White. Arthur Hamil, 27, labourer, received a sentence of a month's hard labour for having been in St. Andrew's Cathedral for an unlawful purpose. On the Summons side, before Mr. Abbott, S.M., David Brooker was fined £5, with 5s. costs, in default one month's imprisonment, for having sold milk without having registered his store. David Williams was fined £2, with the option of two months' imprisonment, for having assaulted one Gin Thata Vidan Don Bastin.

Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M., dealt with the business in the Charge branch of the WATER POLICE COURT. James M'Namara, harness-maker, pleaded guilty to stealing a canary and cage, the property of Sydney Tomlins, and was sentenced to 14 days' imprisonment; and Frank Jones, fisherman, for stealing an iron casting, was sentenced to seven days. William Parkes, labourer, for being drunk and disorderly, and assaulting Constable Park whilst in the execution of his duty, and for wilfully destroying the constable's uniform, was fined 20s. or 4 days for the first offence, one month's hard labour for the second, and a fine of 30s. or 21 days' for the last offence. William Phillips, on remand for obtaining the sum of £1 15s. 6d. from one Gunnar Lilja by means of a valueless cheque, pleaded guilty, and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Mr. Addison also dealt with several cases in which the defendants had disobeyed the Transit Commission bylaws. In each case a fine was imposed.

Mr. A. M. Fisher, S.M., disposed of the business at the BALMAIN POLICE COURT. Mary E. Wenham v. Sidney A. Wenham, maintenance, adjourned hearing, dealt with ex parte in the absence of the defendant. Order made for 30s. weekly for 12 months, 5s. 10d. costs of court, and £2 2s professional costs to Mr. Murdoch, who appeared for the complainant. Julia Jones v. David Malpass, assault, fined 20s., 4s. 10d. costs of court, and 21s. professional costs to Mr. Reader; Mr. Murdoch appeared for defendant. F. Paris v. John Morrison, breach of borough by-laws, in allowing filthy water to flow over the footpath, defendant was fined 10s., and 5s. costs, or seven days.

Messrs. H. Byrnes, R. Harper, G. Coates, and F. S. Ryan, J.sP., disposed of the business at the PARRAMATTA POLICE COURT. David Fitzgerald, Robert Rochester, and Samuel Hill, three young men, were charged with stealing a quantity of jewellery from Jane Tate, of the Royal Exchange Hotel. From the evidence adduced, it appears that Mrs. Tate had, on Thursday last, transferred her license, and was removing her goods. She brought downstairs a desk, containing a quantity of jewellery, value about £20. This she placed in a cabinet in a room adjoining the bar. The prisoners were about the hotel during this time. Shortly after it was placed there she missed it, and gave information to the police. Late on the same evening the prisoners were arrested at the Parramatta railway station, and the stolen property was found just near where they were standing, under the overhead bridge, wrapped in a handkerchief. The prisoners were committed to take their trial at the next quarter sessions, to be held on the 4th May.

CORONER'S INQUESTS.

SUICIDE OF A YOUNG MAN.

The City Coroner (Mr. H. Shiell, J.P.) held an inquest at the South Sydney Morgue yesterday morning into the circumstances concerning the death of a man named Edward John Shaw, 25 years of age, who shot himself through the head on the verandah of a house in Liverpool-street on Thursday. Evidence was adduced which went to show that the deceased was a married man, with two children, and that about five months ago he left his wife, without assigning any reason for so doing. He had recently been employed by the Fresh Food and Ice Company in the capacity of a carter. After leaving his home he went to lodge at the Darling Harbour Hotel, Harbour-street, kept by a Mrs. Palmer, and while there he made advances to the landlady, but his suit was not encouraged. In February last Mrs. Palmer went to live at No. 409, Liverpool-street, and deceased called there to see her, but on each occasion she declined his proffers of affection. On Thursday morning he again visited the house, and handed the landlady a slip of paper, on which was written, "Annie, are you going to see me or not—yes or no?—Ted," and which he desired her to deliver to Mrs. Palmer, who returned the answer, "No." The door of the house was then closed on him, and almost immediately afterwards the deceased was seen to place the barrel of a pistol to his mouth and fire the charge, which entered his head, and resulted in his death. The jury returned a verdict of suicide.

FATAL OCCURRENCE ON THE TRAMWAY.

An inquest was begun by the City Coroner at St. Vincent's Hospital yesterday touching the death of a man named Michael Nayion, a fettler, who was run over and killed by a tram in Oxford-street, Darlinghurst, on Thursday afternoon. The deceased was a single man, 45 years of age, and resided at No. 35, Taylor-street, Surry Hills. For seven years past he had been employed by the Government as a fettler on the tramways.

Mr. F. B. Freehill appeared on behalf of the relatives of the deceased. Inspector O'Brien represented the Commissioner for Railways.

William Spearing, motor-driver, in the employment of the Tramway Department, gave evidence that he was in charge of motor No. 34, at 2 p.m. on Thursday, when it left the Bridge-street terminus for Bondi; two cars were attached to the motor; all went well till the tram arrived between Botany-street and Dowling-street. [The witness was at this stage cautioned by the Coroner as to the statements he was about to make.] In continuation, the witness said that when his motor got about 100 yards past Botany-street he noticed three fettlers about 100 yards ahead; he allowed the motor to proceed to within about 20 yards of the men, and then blew the whistle of the motor for the first time, still allowing the tram to continue at the speed at which it had been going, namely, 6 miles an hour; as soon as the whistle was sounded, the three men stepped away from the rails; he next saw one of the fettlers throw down some pickaxes between the lines which the tram was about to go over; shortly after this he heard the fireman shout out, "Stop;" he immediately applied the brake and reversed the engine; he brought the tram to a standstill in about 20 or 30 yards; soon after this he saw some men remove the apparently lifeless body of the deceased from under the front of the motor; it is customary for fettlers, when not startled by the approach of a tram, to take their spades, pickaxes, and blocks away from the line with them; they usually leave the line before the trams get within 20 yards of them.

To Mr. Freehill: The rate of speed sanctioned for trams when running within the city is a maximum of eight miles an hour; this rate of speed applies to the neighbourhood of Darlinghurst; he had no doubt but that it was the deceased who threw the pickaxes between the tram lines; when the man was killed he (the witness) was a minute late, but was not then endeavouring to make up for lost time.

George Banks, fireman in the employment of the Tramway Department, deposed that soon after the motor on which he, with William Spearing, was working had left Botany-street, he saw three fettlers working on the roadway a little way ahead; he heard a warning whistle sounded by the driver when the tram reached within 15yds. or 20yds. of the men; immediately the whistle was sounded the deceased, who was standing between the rails in front of the approaching tram, picked up two pickaxes and put them down between the lines; the next moment he saw the deceased attempt to step over the picks and get out of the way of the motor; he (the witness) at once lowered the "cow catcher," and called to the driver to "stop;" shortly after this the deceased was knocked down and killed.

Dr. Andrew J. O'Flanagan, resident physician at St. Vincent's Hospital, gave evidence that on Thursday afternoon the man Naylon was brought in a cart to the institution; he at once examined the patient, and found he was dead; the deceased had a fracture of the skull, and this was the cause of death; the fracture was due to external violence.

The inquiry was then adjourned till Monday afternoon next.

MAN'S INHUMANITY TO MAN.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—As bearing upon the subject of what is not inaptly termed "white slavery," permit me to add one instance which has just came under my own notice.

A couple of days ago, on arriving in town about half-past 10 o'clock in the morning, I ordered a certain article at the establishment of one of our leading merchants. Exactly twelve hours later it was delivered at my residence, distant about four miles from the city. I expressed my surprise at goods being sent out at such a late hour, but the carter informed me that he commenced work at 6 o'clock every morning, and was seldom able to deliver the whole of his goods before 10.30 or 11 each night. The poor fellow—stalwart as he was—spoke in very hoarse tones, and was scarcely able to carry the package from his cart to my house. As a matter of fact, he had a difficulty in even carrying himself. But I expressed no astonishment at this. He was perfectly sober, but he had been working, like his horse, for nearly 17 hours. He was still doing his best for his employer, or slave-driver—which shall it be?—but Nature had nearly given out. Yet he had still another hour's work before him to get to the stables, and after that, I presume, he had liberty to do what he liked with his spare time until 6 o'clock a.m., when he would again have to be at his post.

I am, &c., J. L.

Our Sutherland correspondent telegraphed yesterday that a number of gentlemen visited the Camp Creek coal seam yesterday with a view to ascertaining the best means of conveying the coal to market. The route to Waterfall is a rather a heavy gradient, and that to Heathcote, though longer, is more down hill. The gentlemen interested here are of opinion that the coal is of good quality, and abundant, and that with a tramway to Illawarra, the seam would be worked profitably.

An announcement recently appeared to the effect that the Lewis Ponds Gold and Silver Mining Company, under arrangement, had been sold to a Melbourne syndicate for £60,000, and that it was subsequently floated into a company in Melbourne for £200,000. A number of the shareholders of the original company are questioning the validity of the sale; and a note has been sent to the manager of the old company, informing him that an injunction would be applied for to restrain the completion of the sale. The point in question is that, under the Articles of Association, which are binding upon the shareholders, no power was vested in the original directorate to sell. High legal opinion has been taken, and the effect of it, we understand, is that the sale is null and void.

The prospectus of the Broken Hill Flat Silver-mining Company, Limited, appears in another column. The capital is £100,000, in £1 shares.

The prospectus of the Commodore Gold and Silver Mining Company, Limited, Captain's Flat, also appears elsewhere, the capital of which is £10,000, in shares of £1 each.

It is notified by advertisement in another column that the well-known New South Wales firm of mining agents, Messrs. Watt and Dodds, has been, by mutual consent, dissolved. In consequence of an overstrain of work, Mr. Watt is leaving Sydney, and is about to make a European and an old world tour for the benefit of his health. The business will be, in future, carried on under the style of Messrs. Leonard Dodds and Co. Mr. Watt and Mr. Dodds have been in partnership during the past two years and eight months, during which period they have been successful in building up one of the largest and most reliable mining agencies in Australasia. At the present time the firm conducts the direct managership of 26 of the leading gold, silver, copper, tin, and other mines of New South Wales, Queensland, and elsewhere. Mr. Dodds, into whose hands the reins of conductorship has fallen, has been actively engaged in connection with the management of mining pursuits during the past 11 years in Sydney.

MANAGERS' REPORTS.

Burrdykes Silver-mining Syndicate, Barrier Ranges.—The mine manager reports (by wire) having struck very rich ores in western shaft, and advises the syndicate not to part with the western blocks, the obstructions to working the three eastern blocks having been removed. The contractor has resumed driving, and he expects to strike the big lode in a few days.

Vanderbilt Silver-mining Company, Limited.—The acting-manager reports under date March 18:—Have sunk 29ft.; total depth of shaft, 100ft. Crosscut into the lode 3ft. (without reaching the hanging wall). Took a fair average sample for assay, which gave fine silver, 185oz. 13dwt. 16gr. per ton, and gold, 3dwt. 5gr. per ton. An average sample of kaolin running on the gossan lode was assayed, and gave 26oz. 2dwt. 5gr. of fine silver per ton.

Mount Mitchell Silver-mine, Sunny Corner, March 22.—Re drive in shaft. The country improves daily. We drove through a good-looking lode yesterday of 19in. in thickness, making north. I shall drive a few feet on it, and shall send you a fair sample in a few days. Machine and plant in good order.

Golden Gully Gold-mining Company, Limited, March 23.—Have been stripping reefs in main drive, and have about 12 tons quartz hanging on wall. Driven 6ft. on clay vein. Ironstone still visible. Bagged 2 tons stone from six different reefs, which I am forwarding to Sydney; if treatment satisfactory, will follow up with further good crushing stuff.

Lankelly Mining Company, Limited.—In a telegram dated 22nd instant, the manager advises having obtained 119½oz. smelted gold since 12th instant.

Webb's Silver-mining Company, Limited.—Messrs. Leonard, Dodds, and Co. have received the following wire from the mining manager, under date, March 22nd:—All going smoothly. New shells of rolls standing well. One furnace in full swing. Second lot of ore being charged to vats. Precipitate from previous lot ready to melt and refine.

Taranganba Proprietary Gold-mining Company.—Messrs. Leonard Dodds and Co. have received the following report from the mining manager under date March 11th:—I intend to strip the surface off the western side of the eastern hill, and start with steel and powder and cut a trench through the rich ground 12ft. wide. When it reaches the top of the mountain it will be 200ft deep. This trench will be the means of opening up the whole hill, and will enable me to work the whole mountain on the broad side of the reef. The trench on the western side of the western hill is showing better this week. I have made fresh prospects this week, which gave 5in. round the bottom of the dish.

The mine manager of the Broken Hill South Silver-mine telegraphs:—"The main shaft is now down 253ft. Got through quartzite lode into clean country again; machinery working splendidly. Can keep water down with one bucket. Crosscut from No. 1 shaft now in 96ft., it being 53ft. in the lode. Face now in solid galena, assaying poor in silver."

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

Business continues of large extent, but there was a weak market. For most of the Broken Hill silver companies lower rates were accepted. Cordillera Hill and other Tuena companies, on the contrary, were readily taken at full rates, and Lewis Ponds and White Rock had buyers at advanced prices. Brothers' No. 1 Tin are in continued strong demand, and sold at a further large advance.

Share Report.—Sales:—Proprietary, £343, £336; Block 14, £13 17s. 6d., £13 5s.; Junction, £6 15s., £7; North, 19s. 3d.; South, £10, £9 10s.; Central, £6 7s. 6d., £6 3s.; Day Dream, 5s., 5s 6d.; Pinnacle Tribute, 22s., 23s. 6d.; Round Hill, £8 2s., £8 6s.; Victoria Cross, 24s.; Madame Berry, £11 10s.; Long Tunnel, £54 10s.

ADELAIDE, FRIDAY.

Share Report:—Sales: Baker's Creek, £5; Golden Crest, 5s., 4s. 3d.; Broken, 340; Block 14, at £14 7s. 6d. to £13; South, paid, £10 5s., £9 5s.; Junctions £6 19s. 6d. to £6 17s.; Central, paid, £7, £6 5s.; British, £6 5s., £5 19s.; New North, £3 3s., £2 14s.; Umberumberkas, contributing, £1 14s., £1 14s. 6d.; Suns, £1 11s. 6d., £1 11s., £1 12s. 6d.; Kings, £1 11s., £1 9s. 6d.; White Rocks, £1 5s., £1 8s., £1 7s. 6d.; South Extendeds, £1 6s., £1 7s.; Lewis Ponds, £1 5s.; Victoria Cross, £1 2s. 6d., £1 3s. 6d.; Vanderbilts, £1 3s.; White Leads, £1 3s.; Gipsy, £1 1s., £1 2s.; Bonanzas, 19s. 6d., 21s.; Tributes, 20s.; Eveleens, 10s., 10s. 3d.; Pioneers, 9s. 3d.; South Extendeds, No. 1, 8s. 6d. to 7s. 6d.; Central White Leads, 5s. to 5s. 9d.; Melbourne Rocks, contributing, 5s. 9d.; Nine Miles, 3s.; Mount Euriowies, £14 12s. 6d.

BRISBANE, FRIDAY.

A telegram from Maytown states that the Good Hope mine, Limestone, has been sold to a southern syndicate for £6000 in cash, and £6000 in scrip.

SILVERTON, FRIDAY.

The Jubilee Tin-mining Syndicate's manager reports:—I have been informed that this property is about to be floated into a company, and is now under the supervision of Captain Williams, of Mount Euriowie estate. This mine comprises three 40-acre blocks, and joins the Mount Euriowie estate. It is to be worked more vigorously than hitherto. Men have been engaged already to trench and costeen, and otherwise prospect the property. Lady Don Tin-mining Company, Limited.—The manager reports on March 19 as follows:—Have cut the eastern lode; heavy underlay about 4ft. 6in. So far have cut into the lode 2½ft. No tin has been struck, but there is a good matrix. There is no sign of the western lode. The country is very hard. Yarra Para Silver Prospecting Company.—The manager reports on March 17:—Have sunk the shaft 5ft. for week, making a total distance of 85ft. on the underlay lode, which is going down vertical at present. It is quite probable it may turn over in a few feet, when there should be a great change in the lode. The lode is at present carrying iron pyrites with good-looking veins of ironstone and gossan, with a large amount of quartzite. Great Iron Blow, Mount Gipps: The manager reports, March 10:—"The north shaft has been sunk 3ft., making 75½ft. The lode is without change, hard quartz, thickly studded with garnet, charged with pyrites and mica. The new shaft has been sunk 5ft., the present depth being 46½ft. Another small vein of ironstone clay slate has been passed through, dipping towards the lode. Mr. Henry Gore, M.L.C., of South Australia, one of the directors of the Wankaroo Tin Prospecting Company, is now on a visit to the Barrier. He is about to proceed to the Wankaroo tinfield with the view of inspecting the company's claim.

COBAR, FRIDAY.

Since the beginning of the year there has been a marked increase in the business at the warden's office here. During the last six months of 1887 39 applications for gold leases covering an area of 258 acres, and eight mineral applications, embracing 300 acres, were received. Since the beginning of this year eight applications for gold leases, covering 72 acres, were received. The area applied for in mineral applications shows a most substantial increase, 43 applications covering an area of 1600 acres being lodged. Several applications for prospecting areas and water rights have also been made. Two warden's courts are to be held.

GOULBURN, FRIDAY.

Mr. Joseph Abbott, M.L.A., has requested a Goulburn syndicate owning a mining property at Mac's Reef, between Queanbeyan and Bungendore, to make him an offer with a view to its sale. It is reported that a silver lode, supposed to be 20ft. wide, has been discovered on the Hidden Treasure Company's property, Windellama. It is also rumoured that the old Carawang copper mine has been purchased for £5000 or £6000 by a Melbourne company, who intend working it. It is stated that the lode is gold and silver bearing. Formerly the mine was worked for copper alone.

MITCHELL, FRIDAY.

The escort left yesterday with 17,000oz. of silver from the Sunny Corner Silver Mine.

MORUYA, FRIDAY.

A report in the Recueil Consulaire refers to the great part which the paper industry has played in the history of printing in Holland. Originally dependent on the French paper factories of Normandy and Auvergne, Holland began to make paper for herself in consequence of the great development of printing, due to the houses of Elzevir and Blaew, and soon the industry took a leading rank in the country. As far back as the 17th century Dutch paper was renowned, and, in fact, the most beautiful Elzevir editions were printed on it. Paper factories now are less numerous than formerly. One of the oldest belongs to the family Van Gelder, of Wormerveer. It has existed for over a century, and produces a yearly average of a million kilogrammes of paper, and 100,000 kilogrammes of cardboard. The famous Dutch paper is chiefly manufactured in Maastricht, Amsterdam, and Apeldoorn. One of the principal makers is Smit van Geldoer, whose factory at Apeldoorn is exclusively occupied with ribbed and share and bank-note paper. The repute of the Dutch paper extends even to the poorest qualities. The newspapers are printed on better paper than those of Belgium or France. The paper used in these latter countries is of the worst quality; they contain mineral substances, are not suitable for good typography, and soon destroy the type. In Holland, as in England and Germany, a better kind of paper is used, but it looks as if competition were forcing the Dutch newspaper owners to use worse sorts of paper than they have hitherto done. The year 1885 was a bad one for the Dutch paper makers owing to decreased consumption at home and in the Netherlands Indies and the foreign competition excited by the removal of the differential tariff in the colonies, and they are consequently crying out against free trade. In Apeldoorn, in 1885, three mills stopped work, leaving 15. The total export was 3,803,814 kilogrammes, of the value of 2,282,296fl., of which the value of the export to England was 1,348,919fl. The total import of paper during the year was 2,135,680fl., of which more than half came from Germany.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."—Clarke's world-famed Blood Mixture is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, scurvy, skin, and blood diseases, and sores of all kinds, its effects are marvellous. Thousands of testimonials. In bottles 2s 6d each; and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. Of all chemists. Proprietors, the Lincoln and Midland Counties Drug Company Lincoln, England.—[ADVT.]

In the list of stations the column headed W.T. gives the state of the weather at 9 a.m., b. standing for blue sky; c, detached clouds; d, drizzling rain; f, fog; g, gloomy; h, hazy; m, misty; n, frosty; o, overcast; p, passing showers; r, rain; s, snow; t, thunder; u, threatening. The next column, M'x gives the maximum temperature for previous 24 hours. M'n the corresponding minimum temperature; r'n, the rain for the previous 24 hours. The symbols used in the map are explained on the margin. At each coast station the wind symbol is placed like a vane pointing to the direction from which the wind is coming. A clear circle with it means fine weather; a circle with bar, cloudy weather; and a black spot, raining. Next to this symbol are placed figures denoting the number of miles the wind is moving per hour; next, a symbol showing the state of the sea; and, lastly, figures denoting the shade temperature at 9 a.m. The barometer curve shows the state of barometers round the coast from Perth to Cooktown:—Pt, Perth; Ay, Albany; Ea, Eucla; CB, Cape Borda; A, Adelaide; Ro, Robe; P, Portland; M, Melbourne; W P, Wilson's Promontory; Go, Gabo; E, Eden; Mo, Moruya; C G, Jervis Bay; Wg, Wollongong; S, Sydney; N, Newcastle; P M, Port Macquarie; C Clarence River; B, Brisbane; R Rockhampton; Ct, Cooktown. Inland the state of barometer is given in figures at Albury, Deniliquin, Wentworth, Menindie, Bourke, and Alice Springs. The barometer curve enables one at a glance to trace the depressions beginning with Western Australia, and passing along eastwards; northerly winds preceding them, and southerly following.

The rainfall on Sundays or holidays, when this map is not published, is in all cases included in the quantities shown by the next following map.

SYNOPSIS.

W. Australia.—Cloudy and unsettled in south; light W. winds and calms.

S. Australia.—Fine and clear in S.E., more or less cloudy over the remainder; light E. to N.E. winds.

Victoria and Straits.—Fine on parts of the coast, cloudy at places; light and variable winds.

Tasmania.—Fine and clear; light and variable winds or calms.

New South Wales.—Fine and clear inland; light clouds or fog on the coast; light variable winds.

Queensland.—Inland fine; cloudy and unsettled on the coast; showery in N.E.; light N.E. to S.E. winds.

Central and N. Australia.—Fine and clear, light N.E. to S.E. winds or calms.

New Zealand.—Showery in extreme south; fine to northward; N.W. winds or calms.

Forecast.—Inland generally fine weather, with some clouds on the coast, and probably a little rain in extreme N.E. On the coast easterly winds and calms; inland, calms and variable winds.

3 P.M. OBSERVATIONS.

New South Wales.—Deniliquin, calm, fine, temperature 80°; Wentworth, S.W., fine, 73°; Goulburn, calm, fine, 71°; Dubbo, E., fine, 76°; Newcastle, N.E., fine, smooth sea, 74°; Port Macquarie, E., fine, smooth, 81°; Forbes, N.W., fine, 92°; Cape St. George, E.S.E., fine, smooth sea, 72°; Eden, S.E., fine, smooth, 65°; Walgett, calm, fine and sultry, 83°; Clarence Heads, S.E., fine, smooth, 79°; Moruya Heads, S.E., dull, smooth, 70°; Sydney, E., fine, smooth, 72°.

COMMERCIAL.

THE WOOL TRADE.

The usual fortnightly sales took place this week. There was a good attendance of local buyers, but only a few foreign representatives, the greater number of the latter who attend the sales in the season having left on their usual visit to their customers in Europe. The catalogues were very far from attractive, containing as they did only one or two lots up to the average in quality and condition. Competition was fairly brisk, the greasy description being taken chiefly on account of local scourers, whilst for scoured the representatives of English manufacturers were the principal buyers. Prices realised show no material change from those current a fortnight since. Quotations are as follows:—

Description.	Good.	Medium.	Inferior.
Greasy ...	7½d to 8½d	6½d to 7½d	5d to 6d
Washed fleece ...	11½d to 13d	10d to 11d	8½d to 9½d
Scoured ...	13½d to 15d	11½d to 13d	8d to 10d.

The offerings and sales are enumerated below:—

	Total to 24th March, last season	175,158	127,190
	Increase	45,756	30,262

*Auction and privately.

The sales thus show an increase over last season of about 25 per cent., a clear evidence of the growing disposition on the part of producers to take advantage of the local market in preference to shipping to London. It is worthy of notice that almost half the quantity shipped from Sydney this season has been actually sold by the auctioneers, the figures being to date, shipped 327,775 bales, realised 157,452 bales.

In comparing the quantities of wool sold at the various ports in Australia for a period of 12 months, ending 9th February, 1888, it is matter for congratulation to find that Sydney holds the premier position as regards quantity disposed of, although followed very closely by Melbourne. The actual figures are given below:—

Port.	Bales sold.
Sydney	160,589
Melbourne	159,505*
Adelaide (say)	36,000
Geelong	28,545*
Newcastle	1,294
Total	385,933

(*Extracted from R. Goldsbrough and Co.'s annual circular, March 8, 1888).

Exports include but two vessels, taking 2194 bales as follows:—

From Sydney.

Date.	Vessel.	Bales.
March 17	Oceanien (s.)	1,227
March 18	Chusan (s.)	967
		2,194
Brought forward		325,581
Total from Sydney		327,775
Total from Newcastle		48,579
Total from New South Wales since July 1		376,354

The total exports from the colony, it will thus be seen, reach, 376,354 bales, as compared with 295,688 bales for the corresponding period last year, showing so far the large increase of 80,666 bales in favour of 1887-8.

Freight remains the same as last quoted, viz., ⅝d. and ¾d. for greasy and clean respectively by sailer and steamer.

From London we have brokers' circulars to 9th February. It is somewhat singular in the light of subsequent events to observe how one and all concur in considering the London market as resting on a sound basis, seeing that in less than three days afterwards, as the cablegrams about that date informed us, signs of weakness became very markedly apparent. Respecting these sales, the following remarks will, no doubt, interest our readers.

By Messrs. Charles Balme and Co.:—"The market continues to maintain the improvement established during the first week of the series, and has, so far, been unaffected in any quotable sense by the renewal of political apprehension abroad. The actual conditions of the industry, in fact, appear to rest upon so solid and sound a basis, as to render the raw material far less sensitive to any adverse external influences than is frequently the case."

By Messrs. Willans and Overbury:—"Since the opening of the series, on the 31st ultimo, the market has continued strong, with a full attendance, animated biddings, and an unusually small proportion of withdrawals. As compared with December closing prices, crossbred and merino greasies—except very faulty descriptions and red, earthy Adelaides—may be quoted ½d., crossbred scoureds 1d., and merino scoureds (free from fault) ½d. to 1d. per lb. dearer. In the case of the excepted qualities no improvement is observable. Competition is general, and several American buyers are present. Accounts from the North of France, and to some extent from other woollen centres, represent the enhanced rates as not warranted by the prices obtainable for the manufactured article, but as it is certain that the demand which creates these prices is in no way speculative—that it is, on the contrary, strictly a consumptive demand representing actual requirements—too much importance need not be attached to these representations. At the moment values appear to rest on a sound basis and to promise continuance."

By Messrs. Buxton, Ronald, and Co.:—"After the somewhat quiet reports received from wool centres throughout January, it is satisfactory to witness the generally strong tone of this market. It is pretty clear, however, that there is little speculative buying; consumers with reduced stocks are the chief support at present, and hence the disparities already noticed between various descriptions of the article. The quantities daily brought forward show readiness on the part of holders to meet the market, while the small proportion bought in is conclusive evidence of the satisfactory basis of operations which has been established, and in all probability some curtailment of the series, as originally drawn out, will ensue."

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

Good supplies of wood and forage were submitted at Darling Harbour terminus this morning. The sales were fairly attended by the trade. For forage the demand was slack. Of the hay, a larger proportion was of good quality. Late values were unchanged. Sales of wood were characterised by excessive dullness. At the wharfs fairly good quantities were received from Northern rivers, Southern ports and the neighbouring colonies. Business was confined to lines for actual requirements. Onions and Warrnambool potatoes were easier. Maize was slack; but other produce maintained yesterday's values. At Darling Harbour sales the following figures were obtained:—

Wood.—Heavy consignments. Competition was languid; at per ton—billet, 7s 6d to 10s 6d; bundle, 8s 6d to 13s; foot, 8s to 13s 3d; bakers', 8s to 11s.

Hay.—The quality forward was better than for several days but buyers' requirements were restricted to really good lots. Best oaten in bundles, 4s to 4s 7d per cwt.; indifferent to medium, 1s 9d to 3s 6d; bales, 3s 6d; bundled sheaves, 3s 1d; wheaten in bundles, 2s 6d; oaten and wheaten in bundles, 3s 10d.

Straw.—Limited supplies. Clean wheaten, in bundles, 1s 5d to 2s per cwt.

Chaff.—Stock reduced, and consisted chiefly of off qualities. Prime lots in steady demand. Good oaten, in bags, 4s 1d to 4s 6d per cwt.; other kinds, 2s 10d to 3s 2d.

At the wharf the following were the wholesale quotations:—

Maize.—Additional shipments from the Clarence River yesterday and largely of this season's crop, which are quoted at 2s to 2s 4d per bushel, according to condition; old to 3s 2d.

Oats.—Bright heavy feed lines command fair attention, at 2s 1d to 2s 2d per bushel; milling, 2s 5d; other descriptions from 1s 9d; seed is worth 2s 2d.

Barley.—Good Cape seed, 3s per bushel.

Bran.—Still quoted 7½d per bushel.

Pollard.—Fairly firm; 8½d per bushel.

Hay.—Stocks replenished by fresh shipments from the Hunter River this morning. The demand was chiefly for prime well-saved green lucerne, £2 5s to £2 10s per ton; brown, to £2 5s; indifferent lots being slow of sale.

Chaff.—Fair consignments from adjacent colonies last night. Prime Adelaide lines £4 10s to £5 per ton; other qualities, from £3 5s; Victorian, £3 10s to £4 5s.

Onions.—The balances of previous supplies augmented by 342 bags this morning. Weak; £2 15s to £3 per ton for Victorian varieties.

Potatoes.—Additional shipments, chiefly from Victoria, last night. Prices of Warrnambool are easier, and now £2 15s per ton; Circular Head unaltered, £3 15s; New Zealand, £3 10s. Messrs. Kaye and Carter, Christchurch, New Zealand, in circular of March 13, state:—"Potatoes: Kidneys are delivering at about 60s; Derwents promise a good crop, opening prices not determined."

Butter.—Slack at 6d to 9d per lb. for best Illawarra, in keg; factory-made, 8d to 10d.

Cheese.—Unimproved at 2d to 4d per lb. for ordinary colonial sorts; loaf cheese, 5d to 6d.

Bacon.—Machine-cured Southern is moving off slowly at 6d to 6½d per lb.; hand-cured worth 3d to 5½d; heavy and rough pieces, 3d to 4d; hams, 6d to 1s; New Zealand bacon, 9½d; hams, to 1s 1d.

Lard.—Finely-rendered, in bladders, 4d to 4½d per lb.; bulk still neglected.

Honey.—At 2½d to 5d per lb., according to quality.

Eggs.—Rather light, additional supplies this morning. Colonial eggs in active demand, 1s 9d per dozen; Adelaide, 1s 5d. Those by rail, hen and duck eggs, realised 1s 9d to 2s 1d.

Poultry.—Good lots are saleable; other kinds are still slack. Fowls, 2s 6d to 3s 6d per pair; ducks, 3s to 3s 9d; geese, 5s to 7s 6d; turkeys, 6s to 13s 6d. By auction this afternoon heavy supplies were offered. The demand was dull. Fowls, 2s 3d to 3s 6d per pair; ducks, 3s to 4s; geese, 5s 9d to 7s 3d; cock turkeys, 7s to 11s; hen turkeys, 5s to 7s.

Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report having sold by auction and also privately since their last report—2065 sacks oats, 2s 2d to 2s 2½d for bright heavy feed; medium, 1s 11d to 2s 1d; seed descriptions, 1s 10d to 2s; 944 sacks wheat—medium samples, 3s 3d to 3s 4d; chick wheat, 2s 7d to 2s 10d; prime old maize, 3s 2d to 3s 3d; bran, 7½d; pollard, 8½d.

Meat.—Mr. H. M'Namara, of the Metropolitan Meat Market, reports having sold beef at 1½d to 2d per lb.; mutton, 1½d to 2d; lambs in carcase, 2s to 3s. The Riverstone Meat Company report sales of 75 bodies beef at 1½d to 2d; 650 bodies mutton, 1½d to 2d. Messrs. John Evans and Co. report having sold at the New Meat Market, Pyrmont, 105 carcases beef, at 1½d to 2d; 50 hind-quarters, 2½d to 2¾d; 350 sheep, 1½d to 1¾d; 12 calves, 2½d to 2¾d. The retail values are—Joints of beef, to 5d per lb.; mutton, 2½d to 3d; veal, 6d; pork, 8d; corn beef, 4d.

Fruit.—At George-street Markets fairly good supplies were received, chiefly from Fiji, Queensland, Victoria, and our various country districts. The bulk of the fruit consisted of apples, bananas, quinces, and peaches. Business is rather slack. Quotations range as follows: Colonial apples, 3s to 4s per case; Queensland pineapples, 8s to 10s per case; no Fiji pineapples forward; bananas, including Queensland, Fiji, and Samoa, 1s to 4s per bunch; oranges, second crop, 8s to 10s per case; lemons, 8s to 12s; peaches, 6s to 12s; pears, 6s to 16s; plums, 3s to 4s; quinces, 2s to 3s; grapes, 1½d to 3d per lb.; cocoanuts, 2s per dozen or 6s per bag.

STATION, STOCK, AND PRODUCE REPORTS.

Tallow.—Mort and Co., Limited, F. L. Barker, Hill, Clark, and Co., J. Bridge, Brunker and Wolfe, J. H. Geddes and Co., the New Zealand Loan and Mercantile Agency Company, and Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, report holding sales yesterday. 577 packages were offered and 301 sold publicly. Business in shipping parcels was more animated than at previous sales, but values were unaltered. Trade lots were quiet. Quotations: Best beef, £17 15s to £18 5s per ton; medium, £16 15s to £17 10s; mixed and inferior, £14 to £16; best mutton, £18 10s to £21.

Hides.—6303 were offered, and 5040 sold at yesterday's sales. The demand was chiefly confined to well-conditioned heavies, which ruled slightly firmer, whilst other descriptions maintained last week's prices, namely: Extra heavies, 3½d to 4½d per lb.; exceptional lines realised 4¾d to 5d; heavies, 3¼d to 3¾d; medium, 3¼d to 3½d; light, 3½d to 4½d; damaged, 1½d to 3d; dry station, to 5½d.

Marsupial Skins.—A very large catalogue was yesterday submitted at auction by Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited. They state that there was keen competition, especially for large sizes. The following prices were obtained:—For extra large kangaroo, 100s to 126s per dozen; large, 80s to 95s; fair, 45s to 60s; medium, 30s to 40s; small, 12s to 20s; very small, 1s to 5s; scrub wallaby, 6s to 10s; small, 2s to 5s; large swamp, 6s to 12s; small, 2s to 4s; bear, 1s to 3s. Good opossum skins are scarce. Fair, worth 3s to 5s; rumpers, 1s to 3s.

Hair.—Unchanged. Best horse-tail, 13½d to 14d per lb; cow, wa hed, 10d to 11d; dirty, 6d to 9d; stumps, 4½d to 5½d.

Horns and Bones.—Large and well-cared-for parcels of the former are steady, 31s to 33s per 100; medium, 11s 6d to 28s; small, 6s to 10s; tips, from 2s. Bones are weaker. Best shanks now worth £5 per ton; other kinds from £3; common, £3; hoofs, £1 15s.

Leather.—The business transacted at the late sales was on a very limited scale. Light dressed goods were marked by easier values; whilst heavy lines were unsaleable. The demand for sole is slack. Harness lines met with more inquiry at low prices. Basils are in heavy supply, and are also weak. Quotations: Sole, heavy 9d to 10d, medium 8½d to 8¾d, light 8½d to 8¾d; kip, 11d to 15d; cow tweed 16d to 20d, heavy 14d to 15d; rearling tweed, 18d to 20d; calf tweed, 21d to 24d; waxed calf, 18d to 21d; best harness 12d to 13d, medium 10½d to 11d; bag, 9s to 11s; bridle, 10s to 12s.

Horses.—The market has been well supplied with consignments, including a fair number from the country districts. Light saddle and harness stock is scarce, and in active request. Ordinary sorts are dull of sale. Active draught and van horses are unchanged in value. Heavy draughts are in fair demand. Quotations: Best saddle and harness horses, £20 to £30; ordinary, £10 to £16; active draught and van kinds, £14 to £21; heavy draughts, to £28.

Store Stock.—For store bullocks, from 3 to 5 years old, delivered in the north-western districts, there is a good demand at from 85s to 87s 6d; store wethers are held for 7s 6d to 7s 9d; young wethers, at 7s to 7s 3d—prices which buyers are not very willing to give in view of the low prices ruling for fat sheep.

Stations.—Although there are numerous inquiries for stations, there are few offering at prices which buyers are disposed to give.

For quick baking. Raises bread, biscuit, rolls, muffins, and all kinds of cake, without the aid of yeast, saleratus, or cream of tartar, rendering them lighter, sweeter, and more palatable and wholesome. Avoids all decomposition of the flour as caused by yeast rising, thereby saving a large percentage of its most nutritive elements, making the flour go one-fourth further. Food raised by the Royal Baking Powder may be eaten hot, even by dyspeptics, with impunity. Maintains its full strength in any climate any length of time. Endorsed by the United States Government Chemists, and by the leading physicians and hygienists of America, and adopted for use by the United States Government. Guaranteed absolutely pure and wholesome.

Sold only in tins.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

Are admitted by thousands to be worth a GUINEA a BOX for Bilious and Nervous Disorders, such as wind and pain in the stomach, sick headache, giddiness, fulness and swelling after meals, dizziness and drowsiness, cold chills, flushings of heat, loss of appetite, shortness of breath, costiveness, scurvy, blotches on the skin, disturbed sleep, frightful dreams, and all nervous and trembling sensations, &c. The first dose will give relief in 20 minutes. This is no fiction, for they have done it in thousands of cases. Every sufferer is earnestly invited to try one box of these Pills, and they will be acknowledged to be WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

For females of all ages these pills are invaluable, as a few doses of them carry off all gross humours, open all obstructions, and bring about all that is required. No female should be without them. There is no medicine to be found to equal BEECHAM'S PILLS for removing any obstruction or irregularity of the system. If taken according to the directions given with each box they will soon restore females of all ages to sound and robust health.

For a weak stomach, impaired digestion, and all disorders of the liver they act like "MAGIC," and a few doses will be found to work wonders upon the most important organs in the human machine. They strengthen the whole muscular system, restore the long-lost complexion, bring back the keen edge of appetite, and arouse into action with the ROSEBUD of health the whole physical energy of the human frame. These are FACTS admitted by thousands, embracing all classes of society, and one of the best guarantees to the nervous and debilitated is that BEECHAM'S PILLS have the largest sale of any patent medicine in the world.

BEECHAM'S MAGIC COUGH PILLS.

As a remedy for Coughs in general, asthma, difficulty of breathing, shortness of breath, tightness and oppression of the chest, wheezing, &c., these Pills stand unrivalled. They speedily remove that sense of oppression and difficulty of breathing which nightly deprive the patient of rest. Let any person give Beecham's Cough Pills a trial, and the most violent cough will in a short time be removed.

Caution.—The public are requested to notice that the words "Beecham's Pills, St. Helens," are on the Government Stamp affixed to each box of the pills. If not on, they are a forgery.

Prepared only and sold wholesale and retail by the proprietor, T. Beecham, chemist, St. Helens, Lancashire, England, in boxes at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sold by all Druggists and Patent Medicine Dealers throughout the colonies.

N.B.—Full directions are given with each box.

combined in
DR. BELL'S BITTERS,
if the remarkable cures that have been effected by its use fail to impress upon your mind this repeatedly proven fact.

Thousands are using it and all declare that it is a medicine possessing all and even more than we claim for it. My friend, if you are sick, or in that condition that you cannot call yourself either sick or well, go and get a bottle of and realise yourself how this medicine hits the right spot, and puts all the machinery of your body into working order.

One of our prominent business men said to us the other day, "In the spring my wife got all run down, and could not eat anything. Passing a store, I saw a lot of
" Dr. BELL'S BITTERS
"in the window, and I got a bottle. After she had been taking it a week she had a rousing appetite, and it did her a " WORLD OF GOOD.
"She took three bottles, and it was the best investment ever made."

PROVIDENCE

NATURE
has provided herbs for the cure of human ailments, and medical science has discovered their healing powers, and the proper combinations necessary to conquer disease. The result of these discoveries and combinations is—
Dr. BELL'S BITTERS.

For many years it has been tested in severe cases of Kidney and Liver Diseases, Malaria, Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Weakness, Lassitude, &c., and invariably it has given relief and cure.

Thousands of testimonials have been given, and it is most popular where best known.

POULTRY FARMING.

There are many hobbies a man may indulge in after his day's work for recreation and amusement, but Poultry Farming may be made an amusement of a very profitable nature. But for this purpose good land, well watered, close to a station, and within easy distance of Sydney is necessary, so that a man engaged in business can get to town, and leave his wife and family to look after the farm. All these facilities are to be found on the MOORBANK ESTATE. For what a man is paying rent in town he can secure a 6-acre Block of Land, and what he spends in railway fare will be more than saved by what he would pay in doctor's bills for his wife and family. Working men should think of this, and to enable them to do so BOYD and KING, Auctioneers, 96, Pitt-street, will send free to any address an Illustrated Album giving full particulars of the Moorbank Estate.

THIS AFTERNOON, at 3 p.m.

CARLISLE ESTATE, ROSE BAY.

Of all the BEAUTIFUL SUBURBS of Sydney, FEW EQUAL, and NONE RIVAL, ROSE BAY.

HERE one can breathe the LIFE-GIVING, INVIGORATING SEA AIR, and REVEL with NATURE in ALL HER BEAUTY, in fact, ENJOY all the ADVANTAGES of the COUNTRY, and yet be WITHIN 20 MINUTES' STEAM of the CITY.

The LOVELIEST SPOT in this DELIGHTFUL LOCALITY is that occupied by the CARLISLE ESTATE, SITUATE facing the NEW SOUTH HEAD-ROAD, and extending back as far as the OLD SOUTH HEAD-ROAD, bounded on one side by DOVER-STREET, and on the other by FERNLEIGH, the beautiful RESIDENCE and GROUNDS of F. BENNETT, Esq., close to the CONVENT and the CHARMING RESIDENCES of Messrs. BLACK, SCHLESINGER, Mrs. BREEMER, and other first-class properties.

CARLISLE ESTATE comprises a Magnificent Block of about 45 ACRES, within 5 MINUTES' WALK of the STEAMERS' WHARF, commanding LOVELY VIEWS right ACROSS the HARBOUR, embracing ROSE BAY, FORT DENISON, PARRAMATTA RIVER, and the Scenery between on one side, and a PEEP of the OCEAN in the distance on the other.

The LAND consists of splendid ELEVATED SITES and charming FERN DELLS, offering SITES for VILLAS and MANSIONS such as can be NOWHERE ELSE OBTAINED.

Thus those who desire to BENEFIT by the FULL EFFECTS of the COOL SEA BREEZES, and those who wish to be MORE SHELTERED, can BOTH have their desire.

How COOL and REFRESHING it is after experiencing the DUST and TURMOIL of the CITY to retire into a SHADY GLEN surrounded by GREEN TREES, FERNS, and FLOWERS. What great expense some of our wealthy citizens have gone to to achieve such a result, and not always with perfect success.

Yet here, on the CARLISLE ESTATE, will be found NATURAL GLENS, luxuriating in TREES, FERNS, and FLOWERS in all their NATURAL BEAUTY, and which, by the exercise of a LITTLE TASTE and a SMALL OUTLAY, could be made MINIATURE GARDENS OF EDEN.

"CARLISLE ESTATE," ROSE BAY.

IMPORTANT SUBDIVISION SALE of 2044 ACRES of HIGHLY VALUABLE ORCHARD, FARM, VINEYARD, AND MEADOW LANDS, known as THE BELMONT ESTATE, NORTH RICHMOND, on the BANKS of the HAWKESBURY RIVER, in a first-class agricultural district.

FOR AUCTION SALE, on the RICHMOND PARK, close to the RAILWAY STATION at RICHMOND, on SATURDAY, APRIL 14, 1888, at 12 o'clock noon.

By order of the EXECUTORS in the ESTATE of the late HENRY NEWCOMEN, Esq., with the concurrence of the Mortgagees,

The BELMONT ESTATE is situate in the PARISH of KURRAJONG, in the COUNTY of COOK, about 4 miles along a good road from the prosperous and thriving TOWN and STATION of RICHMOND, on the RICHMOND and WINDSOR LINE of RAILWAY, only 38 miles from SYDNEY.

THIS FAR-FAMED and MAGNIFICENT FREEHOLD PROPERTY of 2044 ACRES of Highly valuable Meadow Lands, producing herbage of a rich feeding character, has been CUT UP INTO SUITABLE AREAS for ORCHARD, FARM, and VINEYARD BLOCKS, and RESIDENTIAL SITES.

There is also a COMFORTABLE RESIDENCE, and convenient Farm Buildings, which, with an area of 300 acres, will be offered in one lot.

THE PROPOSED LINE OF RAILWAY from PENRITH to LITHGOW VALLEY is surveyed through the Estate for a distance of about 2¼ miles.

BELMONT occupies a situation unequalled for natural advantages and picturesque attractions. Among its more prominent and interesting features is A LOVELY VALLEY, through which flows THE HAWKESBURY RIVER, lending grace and verdure to the meadows by which it is bordered.

THE KURRAJONG MOUNTAINS tower in the background, their sides luxuriantly clad in woodland foliage, forming aspects of never-failing interest and admiration.

The QUALITY of the LAND is considered to be second to none in this fertile country.

THE TILLAGE LANDS, approached by good roads, can be easily worked at all times, producing prolific crops, whilst the PASTURES yield abundant grass, having PLENTY of SHADE and WATER.

The neighbourhood is highly attractive, and in a residential point of view is a very favourite one, as evinced by the numerous homesteads in the immediate vicinity; but, above all, the PURITY and SALUBRITY of the ATMOSPHERE, tending so much to the enjoyment of health and longevity, is a feature of inestimable value, and should not be lost sight of.

The Telegraph Office within a mile, and a Church within 1½ miles of the Estate.

The ESTATE has been carefully surveyed by Mr. G. M. Pitt, jun., of North Richmond.

PLANS can be had on application to Mr. G. M. PITT, Jun., Surveyor, North Richmond; Mr. JOHNSON, Proprietor of the Royal Hotel, Richmond; and at the Offices of The AUCTIONEERS, 133, Pitt-street, Sydney.

DAY OF SALE: SATURDAY, APRIL 14, 1888.

AGRICULTURISTS, DAIRY FARMERS, and OTHERS.

Grand Subdivision into Farms of the noted
VINE LODGE ESTATE,
SUTTON FOREST,
being part of the earliest selection in that noted District by the late Henry Badgery, Esq.

This large block of rich agricultural well-watered land, containing about 1200 ACRES, has been carefully surveyed and laid out in farm areas, to suit all purchasers, by the well-known Surveyors, Messrs. Atchison and Schleicher, of Sydney, by whom a plan has been prepared, and is now on view at the Auctioneers' ROOMS, showing that part of the Estate now intended to be dealt with, apportioned into five sections, as follows:—

SECTION No. 1—In areas of about 10 ACRES EACH
2—Ditto, from 10 to 42 ACRES EACH
3—Ditto, from 9 to 18 ACRES EACH

. In this section about 45 acres have been subdivided into small areas for RESIDENTIAL PURPOSES immediately adjoining the projected PLATFORM on the GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY, between MERYLA AND BUNDANOON.

SECTION No. 4—In areas from 44 to 90 ACRES
5—In areas from 74 to 91 ACRES

The principal number of the above Farms have frontages to the road running parallel to the Great Southern Railway, between the Meryla Platform and the Bundanoon Railway Station, and nearly all have access to the running waters of Rocky or Indigo Creek. The rest of the Estate is also well watered.

For the new industry of Milk Farming, the above Estate offers every advantage that is requisite for carrying on successfully operations in that direction. Nearly all the land is cleared, the soil is rich, and the grasses abundant and sweet; it is also well watered, and its close proximity to three Railway Stations affords means of access to the central market.

CORONA AND MENAMURTEE STATIONS, NEAR
SILVERTON AND WILCANNIA,
NEW SOUTH WALES.

FOR POSITIVE SALE.

ETTERSHANK, EAGLESTONE, and MANN are favoured with instructions from the owner, Harvey Patterson, Esq., to offer for sale by public auction, in Melbourne, on a day to be named towards the end of June,

His grand and well-known SQUATTING PROPERTIES,
Corona and Menamurtee, as follows:—
CORONA STATION, comprising—
Corona in New South Wales, and Lake George in South Australia.

These properties adjoin, and form a compact block of over two million four hundred thousand (2,400,000) acres of splendid sheep country, considered capable of carrying, when fully improved, half a million sheep.

The stock at present on the run consists of about 150,000 sheep, of which about 60,000 are breeding ewes
300 horses
300 head of cattle.

The improvements on Corona are exceptionally good, having cost upwards of £100,000. There are over 500 miles of wire fencing; 25 wells, 6 of which are worked by steam engines and pumps, 30 tanks and dams, first-class home-stead, woolshed for 60 shearers, and outbuildings, all substantially built of stone; together with drafting-yards and all necessary paddocks and appliances to work fully 250,000 sheep.

The improvements are secured by about 2420 acres of purchased land, and by applications in virtue of improvements.

The working plant is very complete and extensive, comprising every requisite for economically working the station, and including a first-class steam-scouring plant, equal to 60 bales per day, 8-h.p. engine and sawbench, Wright and Edwards' boring machine, ploughs, scoops, &c.

Corona homestead is within 45 miles of Silverton railway station, thus enabling stores and wool to be delivered at the home station or Adelaide at £4 5s per ton.

MENAMURTEE STATION,
situate near Wilcannia, embraces an area of about 410,000 acres of heavily-grassed sheep country, having abundance of herbage, including salt and cotton-bush, mulga, hop-bush, and other edible scrub, estimated to carry 140,000 sheep without further outlay.

The STOCK now consists of about 120,000 sheep, of which about 70,000 are breeding ewes, and of the remainder a large number are wethers fit for market
30 working bullocks
50 head of cattle, a quiet milking herd
100 horses.

The improvements on this property are of a most substantial and permanent character, including good homestead, store, blacksmith's shop, harness-room, huts, and all necessary buildings, also woolshed for 48 shearers, shearers' huts, and nine sets of drafting yards on various parts of the run.

The station is thoroughly fenced, and subdivided into 29 paddocks, and the whole is abundantly watered by two lakes, holding five or six years' supply, a waterhole (never known to be dry), 13 tanks and dams which are now full, and by nine wells, yielding an unlimited supply suitable for either stock or domestic purposes. At two of the wells steam engines and pumps are fixed, while most of them are fitted with whims, reserve tanks, and troughing of stone and wood. There is also a hut at each well.

The whole of the improvements are secured by about 4000 acres of purchased land, and by applications in virtue of improvements.

The sheep on both Corona and Menamurtee are the produce from Hartwood, Meloot, and other choice ewes by Hartwood and Canowie rams, while the cattle and horses are particularly well bred, the latter of a most saleable description.

Mr. Patterson having determined to relinquish squatting pursuits, these grand properties are placed in the market for positive sale, with the sheep in the wool, and this season's increase given in, and from their proximity to a port by railway and river are worthy the attention of investors, and the agents have pleasure in inviting inspection.

Letters to inspect and further particulars on application to ETTERSHANK, EAGLESTONE, and MANN,

THURSDAY, APRIL the 5th, 1888, at 2.15 p.m. sharp.

A Magnificent and Highly-improved
QUEENSLAND PROPERTY, watered by a double frontage to the Maranoa, and situated
40 MILES FROM ST. GEORGE.

JENKINS and RAY, 382, George-street, Sydney (in conjunction with R. B. ROGERS, Charleville), have received instructions from Messrs. Peter and Edward Moore to sell by public auction at the EXCHANGE, SYDNEY, on THURSDAY, April the 5th, 1888, at 2.15 p.m. sharp,

That magnificent and well-known property,
WATERLOO,
in the Maranoa district, 40 miles from St. George, adjoining the far-famed properties Rookwood, Bona Vista, and Cashmere, and comprising an area of 100 square miles.

The property consists of open forest country, with black soil plains, splendidly grassed, and is watered by a double frontage to the Maranoa, containing permanent water; also by lagoons on the back of the run. There is also a good well of water, which watered 400 head of cattle in the droughts; and there is plenty of timber for fencing.

The improvements consist of two large commodious dwelling houses, suitable for two families; a good garden, and requisite stock yards; four well-watered horse paddocks; three paddocks fenced with wire, and one dog-leg fence. All the run boundary is fenced except 12 miles.

With the station will be sold 150 head mixed cattle and 40 horses.

The Auctioneers beg to draw special attention to this estate, which is in every way a most desirable property, and to which they invite inspection.

TERMS AT SALE.

Lots to Suit all Classes. Allotments, Orchards, and Farms.

A well-known writer thus describes:—

Nowhere in New South Wales have I seen a spot so enchantingly lovely, and it is no stretch of the imagination when I predict that the uprising of fair villas, with gardens reaching to the water's edge, and a fleet of white-sailed yachts covering the bosom of the lake, the whole an earthly Paradise. To look upon it is to long for it, and its proximity to the city makes it certain to be what I predict, and that at no distant date. From its enormous coal wealth, distributed through and underlying the whole of this district, it is evident that Gosford must soon occupy an important position.

And only £3 deposit, 3s weekly, will secure an orchard or farm of this magnificent property, for auction sale on the ground, next SATURDAY, March 31, 1888. Get plans and free steamer tickets from the auctioneers,

MORT and CO., Limited, have received instructions from the EXECUTORS of the ESTATE of the late Dr. R. L. JENKINS to SELL BY PUBLIC AUCTION (in conjunction with R. GOLDSBROUGH and CO., Limited, MELBOURNE), at the SALE ROOM of MORT'S WOOL WAREHOUSES, CIRCULAR QUAY, SYDNEY, on TUESDAY, 24th APRIL NEXT, at half-past 2 p.m.,

Those EXTENSIVE PASTORAL PROPERTIES so well and favourably known as CALLANDOON and CARBUCKY STATIONS, situated on the NORTH and SOUTH BANKS of the M'INTYRE RIVER, and TAREWINNABAR, on the Weir River.

CALLANDOON
contains 31,986 acres (more or less) FREEHOLD LAND, and 104,960 acres (more or less) GOVERNMENT LAND, of which 43,200 acres (more or less) are HELD UNDER LEASE from the Queensland Government for 15 years, under the Land Act of 1884, and 61,760 acres (more or less) are HELD UNDER OCCUPATION LICENSE; and under the Act the Lessee has the SOLE RIGHT to GRAZE OVER the WHOLE of the LANDS held under the OCCUPATION LICENSE until ALIENATED by the GOVERNMENT.

CARBUCKY contains 4356 acres (more or less) FREEHOLD LAND, and 78,600 acres (more or less) of Government Land, of which 48,600 acres (more or less) are HELD UNDER LEASE from the New South Wales Government for 10 years, under the Land Act of 1884, and 30,000 acres (more or less) are HELD UNDER AN OCCUPATION LICENSE, and under the Act the Lessee has the SOLE RIGHT to GRAZE OVER the WHOLE of the LANDS held under OCCUPATION LICENSE until ALIENATED by the GOVERNMENT.

The COUNTRY consists principally of OPEN PLAINS LIGHTLY TIMBERED and HEAVILY COVERED with the RICHEST FATTENING GRASSES and HERBAGE, the whole being WELL and PERMANENTLY WATERED by the M'INTYRE RIVER, dividing the Queensland and New South Wales portions, by the WEIR RIVER, CALLANDOON, YAMBOCULLY, COMORIN, and other CREEKS, besides NUMEROUS LARGE LAGOONS. The STATION IMPROVEMENTS are MOST COMPLETE, comprising VERY SUPERIOR RESIDENCE, with EXCELLENT GARDEN, LARGE WOOL SHEDS, and all in the way of PLANT that is required for WORKING the STATION with EFFICIENCY and ECONOMY, the whole Property being SUBDIVIDED into NUMEROUS PADDOCKS, with the BEST DESCRIPTION of WIRE FENCING, while Suspension and other BRIDGES HAVE BEEN ERECTED ACROSS the M'INTYRE RIVER and CALLANDOON CREEKS, for facilitating movements of the Stock. There is also an EXPENSIVELY-CONSTRUCTED WOOL-SCOURING ESTABLISHMENT on Dingo Creek, with STEAM-ENGINE, VERY POWERFUL CENTRIFUGAL PUMP, and all the usual appliances.

TAREWINNABAR consists of UNDULATING and WELL-WATERED COUNTRY, and contains 260,160 acres (more or less) of Government land, of which 143,040 acres (more or less) are Leasehold, and 117,120 acres (more or less) are held under an Occupation License on the same terms as Callandoon.

The improvements comprise comfortable manager's residence (recently built), stockman's cottage, large stockyard, horse paddocks, and every convenience for working the property to advantage.

With the above Stations will be sold
70,000 (more or less) FIRST-CLASS SHEEP
2,000 (more or less) HEAD OF CATTLE
180 (more or less) HEAD OF HORSES.

As regards the Sheep, the late Dr. Jenkins for over 20 years spared neither expense nor trouble in WORKING UP HIS FLOCKS to the STANDARD THEY HAVE ATTAINED.

The WOOL IS WELL KNOWN in the HOME MARKET, it having always RANKED AMONGST THE BEST WOOLS in the estimation of Buyers, and the CATTLE are a VERY SUPERIOR HERD of SHORTHORNS, having been bred from the FAMOUS NEPEAN TOWERS IMPORTED PUREBREDS.

Callandoon and Carbucky have always been noted as one property, and Tarewinnabar has been worked in conjunction with them.

For further particulars apply to MORT and CO., Limited, Circular Quay, SYDNEY; or R. GOLDSBROUGH and CO., Limited, MELBOURNE; or the MANAGER, on the PROPERTY, who will afford every facility for inspection.

MAGNIFICENT PASTORAL PROPERTY.

Fronting MURRUMBIDGEE RIVER.

KERARBURY, about 150,000 Acres FINEST COUNTRY IN AUSTRALIA, with 86,000 FIRST-CLASS SHEEP.

MORT and CO., Limited (in conjunction with R. GOLDSBROUGH and CO., Limited) will offer at public auction, under instructions from the proprietors, Messrs. MACLEAY and CLARK, at the Saleroom of their Wool Warehouses, CIRCULAR QUAY, SYDNEY, on TUESDAY, June 19 NEXT, at 2.30 p.m.,

The KERARBURY ESTATE, in the MURRUMBIDGEE DISTRICT, comprising 120,000 acres (more or less) FREEHOLD LAND

16,000 acres (more or less) LEASEHOLD LAND, and 16,700 acres (more or less) held under OCCUPATION LICENSE.

The property has a FRONTAGE of 18½ MILES in a straight LINE to the SOUTH BANK of the MURRUMBIDGEE RIVER, extending back in part 22 miles, and in part 11 miles, and consists chiefly of MAGNIFICENT SALT BUSH COUNTRY of the MOST HEALTHY and FATTENING CHARACTER, the whole being SUBDIVIDED into 83 PADDOCKS of suitable area; while, for the purpose of conserving an AMPLE SUPPLY OF WATER in time of drought, there are, in addition to the great extent of river frontage and creeks and swamps, numerous tanks, dams, and wells.

Other improvements include HOMESTEAD, with every comfort for the residence of a family, while no expense has been spared in creating EVERY FACILITY FOR WORKING SO LARGE A PROPERTY ECONOMICALLY, AND TO BEST ADVANTAGE.

With KERARBURY will be sold about 86,000 first-class SHEEP, of good ages (about 37,000 of which will lamb in May next), well known for their large frames and heavy fleeces; also about 600 CATTLE and some 120 HORSES. The property is at present very lightly stocked, and, in good seasons, largely in excess of present number of sheep can be carried.

The attention of investors is directed to the fact that Kerarbury has been in the hands of the present proprietors for the past 40 years, and that it is only in exceptional circumstances that properties so long favourably held come into the market. The fertile character of the soil, too, and the facility for irrigation, point to the lands on the river frontage taking an agricultural value at no distant day; while recent railway extension has already brought the Murrumbidgee district into such easy communication that the trucking of fat stock and produce to the Northern or Southern markets can now be managed at any time with ease, the Darlington railway station being within 8 miles of Kerarbury.

Plans can be seen, and further information obtained, on application to John Clark, Esq., on the station; or to R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, Melbourne; or to MORT and CO., Limited,
SYDNEY.

BUNNAMAGOO ESTATE.

DISTRICT OF BATHURST.

HILL, CLARK, and CO. (in conjunction with R. and W. Oakes), under instructions from the proprietors, Messrs. M'Intosh and Oakes, will offer for sale on MONDAY, 23rd April, 1888, at Royal Hotel, Bathurst, at half-past 2 p.m., to wind-up a partnership,

The above magnificent property, which is, without exception, equal to any property in the Bathurst district.

BUNNAMAGOO is situated on the Campbell's River, about 25 miles from Bathurst. It is watered by that river, the Gilmandyke Creek, Judd's Creek, and other creeks, all of which run through the whole of the property.

There are about 7000 acres freehold, and some leasehold land.

The property is divided into sheep-proof paddocks of suitable area, all permanently watered.

The improvements consist of a first-class homestead, outhouses, stables, and overseer's cottage, a newly-erected woolshed capable of accommodating 12 shearers, shearers' huts and drafting yards, &c. There are also large sheds (with water laid on) for feeding stud stock, storing hay, &c.

Both Copper and Gold have been found on the Estate.

One Copper Mine has been recently worked, and highly approved by Mr. Slee, the Government Mining Surveyor, but the work was discontinued on account of the low price of copper.

The stock consists of about 120 head of horses, including some thoroughbred draught and blood stock
150 head of cattle, all in first-class condition; some fit for the market, including some pure-bred Hereford stock from the herds of Wm. Kite, Esq., and the late John M'Phillamy, Esq.
7000 sheep, consisting of 3500 wethers, fat; the balance ewes and mixed young sheep (Lincolns), and some high-class pedigree rams.

A large portion of the estate is suitable for farming purposes. There is also a large valuable plant of farming implements, &c.

The estate is highly improved, and is in first-class working order.

As a profitable investment it cannot be excelled.

In the meantime, all information can be obtained from entirely fenced in, a large portion forming part of the well-known Goulburn Plains.

Watered throughout by the Gundary Creek, rich and luxuriantly grassed, and situated three miles from the City of Goulburn.

This property is one of the oldest grants, and formed part of the Bradley Estate, and is in close proximity to those well-known estates, Gundary, Tirranna, and Springfield. As a site for a gentleman's residence and stud farm it cannot be excelled, being close to the city and commanding the most perfect and charming views in the district. It is also most suitable for a stock and trading depot, and has all the features and qualities suitable for a farm subdivision.

LOT 2.

That beautiful homestead residence known as Irriwilbin, lately occupied by the late Mrs. Phillips, and at present by the family.

The house is a beautiful stone villa, with large verandah, hall, five large rooms, two servants' rooms, kitchen, pantry, storeroom, laundry, woodhouse, dairy, five-stall stable, coachhouse, underground tank; fine garden of 3 acres, choice fruit trees and flowers.

The situation of Irriwilbin is perfect as regards scenery—overlooking the plains, well sheltered, and having an area of 320 acres of freehold, subdivided into paddocks. The distance from the city is about 3 miles.

A more charming and healthy residence does not exist in the suburbs of Goulburn, and its proximity to the city gives it a very special attraction.

Terms.—One-fourth cash, one-fourth at 6 months'; balance may remain secured upon the property for a term.

THURSDAY, 19th APRIL.

CITY OF MELBOURNE,
Collins-street West.

That well known Property,
SCOTT'S HOTEL.

JOHN BUCHAN and CO. are instructed by W. C. Wilson, who is retiring from business, to sell, on the premises, on THURSDAY, 19th April,
SCOTT'S HOTEL,
standing on land having a frontage of 60 FEET to COLLINS-STREET WEST
by a depth of 139 feet 9 inches along a wide roadway to another roadway also in rear; land 54 x 48.

The world-wide reputation of Scott's Hotel and the central business position which it occupies render it unnecessary for the Auctioneers to make any comment.
LICENSE, STOCK, FURNITURE, &c., can be taken at a valuation, at the option of the purchaser.
Full particulars at Auctioneers', 37, Queen-street, Melbourne.

MAGNIFICENTLY RICH
CULTIVATION LAND,
FREEMAN'S REACH,
WINDSOR.

TITLE PERFECT.

BRUNKER and WOLFE have received instructions from the representatives of the late J. Cobcroft, Esq., to sell by auction at Gough's Hotel, Windsor, on WEDNESDAY, the 28th MARCH, 1888, at 2 o'clock,
2 VERY VALUABLE and EXCEEDINGLY RICH CULTIVATION FARMS, containing 33 and 18 ACRES respectively, situate at Freeman's Reach, about a mile from the railway station, Windsor.

This high-class property is one of the earliest selections made by the late Mr. John Cobcroft, and is acknowledged to be one of the most productive plots of agricultural land in the Windsor district.

TERMS, CASH.

BRISBANE, QUEENSLAND.

MONDAY, APRIL 23.

IMPORTANT TO MERCHANTS,
BANKERS,
CAPITALISTS,
&c., &c.

SPLENDID BUSINESS SITE, corner of
STANLEY and ERNEST STREETS,
SOUTH BRISBANE,
FRONTAGE TO BRISBANE RIVER.

SIMON FRASER and SON are favoured with instructions from the Trustee in the Estate of the late Samuel Stevens to sell by auction, at their Mart, 121, Queen-street, Brisbane, on MONDAY, APRIL 23, at 11 o'clock, Allotment 1 of Section 27, Parish of South Brisbane, containing quarter-acre, having a frontage of 1 chain each to Stanley-street and the Brisbane River, and 2½ chains to Ernest-street.

The rapid development of business and traffic in Stanley-street places it only second to Queen-street, while the creation of South Brisbane into a separate borough, the concentration of three different lines of railway, and the limited area available as leading business sites, should engage the serious attention of capitalists, bankers, &c.

The property now offering, with its three frontages and its large area, stands unsurpassed, if not unequalled, on either side of the river.

Bankers especially, having regard to the future, should not let this opportunity of securing an unquestionable business stand escape them.

TERMS:
One-fourth cash, and the balance extending over five years.

REMEMBER, Next Saturday, New Brighton Estate, Gosford, Sale £3 dep., 3s week. Tkt. O'Brien, 94, Eliz.-st.

Plans can be seen at the Rooms.

Terms easy. Titles freehold.

KILKIVAN.

QUEENSLAND.

CATTLE STATION, with large FREEHOLD ESTATE, adjoining the KILKIVAN GOLD RESERVE and CINNABAR MINES, and not far from the GYMPIE GOLD-FIELDS.

F. L. BARKER has received instructions (in conjunction with Messrs. M'Taggart Bros., Maryborough) from the Trustee, on account of the ill-health of the Proprietor, to sell by public auction, on WEDNESDAY, 11th April, at 2.30, at the Exchange, Sydney,
The well-known cattle run,
KILKIVAN,
embracing about 20,000 ACRES FREEHOLD LAND, in addition to some 70 SQUARE MILES LEASEHOLD COUNTRY.

With the Run will be offered about 4000 HEAD OF CATTLE, and about 150 HORSES, including Working Plant, &c.

The great ADVANTAGE possessed by KILKIVAN as a CATTLE STATION is its proximity to the neighbouring Gold-fields, which always form a certain market for Fats. It is well and permanently watered, and the head station, conveniently situated, stands at an elevation of nearly 1000ft. above sea level. This tends to make the climate particularly healthy. THE IMPROVEMENTS are very complete, and are in good order. THE RAILWAY is now within a mile of the head station, affording great facilities for reaching the SEAPORT TOWN OF MARYBOROUGH.

The RICH GOLD-FIELDS of GYMPIE, and the at present only partially developed KILKIVAN FIELDS, tend to make this property particularly ATTRACTIVE TO INVESTORS, it having been clearly shown that surrounding and on this station great indications of RICHNESS IN MINERALS exist, and to this SPECIAL ATTENTION is particularly directed.

For plan, description of the property, and fuller particulars, apply to
F. L. BARKER,
86, Pitt-street, Sydney.
